A Word from the President ...

I had a very pleasant visit recently with Miss Shelley Sanders, a 14-year-old student from Bryant, Arkansas, who came by to meet me. She was on campus for Super Summer and took the opportunity to follow the advice of her personal physician, Dr. Earl Peeples, who told her to look into the possibility of attending Ouachita when she finished high school. Shelley is a very bright, mature young lady, and should she elect to further her education at Ouachita, I will be delighted to have her as part of our student body.

Friends of Ouachita, like Dr. Earl Peeples, are certainly making a difference in our efforts to recruit good students. We hear good reports about pastors like Dr. Rich Kincl of Central Baptist Church in Magnolia who recruited his niece, Jenna Schwalier, to come to Ouachita where she has served as president of the sophomore class. Dr. Bill Elliff, recently called as pastor of First Baptist Church in Little Rock, sent us a number of students while serving in Oklahoma churches.

Marlin Jackson, Chairman and CEO at Worthen National Bank of Conway, and former Arkansas Bank Commissioner, recently shared some good words about Ouachita graduates. In his experience with commission employees he observed, "It is easy to distinguish the graduates of Ouachita University. Inevitably they are better prepared — higher performing individuals who learned their job responsibilities quicker ..." That is high praise from a leader in Arkansas financial circles. Our outstanding graduates reflect well on Ouachita and help us illustrate the advantages Ouachita offers to prospective students.

Friends and alumni alike can play a key role in Ouachita's future by encouraging outstanding students to look to us as they plan for college.

Sincerely,

Ben M. Elrod

Tigers battle Arkansas Tech at War Memorial

When Robert "Red" Nelson and Gus Albright joined several other Ouachita football legends on the field at Little Rock's War Memorial Stadium recently, the discussion turned immediately from games gone by to how the 1992 Tigers might handle playing on this alien surface called artificial turf.

Nelson, Albright and other Tiger stars from yesteryear met Head Coach Buddy Benson and Ouachita President Ben M. Elrod at the stadium to pose for pictures to publicize the upcoming Capital Clash '92 -- the Ouachita Tigers vs. the Arkansas Tech Wonderboys at War Memorial on September 12.

Between the poses, the seniors of the group joked about passes dropped and touchdowns made, but their comments often came back to the turf -- how spongy it was and how hot it could get on a day in late June.

Two of the celebrities were already quite familiar with War Memorial's turf.

Mark Whatley and Jim Cox led Rison and Fordyce, respectively, to state titles with championship victories in the capital city in 1991. For Whatley, it was his second straight state title.

It is the tradition of excellence these generations of Ouachitonians symbolize that brought about a return of Ouachita football to Little Rock. Capital Clash '92 will be a central Arkansas celebration honoring both the academic and athletic integrity of Ouachita's past and its promising future. Alumni from across the state will join present students and prospective students in a pre-game pep rally/dinner at the Family Life Center of Immanuel Baptist Church at 5 p.m. The Ouachita Band, cheerleaders and pompon squad will lead the pep rally. Kickoff at War Memorial is set for 7 p.m.

Elrod envisions the game and its surrounding activities as a way to gain more visibility in the Little Rock area, while providing an opportunity for more people in central Arkansas to see the Tigers in action.

"We will still play a full slate of home games at A.U. Williams Field in Arkadelphia, but the Little Rock game allows us to pull together a large group of alumni, present students, prospective students and friends of the University," said Elrod. "It should be a great night for old friends, new friends and football."

Capital Clash '92 will be the first of two meetings of the Tigers and Wonderboys in 1992. The Little Rock contest will be a non-conference tilt, while the November 14 game will serve both as an AIC contest and homecoming for Ouachita. The Tigers will have five home games on their 11-game schedule.

Several activities are underway in preparation for the festivities. In addition to a large crowd of alumni and friends of the University expected for the pep rally/dinner and game, Ouachita students will compete for spirit prizes. Prospective students in the form of church youth groups or football teams can get tickets at reduced prices.

Game tickets may be purchased from the Ouachita Athletic Office. Advance tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for students. Adult tickets at the gate will be $5. Tickets for the pep rally/dinner are $3. Persons may address ticket inquires to: Athletic Office, Ouachita Baptist University, P.O. Box 3788, Arkadelphia, AR 71998-0001. DECADE OF PROGRESS

Alumni called upon to assist University campaign

By Virgil and June Waggoner

When we were asked to serve as co-chairs of the Alumni Decade of Progress Campaign, our first reaction was that we, like others, would make significant financial commitments but we just could not make a time commitment. Being asked to consider serving as leaders made us think back to our years at Ouachita. Those years provided us with some very valuable life experiences.

When we both graduated in 1948, we and all other students had been the recipients of the financial and time commitments made previously by many Ouachita friends and alumni. Others served us; and, now it is our turn to be of service. We have decided that we want to be active participants in this campaign in order to ensure the future strength of our alma mater.

One of Ouachita's great assets is the willingness and gratitude in the hearts of her alumni. Many have already said yes to the invitation to serve as leaders, and many have said yes when asked for a financial commitment. We challenge you to say yes when you are asked to participate in this great campaign effort. In fact, why wait to be asked; call the Alumni Campaign Office, 501-245-5169, and volunteer.

Together, we have a chance to accomplish something very special, something that will elevate Ouachita to the finest Christian university in the region. Together, we can make it happen.

June Waggoner

Virgil Waggoner

Waggoners to chair Alumni Decade of Progress Campaign

June and Virgil Waggoner of Houston, Texas, have agreed to serve as co-chairs of the Alumni Decade of Progress Campaign. Virgil is the president and chief executive officer of Sterling Chemicals, Inc. which is headquartered in Houston. Directing the campaign will be Margaret Wright, development officer at Ouachita.

Leadership will be enlisted during the next 18 months and a victory celebration is scheduled for Homecoming, 1994. The Alumni Decade of Progress Campaign has a base goal of $2 million and a challenge goal of $3 million.

International studies fund established by Cobb

Mrs. Katherine Cobb of Keo has provided $25,000 to establish the J.D. and Katherine Cobb International Studies Fund at Ouachita. Income and principal from the Fund will be used to assist Ouachita students who have been selected to participate in the international studies program. Mrs. Cobb's late husband, J.D., was a 1933 graduate of Ouachita and a successful businessman. Mrs. Cobb and son, Bodie, manage the cotton and pecan business in Keo established by Mr. Cobb and others in the family. Mrs. Cobb also has a daughter, Susan (Mrs. David Underwood), who lives in Little Rock.

Currently Ouachita sends 80-90 students annually to Japan, China, England, Austria, Commonwealth of Independent States (formerly the Soviet Union) and other nations as part of study tours and exchange programs. The programs have enriched the campus by opening the world to students and opening Ouachita to the world. An indication of the effectiveness of the international studies program at Ouachita is increasing student interest in foreign languages. Ouachita has classes in nine languages, including Japanese, Chinese and Russian.

Atkinson family provides endowed scholarship

The William and Nelda Atkinson Family Endowed Scholarship Fund has been established by William and Nelda Atkinson of Pine Bluff to provide scholarship assistance to full-time students at Ouachita.

Recipients of the scholarship must be either a junior or senior majoring in accounting, business or chemistry and must possess and maintain a 3.0 grade point average.

Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson are the parents of three Ouachita graduates: Chuck ('79), Marc ('80) and Drew ('82).

Defreeces establish family scholarship fund

Vergil and Sylvia Defreecce of Farmington, Missouri, have established the Vergil and Sylvia Defreecce Family Memorial Endowed Scholarship Fund in honor of their children, Dale Defreecce, Wanda Defreecce Griffin, and in memory of their son, Elmer Dean Defreecce, who was killed in Germany while serving in the United States Air Force. The Defreeces plan to endow the fund through periodic gifts and a provision in their estate plans.

A 1946 graduate, Vergil served for 60 years in pastorates and associations, retiring "officially" as pastor of Esther, Missouri FBC in 1976. He is currently pastor of Doe Run Baptist Church in the Farmington area. Mrs. Defreecce attended Ouachita, and taught school in Arkansas for several years.

Neel scholarship to assist Arkadelphia students

Mrs. Mary Neel of Arkadelphia has established The J. Albert and Mary Neel Endowed Scholarship Fund at Ouachita to be funded by periodic gifts and a provision in her will. The Scholarship fund will be used for deserving students, with priority for those from the Arkadelphia area.

Mrs. Neel completed her freshman work at Ouachita in 1924, then studied further in Oklahoma. For 46 years she was a teacher and principal in the Arkadelphia school system, having the distinction of serving as principal in the Primary Building, Central School, and Perritt Elementary. She retired in 1971. Her late husband, Albert, was a businessman until his death in 1974. Mrs. Neel is an active member of First Baptist Church, Arkadelphia.

Tennessee couple establishes Spence Scholarship

Friends of Ouachita from Tennessee, who wish to remain anonymous, have established The Clara Ellen Walker Spence Scholarship Fund in honor of the late Clara Spence of Memphis. An award from this fund has already been made for the 1992-93 academic year.

Ouachita has been given wide leeway in choosing recipients for scholarship awards from this fund, with the understanding that students in unusual circumstances who show potential should receive priority. The same donors are in the process of working toward the establishment of a crisis fund to help students with critical financial needs.

Playwright award established in memory of Dennis Holt

Dr. Ben Elrod has announced the establishment of the Dennis Holt Festival Play Award, a semi-annual cash award given to the playwright who submits the best original play for production at Ouachita.

The award was made possible by a gift from Mrs. Katy Holt of Arkadelphia, widow of the late Ouachita drama professor and playwright.

"Dennis Holt was a mainstay in drama at Ouachita for almost three decades," said Elrod. "His teaching and his plays touched many lives, and that is why it is such a pleasure to remember him through this award."

The first recipient of the Dennis Holt Festival Play Award is Werner Trieschmann. A graduate of Boston University, he served as an intern in the department of theatre arts at Ouachita during the 1991-92 academic year. Trieschmann's play, "Lawn Darts," will be performed by Ouachita students this fall at the Arkansas College Theater Festival.

"Because Dennis was a strong supporter of the Arkansas College Theater Festival and well known as a serious playwright, we thought it was particularly fitting for his name to be associated with Ouachita's continued efforts in these areas," said Scott Holsclaw, assistant professor of theatre arts. "Mrs. Holt has made it possible to include a financial incentive for young playwrights to submit their plays to the competition. We expect participants from across the nation."

Union Pacific grant used to purchase computer system

Ouachita recently received a grant of $10,000 from the Union Pacific Foundation of Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. The grant was used to purchase a state-of-the-art desktop publishing system which is being used for preparation of most of the University's publications.

According to Deborah Root, director of development publications, "The system has resulted in significant cost and time savings because Ouachita now prepares these materials in-house rather than contracting with outside agencies. It has already proven to be of great value."

Archival program provides historical review

Neatly tucked away in a corner of Riley-Hickingbotham Library on the Ouachita campus is a reservoir of historical material and artifacts that provide researchers and other interested persons a look at the makings of the University, the Arkansas Baptist State Convention, Clark County, southwest Arkansas, and some engaging information about prominent citizens of the state.

It is a fantastic journey through the past stretching from the archival confines in the library to next door in the McClellan Hall classroom and office building.

The archival program contains the history of Ouachita, founded in 1886, along with the Clark County Historical Association, and the Arkansas Baptist State Convention. Also housed are collections from distinguished Arkansans, such as the official papers of the late U.S. Senator John L. McClellan.

Wendy Richter, archivist at Ouachita, said the McClellan Collection is a much valued asset of the University and one bulging with some key elements and insights of the senator's key role in the political history of the United States.

"It's an extensive collection, containing more than 2,000 books, hundreds of photographs, and more than 1,000 linear feet of manuscript material," Richter said. "The material that Senator McClellan left Ouachita takes up a group of rooms about the same size as the remainder of the archives have collectively."

McClellan was a member of the United States Senate for 34 years, serving from 1942-77. He served on several prominent committees, including being chairman of the Permanent Subcommittee of Investigation.

Group tours of the McClellan Collection Exhibit Hall in the building named after the south Arkansas lawmaker are available to school groups, civic organizations, service agencies, or others who might be interested. The exhibit contains a replica of McClellan's office in Washington with the desk and some of the original furnishings. There are also plaques, photos and awards presented to McClellan by people from all walks of life.

Visitors can view, in the upper corridors of McClellan Hall, enlarged newspaper satire cartoon strips about the senator drawn by some of the country's best known illustrators. Behind the strips is an area brimming with dozens of file cabinets containing documents from McClellan's terms in office and scrapbooks from his political career.

Richter said the Ouachita archives, while proud of such a gathering of material from such a prominent person as McClellan, also eagerly pursues other areas of interest from average citizens.

ARCHIVIST - Wendy Richter displays items included in the Ouachita archives. The archives provides an historical overview of the University, Clark County and the Arkansas Baptist State Convention, as well as the the life and work of the late Senator John L. McClellan.

"Most of our materials come from private individuals cleaning out attics," she said. "We are looking for the unusual, though. The diaries, scrapbooks, letters... things that most people deem as no good and throw away."

What is the most unusual thing that the archives has? "A walking stick that dates from the time of the California gold rush," Richter said. "A local man went west in search of riches and returned to Arkadelphia in the early 1850s with this cane, made from a huge tree in California."

Also housed in the archives is the Thase Daniel Collection. During her life, Daniel, a 1929 graduate of Ouachita and resident of El Dorado, was one of the nation's leading nature and wildlife photographers. Following her death, her husband, John T. Daniel, donated more than 57,000 of her dramatic slides to the University.

The archives is continually growing. Richter said that a recent archival gift to the school is a collection of the estate from the late O.C. and Marjorie Bailey of El Dorado. The Baileys were long-term benefactors of Ouachita. The Bailey collection, Richter said, offers a look at the history of the oil industry in south Arkansas.

The archives is continually adding material about its home county.

As one of Arkansas' oldest counties, Clark County has a long and colorful history. That history is documented in the archives of the Clark County Historical Association on file in Riley-Hickingbotham Library. Thousands of photographs together with family files, maps, newspapers, government records, and manuscript items tell the story of the county and its people.

People from the county and surrounding areas continually are in the archives, Richter said, looking for information concerning their families, and obtaining a glimpse into the happenings of earlier days in Arkansas.

As the official repository for the records of the Arkansas Baptist State Convention, the Ouachita archives holds the most extensive set of information available anywhere about Southern Baptists in Arkansas, the state's largest religious body. Through association, church, and other denominational records, researchers can locate material on practically any aspect of Baptist life in Arkansas.

Richter said that the public is welcome to use any of the material in special collections. It is an area, she said, that offers a comfortable place to simply sit and browse through material or an enclave for the serious researcher.

"We invite anyone interested in the heritage of Clark County, Arkansas, Baptists, southwest Arkansas, or the University to visit us in the archives," she said. •By Paula Carpenter, student

Kellogg Foundation grant used to sponsor play at Old Washington

The rich history of Old Washington, Arkansas' Confederate State capital, will come alive again in the form of a new outdoor drama sponsored by Ouachita and the W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich.

A one-year, $27,000 Kellogg Foundation grant will assist Ouachita with the start-up production costs.

Preparation for the September opening of "Rouge et Noir" already is underway, with Ouachita professors making arrangements for their students to work beside professional actors hired for some of the lead roles.

Scott Holsclaw, assistant professor of theatre arts at Ouachita, will produce the drama. He said the play will be unique because unlike other outdoor productions, it will not take place on a large amphitheater stage. Instead, the audience will follow the actors from building to building as the action unfolds throughout the town, located in Hempstead County.

"There are many outdoor dramas, but this one is different," said Holsclaw. "The audience actually participates by following the actors around. We want the audience to come away with a unique experience in the history of the state."

Hollywood actor/writer/director Joe Graves, a former Ouachita student, wrote the play based on Old Washington's history as a frontier city and state capital during the Civil War. Graves will direct the production, which will include two or more Hollywood actors. Ouachita students and several regional actors will round out the cast.

Holsclaw said one of the play's purposes is to make students and audiences alike more aware of the region's history. "Performers must be prepared, not just as actors playing a role, but as historians understanding the period in which these roles are portrayed," said Holsclaw.

The drama is a continuation of Ouachita's long-time involvement in Old Washington's Southwest Arkansas Regional Archives. Since 1982, Dr. Tom Greer, the Clarence and Bennie Sue Anthony Professor of Bible and Humanities, and Lavell Cole, professor of history, have offered intensive summer coursework on the history of Old Washington and the Ark-La-Tex region.

"It's been good to see a college and state park cooperate to help to develop more historical research and interest in the area," said Greer. "We think Ouachita has been useful in that development, and Old Washington certainly has been one of the strengths of our regional studies center at Ouachita."

The play will open at Ouachita's Verser Theatre with previews scheduled for September 18 and 19. The expanded outdoor version will debut in Old Washington, September 24-27. Holsclaw said he hoped the production would become an annual event.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

•SENATE PRESIDENT ELECTED

Jay Heflin, a business administration major from Little Rock, has been elected as president of the University's Student Senate for the 1992-93 academic year.

At Ouachita, Heflin is a member of the Student Senate, Blue Key National Honor Fraternity, Ouachita Student Foundation, Beta Beta men's social club, Alpha Chi national scholastic honor society, and the tennis team.

His father and mother, Johnny and Sharon Heflin of Little Rock, are both Ouachita graduates. His father was also president of the Senate as a student in 1966-67.

•PSYCHOLOGY STUDENTS RECEIVE AWARDS

Two Ouachita students won competitions at the 38th annual convention of the Southwestern Psychological Association (SWPA) held April 16-18 at the Marriott Hotel in Austin, Texas. Ouachita was represented at the convention by 10 students and two professors.

Kim McCarty, a psychology major from Nash, Texas, won the undergraduate paper competition, with her submission on "Hand Preference During Feeding." Nancy Cathey, a family life ministry and Christian counseling major from El Dorado, won the undergraduate poster division. Cathey presented a poster on "Effects of Caffeine on Rats' Bar Press and Maze Performance."

Dr. Randy Smith, chairman of the department of psychology, and Dr. Randall Wight, assistant professor of psychology, accompanied the students.

•SIXTEEN STUDENTS SELECTED FOR EXCHANGE PROGRAMS

Sixteen Ouachita students have been selected to participate in four student exchange programs in Japan, China, Austria and the Commonwealth of Independent States for the 1992-93 academic year.

The students will be sent under the auspices of the Daniel R. Grant International Studies Program.

Speech Pathology provides services to area residents

May was Better Hearing and Speech Month in the United States and the department of speech pathology at Ouachita helped to celebrate that fact by focusing public awareness on the topic.

Nancy Turner, instructor in speech pathology, said the OBU program helps the residents of Arkadelphia and surrounding areas in providing such services to the public as hearing screening and free language skills development to senior citizens who are recovering stroke patients.

"We work through the school year in providing Ouachita speech pathology students with avenues to both use the skills they learn in the classroom and to help the residents of our area," said Turner. "The speech pathology emphasis is important on our campus and is a growing professional area nationwide."

Turner is assisted in her work at Ouachita by clinic supervisor Carol Wasson Morgan.

The Ouachita program works in concert with the Office of Hearing, Speech and Vision Services of the Arkansas Department of Health in the training of professionals in providing quality health care and to promote education for the citizens of Arkansas regarding communication and vision disorders.

Ouachita named founding partner of Arkansas leadership academy

Ouachita has been named as one of the founding partners of the Arkansas Academy for Leadership Training and School-Based Management, an organization which will teach leadership skills to public school administrators and school board members.

The Arkansas Department of Education announced that the academy would begin operation on July 1, 1992, and that the following universities and businesses would be partners in its operation: the University of Arkansas-Fayetteville; Ouachita Baptist University; the University of Arkansas-Little Rock; the University of Arkansas-Pine Bluff; the University of Arkansas-Monticello; Arkansas Leadership Exchange; Wal-Mart Stores, Inc.; and Tyson Foods, Inc.

The Leadership Academy was created by act of the state legislature in 1991 for the purpose of providing a variety of training programs concerning the leadership skills and management needs of school principals, teachers, superintendents, other administrators and school board members.

An exact schedule of activities will be determined by an executive committee consisting of one representative from each partner institution. Representing Ouachita on the executive committee will be Dr. Paul Root, chairman of the department of education. Root is chairing a special sub-

Students recognized for academic achievements

The Student Senate of Ouachita hosted the annual Academic Awards Banquet on April 21 in Evans Student Center to honor more than 100 of the University's finest student academicians.

In addition to awards presented by the various academic divisions of the University, the following awards were presented at the banquet:

Dr. J. Scott Duvall, assistant professor of religion, was selected by the Senate to receive the Outstanding Faculty Award.

The Ouachita faculty selected Ricky Edmondson as Senior Ouachitonian Man, and Jana Crain as Senior Ouachitonian Woman. Edmondson was also named Outstanding Senior Man by Blue Key National Honor Society.

The Carl Goodson Honors Program recognized Heidi Fite and Kym Rutherford as Ben Elrod Scholars.

Shanon Brunner was recognized as the Overall Academic Achiever of the Year and received the Association of Women Students Leadership Award.

Wendy Foster and Beth Anne Rankin were named co-recipients of the Mrs. J.R. Grant Memorial Awards.

Paul Williams received the Arkadelphia Rotary Club's Service-Above-Self Award.

committee which is in search of an associate director for the academy. Dr. Rod McDavis, dean of education at UA-Fayetteville, will serve as director. The day-to-day operations will be overseen by the associate director. The executive committee and directors also will work with an advisory board.

"The unique purpose of the academy is to encourage creative approaches to restructuring education in Arkansas so that we may meet the National Education Goals," said Root.

The National Education Goals, outlined by joint agreement of U.S. President George Bush and the National Governors' Association, call for the accomplishment of the following by the year 2000:

- all children will start school ready to learn;
 - a 90-percent high school graduation rate;
 - competency testing in grades four, eight and 12;
 - U.S. students to be first in the world in mathematics and science;
 - all adults will be literate and have the skills necessary to compete in a global economy; and
 - all schools will be free of drugs and violence.

MISS OBU • April Gosser (third from l.) of North Little Rock was chosen as the new Miss Ouachita Baptist University at the conclusion of the 26th annual pageant held April 11 in Mitchell Hall Auditorium. Runners-up to Gosser were (l. to r.) Christin Smith of Germantown, Tenn., third runner-up; Jennifer Barker of Camden, second runner-up; Gosser; Gladys Joiner of Amity, first runner-up and tied for Miss Congeniality; Michelle Parham of Bearden, fourth runner-up; and Jennifer Sanders of Spring, Texas, co-recipient of Miss Congeniality title.

Ouachita show wins BPR award

A 30-minute television show produced by the public relations office at Ouachita has won a national award in the 1992 Wilmer C. Fields Awards Competition sponsored by the Baptist Public Relations Association (BPR).

Titled "Ouachita," the entertainment and information program goes each month to 11 affiliates of the American Christian Television System (ACTS) in Arkansas and Louisiana. The program was begun in September, 1991.

The program received an honorable mention in the video production (News Report) category of the competition sponsored by the Southern Baptist Convention agency.

Dr. Jeff Root, director of public relations and assistant professor of communications at Ouachita, received the award on behalf of the University at a recent meeting of the BPR held in St. Louis, Mo.

Dave Ozmun, instructor of communications and public relations associate, is the producer and director of the "Ouachita" television program. Root serves as executive producer and co-host of the show.

OUACHITONIAN BEAUTY • Gladys Ann Joiner of Amity, a May graduate in Christian counseling and psychology, was named as the 1992 Ouachitonian Beauty at the conclusion of the 72nd annual contest held April 23. Joiner will be featured in the 1992 Ouachitonian yearbook. First runner-up was Jana Crain, a May graduate in biology from Star City, second runner-up was Jenna Schwalier, a sophomore speech pathology major from Alexandria, Va., third runner-up was Allison Robert, a freshman political science major from Hot Springs, and fourth runner-up was Rebekah Kinney, a junior mathematics major from Fairfax, Va.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

•ARKANSAS SYMPHONY TO PERFORM AT DEDICATION CEREMONY OF JONES PERFORMING ARTS CENTER

A dedication ceremony for the Jones Performing Arts Center will be held Thursday, October 22, at 7 p.m. The dedication ceremony will be followed by the Arkansas Symphony Orchestra in concert. Admission is free and the public is invited to attend.

•OUACHITA ASSIGNED NEW TELEPHONE NUMBER

As of August 10, 1992, Ouachita's general information telephone number will be 245-5000. If you know the extension of an office on campus, you will be able to call that office direct by dialing 245-5 (plus the extension). For example, if the extension is 508, you will be able to reach that office by dialing 245-5508.

Until August 10, the University's number will remain 246-4531.

•VENTURE SET FOR SEPT. 26

Ouachita will host approximately 1,000 senior high church youth group participants from Arkansas and surrounding states for Venture '92 to be held September 26.

Venture '92 will feature a concert by contemporary Christian music group "Truth" and a presentation by Mark Baber, Ouachita's missionary-in-residence for 1992-93. Praise Singers, a student music organization at Ouachita, will also perform.

For more information, contact Ian Cosh.

•OUACHITA STUDENT NAMED STATE BSU VICE PRESIDENT

Rebekah Kinney of Fairfax, Va., a junior mathematics major at Ouachita, has been selected as a student vice president of the Baptist Student Union of the Arkansas Baptist State Convention.

The state BSU is a collection of college and university religious organizations that engage in fostering campus spiritual growth among students.

Fourteen faculty members receive enrichment grants

More than $8,500 has been awarded to 14 Ouachita Baptist University faculty members to support innovative approaches to learning for their students, outside the normal classroom environment, during the 1992-93 academic year. The awards come from the University's Paul and Virginia Henry Academic Enrichment Grant program.

"The enrichment grant program is designed to involve students and faculty members in specific activities outside the classroom setting for the purpose of adding another dimension to the learning process," said Dr. Mike Arrington, vice president for academic affairs. "These educational experiences create an exciting atmosphere at Ouachita. They add something special to the pursuit of knowledge."

The award program is open to all faculty members with reviews of applications being handled by a faculty committee, chaired this year by Dr. Tim Knight, assistant professor of biology. Recommendations from the committee go to Ouachita president Dr. Ben M. Elrod for final approval.

The awards were begun in 1976 by now retired Batesville businessman and 1949 graduate Paul Henry and his wife, Virginia, a former student at Ouachita.

Since the inception of the awards program, more than $135,000 has been awarded to approximately 114 faculty members. Eighty percent of the funds over the course of the years has been expended for educational travel involving approximately 1,200 Ouachita students.

The Paul and Virginia Henry Academic Enrichment Grants for the 1992-93 school year were awarded to:

•Byron Eubanks, assistant professor of philosophy, and Dr. Jim Berryman, professor of religion and philosophy, approved for $260 for travel and to cover expenses for a trip for eight students to the Mid-South Philosophy Conference in Memphis, Tenn.

•Dr. Raouf Halaby, professor of English, given $800 for funds for travel and purchase of tickets for 45 students to the Amon Carter and Kimbell Museums in Fort Worth, Texas.

•Dr. Jeff Pounders, assistant professor of sociology, approved for $1,200 for expenses for 13 students to attend the Corn Island Storytelling Festival in Louisville, Ky.

•Dr. Joe Nix, the W.D. and Alice Burch Professor of Chemistry and Pre-Medical Studies, and Dr. Joe Jeffers, professor of chemistry and biology, approved for $1,200 to take students in the department of chemistry to the Philadelphia Museum of Art, Rodin Museum and the Barnes Foundation Museum.

•Jim Rothwell, assistant professor of accounting, received $500 to take accounting students to visit the University's accounting graduates in the Greater Little Rock area.

•Glenn Good, associate professor of physics, was given a $500 grant to take 10 elementary education majors to the National Science Teachers Association meeting in Kansas City, Mo.

•Nancy Turner, instructor in speech pathology, approved for $400 to help defray some expenses for interested students to attend the American Speech-Language and Hearing Association meeting in San Antonio, Texas.

•Dr. Randy Smith, professor of psychology, is the recipient of a $260 grant for 28 students to attend the Traveling Psychology Exhibition in Dallas, Texas, sponsored by the American Psychological Association.

•Dr. Robert Stagg, the J.C. and Mae Fuller Professor of Bible, granted a sum of $575 to take eight students to the Layne Lectureship Series at New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary.

•Dr. Bill Viser, associate professor of religion and counseling, approved for $864.50 for funds for travel to take Christian counseling majors to tour Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary and meet the faculty of the Division of Behavioral Science in Fort Worth, Texas.

•Dr. Stephen Garner, assistant professor of music, awarded a $558 grant to take 10 students to the Church Music Institute at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky.

Lawson retires after serving 30 years on Ouachita faculty

Marvin A. Lawson, assistant professor of music at Ouachita, was honored at a retirement reception on Wednesday, May 6. Lawson retired this year after having served on the Ouachita faculty since 1962.

In addition to teaching music, Lawson was director of bands at Ouachita from 1962 to 1984. He has spent the last eight years teaching instrumental music at the University.

Four professors awarded sabbatical appointments

Four Ouachita Baptist University faculty members were awarded sabbatical appointments for 1992, according to Dr. Bob Stagg, the J.C. and Mae Fuller Professor of Bible and chairman of the University's sabbatical committee.

Glenn Good, associate professor of physics; Dr. Randolph A. Smith, professor of psychology and chairman of the department of psychology; and Dr. William E. Trantham, the Addie Mae Maddox Professor of Music, each received appointments for summer sabbaticals. Dr. Randall D. Wight, assistant professor of psychology, received an extended sabbatical for summer and fall work.

"The sabbaticals provide an opportunity for re-tooling, keeping abreast in one's field, developing additional expertise, and, in general, doing that which can enable one to be a better teacher," said Stagg.

The awards are on a competitive basis, applied for by each individual, evaluated by a sabbatical committee, and then recommended to Dr. Mike Arrington, vice president for academic affairs, and subsequently to Ouachita president Dr. Ben M. Elrod for final determination of awards.

Each awardee, both summer and extended, received an award from the University in the amount of $3,500 for the sabbatical study.

In addition, the recipient of the extended sabbatical will be relieved from normal teaching duties for the fall semester, with his course load being covered.

Good visited nine observatories in Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Wisconsin and Hawaii to gather material to aid in his teaching of astronomy at Ouachita and to facilitate the use of the University's telescope.

With his sabbatical appointment, Smith, along with a colleague in Kansas, is developing a textbook in the field of experimental psychology. He spent 12 days with experts in the field of psychology at the University of Minnesota-Minneapolis and the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Smith said he also read to update his knowledge on new trends in the field of psychology.

During his sabbatical studies, Trantham attended the International Piano Workshop in Graz, Austria. At the workshop he explored the Alexander Technique, a well-known European method of relieving tension during performance for musicians.

At the workshop, Trantham attended performances by some of the world's best known pianists.

Wight will focus on historical scholarship in psychology, drawn from six archival collections in four cities, for his extended sabbatical period.

He will study at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., at the Library of Congress in Washington, Columbia University in New York City, City of Boston Public Library, New York Public Library, and the Harvard University Archives in Cambridge, Mass. Wight said he may also make a study trip to Yale University in New Haven, Conn. to examine professional papers.

"The sabbatical appointments awarded to these distinguished professors will be of benefit to both them and their students in future classes," Stagg said.

NEWSMAKERS

Jean Baker has been designated as one of Follett College Stores' "Finest." The award plaque for excellence in customer service, along with a cash prize, were presented to Baker recently by John Carbona, regional manager of the Elmhurst, Ill.-based corporation.

Baker, an accounting clerk, has been an employee of the Ouachita bookstore for the past 17 years.

Dr. Fran Coulter, associate professor of history at Ouachita, received an appointment from the National Endowment for the Humanities to attend an Institute for College Teachers at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., May 31-June 26.

Led by Dr. Lyle Zineville, the Institute explored the topic "The Greek Character: Warrior, Citizen, Thinker." Twenty-five college and university history professors from across the nation attended the meeting.

Harold Johnson, director of student financial aid at Ouachita, has been named to the Federal Aid Policy Committee Response Network of the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators.

The national committee will "review, analyze and/or evaluate and respond to regulative, legislative and programmatic issues" developed by the United States Congress and/or the U.S. Department of Education.

Johnson became an active member of the committee on July 1 and will conclude his term of service on June 30, 1993.

Dr. Bob Stagg, the J.C. and Mae F. Fuller Professor of Bible at Ouachita, has been elected vice president of the National Association of Baptist Professors of Religion, Southwestern Region for the 1992-93 academic year. He will become president of the organization the following year.

When Stagg assumes the presidency, it will mark the second time that he will have served in the post, having directed the organization during the 1975-76 academic year. It will be the first time in the history of the group that a person has been elected to the position for a second time.

Ouachita athletic director Bill Vining has been re-elected to the NAIA Council of District Chairs, according to Charlie Epper of Kansas City, Mo., coordinator of the agency.

The Council of District Chairs is composed of representatives from colleges and universities across the nation, who represent at the district level, the athletic interests and desires of the 460 fully accredited, four-year institutions of higher education.

Vining currently serves as chairman of NAIA District 17.

Commencement Address

By Dr. J. Scott Duvall

Assistant Professor of Religion

Dr. Scott Duvall was selected by the senior class to address the graduates at spring commencement on May 9. The following is the text of that speech.

Mr. President, distinguished guests, and students: rest assured that I will not need the full hour to deliver this address—five minutes will do. Seniors, you have honored me by giving me the opportunity to speak the final word from your faculty. May my message be clear, meaningful, pleasing to God, and worthy of the endorsement of my colleagues and honor that you have bestowed.

One afternoon last November, Nov. 12th to be exact, I heard a knock at my office door. Given the location of my office, a knock at the door is the rule rather than the exception. At the door stood a member of your 1992 graduating class, Carolyn Brooks, along with her friend Missy Collier and a couple of concerned onlookers. What happened next happened quickly, but made a lasting impression on me. I invited the small congregation into my office and as the door was closing, Carolyn made her announcement. She said, "I have cancer." Everyone at church and school had expected the biopsy results to be negative. No one was ready for our friend to have Hodgkin's disease. In the cluttered office of one who makes a living with words, no words could be found. Where are words when you need them? It is at times like these, times when words are inappropriate and inadequate, that tears and hugs take over. It is at times like these that teachers learn the most from their students. On that November afternoon I experienced a vivid reminder that life is fragile and all of us are vulnerable.

On this May afternoon, as you come to the close of an early chapter in life's book, perhaps you are experiencing feelings of pride, excitement, accomplishment, and expectation. In the midst of your achievement, because even college seniors are vulnerable and because life is fragile, I urge you to invest your life in what really matters — in relationships!

In the 12 years since I graduated from Ouachita, the words of my late seminary

*"In the midst of your achievement, because even college seniors are vulnerable and because life is fragile,
I urge you to invest your life in what really matters -- in relationships!"*

professor Oscar Thompson have proved true: "The most important word in the English language ... is relationship." As you reflect on your life, you will notice that most of the crisis times were created by damaged or broken or severed relationships. You will also notice that the wonderful times of joy and happiness, of warmth and security, are anchored in solid, healthy relationships.

In ten to twelve years, when you reflect on your OBU experience, you will not remember the lecture so much as the lecturer.

Long after the detailed outlines have faded from memory, you will recall relationships. Relationships with the members of your intramural basketball team or the person you dated your freshman year or your suite mates or your dorm mom.

Once again, because life is so very fragile, I urge you to make people a priority. At present, much of our world is broken and damaged because many of the decision makers love things and use people. Choose rather to use things and love people. After all, people last forever. Things do not!

I salute those who will make their spouse priority over their job.

I respect those who will treat their children as more important than climbing the career ladder.

I pay tribute to those who will place the welfare of their co-workers above their own personal advancement.

I honor those who will make a genuine commitment to participate in their local church and community.

The OBU liberal arts education has made you more like a decathlete than a shot putter or a high jumper. You have a responsibility to use your abilities and well-rounded education to accomplish and achieve for the glory of God, but never at the expense of people. Life is fragile and even college graduates in their 20s are vulnerable. Invest your life in what really matters. Invest it in relationships!

Ouachita awarded grant for drug/alcohol prevention program

Ouachita has been awarded a $227,604 grant from the U.S. Department of Education for the purpose of creating a drug and alcohol education and prevention program for 14 school districts in southwest Arkansas.

Ouachita will work with the Southwest Arkansas Educational Cooperative in Hope to train teachers and improve drug education curriculum in the school districts of Hempstead, Miller, Lafayette and Nevada counties. More than 1,500 teachers, administrators, counselors and other school personnel will participate in the two-year project.

Dr. Ralph Ford, professor of education at Ouachita, will direct the Southwest Arkansas Drug Education Project (SWADE).

"This project will reach elementary and high school students through innovative teaching strategies and the most modern curriculum in the area of drug education and prevention," said Ford. "We hope this will become a national model for training school personnel in rural areas to prevent drug and alcohol abuse.

"I think it is especially appropriate that Ouachita be chosen to receive this grant. This certainly is the kind of program that is in keeping with Ouachita's goals and objectives as a Christian institution," said

Ford.

The program, which will begin in September, is designed to give special attention to at-risk students. Of the 15,702 students who will be enrolled in SWADE, almost one-half will come from low-income families.

Mary Root of Arkadelphia will serve as program adviser. Several Ouachita faculty and staff members and public school personnel will assist as curriculum consultants. They will perform a variety of tasks, from preparing SWADE materials and leading workshops to providing on-site assistance in classes.

Ten faculty grants awarded to assist professional growth

Ten professors at Ouachita have been awarded grants totaling $7,500 for study during the 1992-93 academic year, designed to aid each faculty member's individual professional growth plan. The awards were made by the Ouachita Faculty Development Committee and approved by president Dr. Ben M. Elrod.

Awards went to:

•Dr. Jeff Pounders, assistant professor of sociology, who received an $800 award to attend a Purdue University workshop on "Computers in Sociology."

•Dave Ozmun, instructor in communications and public relations associate, who received an $800 award to attend the International Film and Television Workshop in Rockport, Maine.

•Byron Eubanks, assistant professor of philosophy, who received an $800 award to attend a workshop on the subject of ethics at Colorado College in Colorado Springs, Colo.

•Dr. Tim Knight, assistant professor of biology, who received a $500 award to attend a Chautauqua Faculty Workshop on "Critical Thinking" to be held in Memphis, Tenn.

•Dr. Doug Reed, associate professor of political science, received an $800 award to attend a faculty workshop on "Undergraduate Instruction in Data Analysis in Political Science" at Ohio State University.

•Lavell Cole, professor of history, received an $800 award for a study on communalism, with visits to Kentucky, Indiana and Pennsylvania.

•Dr. Tom Auffenberg, professor of history, received a $1,000 award to attend a faculty development seminar in Ulster, Northern Ireland.

•Russell Hodges, assistant professor of music, received a $500 award for graduate work in music librarianship at the University of North Texas at Denton.

•Nancy Turner, instructor in speech pathology, received a $500 award to study nasoendoscopy in Reno, Nev.

•Dr. David Dennis, assistant professor of music, received a $1,000 award to attend the University of Maryland Institutional Piano Festival and William Kapell Competition.

Baker, Keck spend summer in creative research endeavors

Two Ouachita Baptist University faculty members, Verna Baker and Dr. George Keck, have been awarded 1992 summer research grants of $3,500 each to provide for a period of concentrated research and creative endeavors in their respective academic disciplines. The announcement was made by Ouachita president Dr. Ben M. Elrod and Dr. Doug Reed, chairman of the Institution's Faculty Research Committee.

"In general, research can be described as a process which may result in the discovery of new knowledge, the substantiation of previously held concepts, or the rejection of tenets which have been widely acclaimed," said Reed. "For these proposals, research is so defined."

Baker, assistant professor of home economics, is pursuing a study titled "A Study of Factors That Influence an Individual's Choice of Dietetics as a Profession in Arkansas."

Keck's topic centers on 20th century French composer Francis Poulenc titled, "The Stage Works of Francis Poulenc: A Musical and Cultural Study."

CONTINUING EDUCATION • Dr. Jim Berryman, professor of religion and philosophy at Ouachita, leads an Elderhostel session titled "The Ways and Wisdom of China." Elderhostel, an educational program for older adults held May 31-June 6, was under the direction of Dr. Richard Mills, chairman of the department of sociology.

Eighteen faculty, administrative staff members attend national conference

Eighteen members of the faculty and administrative staff at Ouachita attended the National Conference on Integrating Faith and Discipline, June 22-24, at Samford University in Birmingham, Ala.

The conference was the capstone of a five-year training emphasis on integrating personal faith and academic disciplines on Southern Baptist campuses and was sponsored by the Education Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention and the Association of Southern Baptist Colleges and Universities.

Conference leaders from Ouachita were Dr. Mike Arrington, vice president for academic affairs, and Dr. Tom Greer, the Clarence and Bennie Sue Anthony Professor of Bible and the Humanities.

Other Ouachita faculty and staff members taking part in the conference were: Dr. Ben M. Elrod, president; Dr. Don Anderson, the Harvey Jones

Professor of Business and Transportation Studies; Dr. Bill Steeger, the W.O. Vaught Professor of Bible; Dr. Roy Buckelew, professor of speech; Dr. Hal Bass, professor of political science; Ian Cosh, director of religious activities and director of the Baptist Student Union; Dr. Tom Turner, the Charles S. and Elma Grey Goodwin Holt Professor of Physics and Pre-Medical Studies; Dr. Jim Berryman, professor of religion and philosophy; Dr. Charles Wright, dean of the Ouachita School of Music and professor of music; Dr. Jake Shambarger, professor of education; Dr. Bill Ellis, professor of English; Dr. Tim Knight, assistant professor of biology; Dr. Ray Granade, director of library services and professor of history; Dr. William D. Downs Jr., professor of communications; Nancy Turner, instructor in speech pathology; and Dr. Randall Wight, associate professor of psychology.

The Financial Adviser

Ouachita Baptist University • Arkadelphia, Arkansas 71998 • Summer 1992

John Cloud
DIRECTOR OF
GIVING

Several months ago, Ouachita received a gift from the estate of Pete Parks of Tupelo, Oklahoma. Mr. Parks was a former student who parlayed hard work and savvy into a large estate consisting of land, minerals, livestock, and various business interests. His legacy to Ouachita will not be fully realized for years, but the amount received to this point has been used to endow three separate funds and help with campus beautification projects.

Estate gifts have made a huge difference in Ouachita's programs over the years, especially in the last decade or so. Through their estate plans, donors have funded several endowed chairs and scholarship funds that generate significant income every year. Named endowments honor the donors and provide a reliable source of income to be used as the donors direct through their wills or trusts.

Whatever the amount, estate gifts are vital for maintaining Ouachita's margin of excellence. Realizing this truth, many alumni and friends have included Ouachita in their long-range plans through wills, trusts, insurance policies, annuities and other means. Currently there are over 270 families or individuals enrolled in the Second Century Group, a fellowship of those who

Estate Planning:

More than a set of legal documents

As we accumulate possessions, we become better at managing them. With a lifetime of experience we can determine with relative ease with whom we want to share what we have earned and how we want to share it. We call this acquired skill financial management.

Once we are gone, the task of handling our possessions takes on a new complexion. The accumulation of possessions over a lifetime is called an estate and its disposition is called estate settlement. Estates are settled with or without our guidance. The process available to those who want a direct hand in the disposition and management of their possessions after their death is called estate planning.

Estate planning is not a trial-and-error learning process like financial management. Planning is made difficult by the fact that we must face with sobering reality the inevitable fate awaiting each of us. Such action is something easy to put off or ignore. The finality of death makes it important to have guidance in planning, for after death it's impossible to make plans or adjust them.

In other ways, however, estate planning is easier than managing our earnings while alive. The tools available are flexible and provide the opportunity for constant adjustment.

The will is the basic element in the estate plan. By using the appropriate legal phrasing, your will can ensure that nothing is overlooked, and that your estate passes to those you wish in the desired proportion and with any appropriate restrictions. Without the will, the state will make these decisions for you without the benefit of discussing your desires with you. Your will can and should be updated frequently.

The trust is a means to manage your assets on behalf of another person or organization that you choose. This

Avoid confusion about your health-care wishes

Are you confused about what to do now in case of an incapacitating accident so your doctor and your family will know what you want done, if you are no longer able to tell them?

You are not alone. Americans have been overwhelmed with advice about the need for a power of attorney and a living will. And now a new federal law requires a hospital to inquire whether a patient has executed a health-care "advance directive."

This directive refers to your written instructions — a living will or durable power of attorney, recognized under state law — which express your wishes about your health care should you become unable to do so.

LET YOUR WISHES BE KNOWN

Modern medicine is miraculous, but unfortunately some patients may end their lives on life-support machines because of state law or custom. This may not have been their choice.

Your best hope of avoiding this fate is a living will, which allows you to exercise your right to refuse such treatment. For stronger protection, you should execute a health-care durable power of attorney, authorizing a relative to issue the order ending life-support treatment. In states lacking legislative intent, this cannot hurt and might even help.

Unless you put limitations on it, a health-care power of attorney — also called a "health-care proxy" — is more flexible than a living will and addresses all medical treatment. It allows you to include specific instructions to your agent regarding methods of treatment.

You can also execute a separate durable power of attorney appointing a trusted individual to pay your bills and protect your finances in the event you become incapacitated — without the expensive and time-consuming red-tape of formal court approval.

SEEK PROFESSIONAL HELP BEFORE ACTING

Most states now have living will statutes. About half have health-care proxy laws.

To make sure your wishes will be respected, consult your health care provider. Statutory forms may be available to ensure conformity to state law and court precedents. If these documents are not otherwise available, consult your attorney. Then let your family and doctor know about your decisions, so they will be honored.

have made some type of estate provision for Ouachita. This group meets annually on campus to enjoy a banquet and have a generally good time together.

Have you thought of Ouachita as a beneficiary in your planning? A gift through your estate can serve as a lasting memorial to you and your family, and benefit young people for possibly centuries to come. If applicable in your situation, an estate gift may save a substantial sum in taxes, reducing the cost of the gift significantly. We want to know about your plans for Ouachita so we can include you in the Second Century Group and convey our appreciation.

If you have questions concerning your estate planning, please call me at 501-245-5169 or write OBU Box 3754, Arkadelphia, AR 71998-0001.

Estate Planning

allows you to direct an estate to those you see fit but provide for control of it. As an example, a trust can be established that provides surviving relatives monthly income from your estate for a specified time or until their death. At that time, the remainder interests could be passed to a charitable organization. A trustee manages these assets for you, carrying out your plan on behalf of another.

Life insurance policies are part of your estate. Often they are purchased for purposes that have been outlived. What remains is an asset that has a value at your death far beyond its cost in life. This asset often is overlooked and deserves special management in your estate.

Deferred employee benefits such as pensions or group insurance are estate assets worthy of special management as well.

Buy-sell agreements are valuable tools in an estate. For example, a part owner of a business partnership can indicate in advance of his/her death exactly how the interest or property will be sold to the other owners. These arrangements can include distribution schedules, terms of sale and method of payment.

The feeling often exists that estate planning is a good idea only for the very wealthy. The tendency is also to overlook the extent of what you own. Estate planning looks past the glitter of stocks and bonds into home equity, insurance policies and employee benefits. Assets may seem easily disposed of through joint ownership or other state laws, but those solutions may be short-sighted and often dangerous.

CAMPAIGN PLANNING - Vice President for Development Andy Westmoreland and Development Officer Margaret Wright discuss the Decade of Progress Campaign. The University is at the mid-point of the three-year campaign. The remainder of the campaign will involve alumni, Little Rock, Arkadelphia and Dallas/Fort Worth.

Helping a parent financially through cash gifts, home purchase

Do you have a parent—or perhaps both parents—who need financial assistance? Parental income from social security, a company pension, and personal investments may not be enough. If this is the case, what's the best way for you to help?

Just bringing up the subject may be hard. Parents are often sensitive about discussing personal finances with their children, finding it difficult to accept such advice from offspring. However, they may be relieved to know that a child is showing an interest in their problems.

When you find the right time to broach the matter, here are some possible financial solutions and their federal tax implications.

DIRECT CASH GIFTS

Clearly a gift of cash is the easiest way to help a parent. If your support is sufficient, you may even be able to claim the parent as a dependent, entitling you to an extra exemption.

For gift tax purposes, the first $10,000 in gifts made to any one person during each calendar year is not a taxable transfer. A married donor may "split" a gift with his or her spouse, doubling the annual exclusion to $20,000. There's an unlimited gift tax exclusion for qualified payments for medical care.

BUYING A PARENT'S HOME

By purchasing the residence of a parent and renting it back, you can get tax benefits and your parent can obtain additional cash while staying in familiar surroundings. You acquire a valuable asset that may appreciate in value. You can depreciate the home and claim other writeoffs that offset the cost of the purchase.

Your parent, if 55 or older, may not be taxed on part or all of any capital gain because of the once-in-a-lifetime exclusion for up to $125,000 of gain on the sale of a principal residence.

Under this plan you would buy the home at its market value, making an adequate down payment and securing a mortgage from a bank for the balance. You then rent the home to your parent for its fair rental value. You assume all the home costs, such as taxes, insurance, and maintenance.

Your parent can invest the proceeds or use them to purchase a commercial annuity yielding an income to meet the rent and other living expenses. You would make the monthly mortgage payments, but possibly at little or no out-of-pocket cost because of the rental income and the tax savings from depreciation.

As an alternative to outside financing you might ask your parent to give a purchase money mortgage for part or all of the purchase price. The interest is imputed at 100% of the applicable federal rate, determined by Treasury regulations. This arrangement must be carefully implemented by an attorney in order to survive IRS scrutiny.

NO PERFECT ANSWERS

There is seldom an easy way to help a parent financially. Feelings may be hurt or the plan may seem complex. But the need may be great.

In these circumstances our representative, along with your legal and accounting advisers, may be able to provide a happy solution.

Put a memo with your will

Would you like to write a letter to your heirs and keep it with your will?

Perhaps you want to say something that's too personal to put in your will. Or maybe you want to give your executor (personal representative) some special instructions without cluttering or elongating your will.

You can do this. And it's a good idea, especially because your will, once it's probated, becomes a public document.

WHEN A MEMO IS USEFUL

In most states a valid will must follow very strict requirements of signing and witnessing. Moreover, departing from precise legal language that has been interpreted by the courts can result in costly and lengthy disputes.

Yet, there are times when personal instructions and comments outside your will can be extremely useful.

- You can leave a memorandum of your wishes about the disposition of certain articles of tangible personal property such as furniture and jewelry.
- You can explain your motives for certain will provisions.
- You can suggest ways to handle or sell special assets, such as works of art, rare books, stamps and coin collections — or even a closely held business.
- You can state your wishes about funeral and burial arrangements.

OBSERVE THESE SAFEGUARDS

Your executor is not legally bound to comply with a memorandum prepared after you execute your will. You assume that your executor and family members will feel morally obligated to carry out your wishes.

There is no set form for a memo or letter of instruction, but it should be dated and signed, and should not contradict the terms of your will. The memo should be kept in a place known and immediately accessible to your survivors. Remember to update it whenever your wishes change or you dispose of any items listed in the memo.

It's advisable to put a clause in your will making reference to a memorandum you may leave.

Be sure to ask your attorney what instructions you can safely leave outside your will.

PRESIDENT'S
Dennis Dodson
President
Former Students Association

The reason a new face and a new name occupy the President's Corner is Phil Hardin's move back to Ouachita as assistant to the president and director of alumni affairs. Though I cannot say I am comfortable sitting in the President's seat, I can say I am very pleased about Phil being our liaison at Ouachita. As the saying goes, I couldn't have done better if I had picked him myself. He is very suitable for the role he has assumed. As always, I will enjoy working with him.

Consideration of the position of director of alumni affairs brings to memory two dear friends who served in it with great distinction. Carbon Sims retired from that position shortly before his death, which was 25 months to the day on which I am writing this article. Carbon had served on the church staff with me here at Monticello. I have no higher regard or affection for any other man. I miss his friendship and fellowship.

The other person who held the office and whom I hold in high esteem is Mrs. Agnes Coppenger. I continue to have fellowship with her and Dr. Coppenger as they come to Monticello to visit their daughter Susan and her family. It is my joy to serve as the pastor for Susan, her husband Mike Akin, and their two children, John and Rebecca. Susan is one of several Ouachitonians in our church.

I am anxious as I approach my new responsibilities. As you know, anxious has the aspects of being eager and earnest, but also uneasy. I have always been eager and earnest about Ouachita. Many of my life's most significant relationships and enjoyable experiences have come to me as a student and supporter of Ouachita. I know that serving as president of the Former Students Association will broaden and deepen the relationships and the experiences. I do look forward to our future association.

Uneasy, too, is another way I feel. This past year, the Advisory Board of the FSA has been working with Andy Westmoreland on the development of the Alumni Weekend. This is a tremendous project for Ouachita and the alumni. I am certain it will be a marvelous event when it takes place. In the meantime, it will be an enormous task for those who bring it about. I felt very comfortable with Phil and Andy in the harness. Suddenly, I found myself in that harness. Uneasy as I am being there, I am committed to work as hard as I can for Ouachita and for you, who are absent in the body but there in the spirit. Hopefully, we will see each other soon on campus. In the meantime, keep me on your hearts.

Hardin joins administrative staff

Phil Hardin has been named assistant to the president and director of alumni affairs at Ouachita. Dr. Ben M. Elrod, president of the University, made the announcement.

Hardin, a 1973 Ouachita graduate, joins the Ouachita staff from Central Baptist Church in Magnolia, where he served as minister of music for the past six years.

"We are pleased that Phil has joined us in this vital position," said Elrod. "He has been involved in our alumni efforts for some time, and to add him in this role will be a strong asset to the university."

Hardin has recently served as president of the Former Students Association at Ouachita. "I'm excited about being part of Ouachita's growing work with alumni and former students," said Hardin. "It seems very natural for me to come back to Ouachita to work with alumni, as well as being involved in helping prepare our present students to be leaders in tomorrow's world."

"I have been particularly impressed with Ouachita's development in recent years," said Hardin. "The students have tremendous new opportunities to gain leadership skills."

The position of assistant to the president and director of alumni affairs has been vacant since Andy Westmoreland left the job in January to become vice president for development at Ouachita. Hardin's job description includes assisting Elrod in all major areas of administration. He will also lead the alumni office in a variety of activities, from the traditional homecoming celebration to new events such as the first Alumni Weekend scheduled for March 5-6, 1993.

Hardin, a native of Little Rock, majored in music at Ouachita with an emphasis in voice. He has a master of music degree from the University of Texas-Austin. He served as minister of music at churches in Siloam Springs, North Little Rock and Paragould before spending six years in Magnolia.

Hardin is married to the former Shirley Grant, a 1974 Ouachita graduate and daughter of OBU President Emeritus Dr. Daniel R. Grant and his wife, Betty Jo. The Hardins have two sons. Tad will be a sophomore at Arkadelphia High School this fall and Jonathan will be a fourth grader at Peake Elementary School.

Memories in the making

For members of the class of '92 it was a weekend to say good-bye to friends and faculty. For members of the class of '42 it was a weekend to get reacquainted with friends they said good-bye to 50 years ago.

The commencement weekend activities began on Friday with a picnic supper for graduates at the home of Ouachita President Dr. Ben Elrod and his wife, Betty.

That evening, 85 members of the class of 1942 and preceding classes attended the Gold Tiger Banquet. Class president Johnny Mowrey led his fellow Ouachitonians through an evening of reminiscing about their days as Ouachita students.

A baccalaureate service was held Saturday morning. The speaker for the ceremony was Dr. T. W. Hunt of Nashville, Tenn., prayer consultant for the Sunday School Board of the Southern Baptist Convention. At the Former Students Association luncheon, Hunt was presented the Distinguished Alumnus Award for meritorious service to the University and to society.

Four students were commissioned as second lieutenants in the United States Army during the ROTC Commissioning Service. The ceremony was directed by LTC(Ret.) Bill McCrary, an adjunct faculty member at Ouachita and former Professor of Military Science at the University.

Two hundred and thirty-nine students received undergraduate degrees from Ouachita during spring commencement held in the Sturgis Physical Education Center.

Speaking at commencement and representing the graduates was senior class president Lance Faddis, a biology major from Prairie Grove. The faculty speaker, elected by the senior class, was Dr. Scott Duvall, assistant professor of religion.

At the commencement exercise, Ouachita awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree to Judge Edward Maddox of Harrisburg, a long-time friend and benefactor of the University.

Men's tennis team earns AIC championship crown

Thirteen turned out to be a lucky number for the Ouachita men's tennis team as the Tigers clinched the AIC championship for the first time since 1979.

"I am thrilled for the school and very proud of a fine group of young men and players," said Ouachita coach Craig Ward. "This was one of our goals at the start of the season."

Ouachita ended its year with a perfect 8-0 conference record and 20-4 for the season.

Three Ouachita men's tennis players, Torbjorn Enquist of Stockholm, Sweden, Jay Heflin of Little Rock and Michael Molin of Halmstad, Sweden, have been named to the 1992 All-AIC Tennis Team.

Enquist, Jay Heflin and Marc Heflin competed in the singles competition at the NAIA Men's Tennis Championship May 18-23 at Rockhill Country Club in Kansas City, Mo. Each was defeated in the first round of action. The Heflin brothers also competed in doubles competition, but were eliminated after the first round as well.

Kehner, Davis selected by coaches as outstanding Ouachita athletes

Ouachita athletes were honored at the school's annual Athletic Banquet held recently. The banquet is sponsored by the Ouachita Student Senate to honor all participants in varsity and club sports and to recognize outstanding athletes in the sports.

Two athletes, one male and one female, were singled-out as the best on campus during the 1991-92 sports season.

Mark Kehner, a senior health and physical education major, was selected by the Ouachita athletic department coaching staff as recipient of the prestigious Bob Lambert Memorial Award given to the Outstanding Male Athlete. The award is provided by Beta Beta men's social club and is given to the male athlete who, in the opinion of the coaches, best demonstrates the traits of Christian witness, desire to win, sportsmanship and athletic ability.

Mark Kehner

Kehner, an All America slotback for the Ouachita Tiger football team, was twice named to the All AIC team and was an Academic All America performer for his junior and senior years.

He is a 1988 graduate of Magnet Cove High School.

Shelley Davis

The Outstanding Woman Athlete Award at Ouachita for the 1991-92 academic year was presented to Shelley Davis, a senior health and physical education major from Clinton.

Davis played forward for the Lady Tiger basketball team. She was the squad's leading scorer and assist leader in her senior season. Davis was selected for All AIC honors in 1991 and 1992, and was an NAIA All District 17 selection her senior year.

Davis is a 1988 graduate of Heber Springs High School.

SULLIVAN RECEIVES AIC BASEBALL HONOR

Wes Sullivan of El Dorado, a junior catcher for the Ouachita baseball team, has been named to the 15-member 1992 First Team All-AIC baseball squad. Two other Tiger baseball players, David Runsick, a senior outfielder from North Little Rock, and Andy Jayroe, a junior outfielder from Carrollton, Texas, were named to the Honorable Mention Team.

Ouachita baseball coach Van Barrett served as coach of the South team at the 1992 AIC All Star Baseball Game at Ray Winder Field in Little Rock, May 5.

The team finished the season 14-29 overall and 8-16 in AIC competition.

THREE GOLFERS NAMED ALL DISTRICT

The Ouachita golf team finished the season in a tie for fourth place with Southern Arkansas University in the 1992 AIC golf race. Arkansas Tech University won the conference title with 51 points, while Henderson State University represented the NAIA District 17 at the national tournament.

Ouachita's Bentley Blackmon, a junior from DeQueen, ended the year in the 10th spot among the league's top 20 golfers. Fellow golfer Eddie Ramsey, a senior from Bismarck, placed 14th.

Blackmon, Ramsey and Todd Denton, a junior from Sparkman, were named to the NAIA All District 17 golf team.

TWO LADY NETTERS RECEIVE AIC HONORS

Shanon Brunner of Richardson, Texas, a senior member of Ouachita's women's tennis team, has been selected by coaches in the AIC as a member of the seven-player 1992 All AIC Women's Tennis Team. Amy Rader, a senior from DeSoto, Texas, was chosen for the Honorable Mention Team.

The team, coached by Tona Wright, finished the season in fifth place with a 5-7 conference record, and 5-8 overall.

SHINN NAMED ALL AMERICA IN SHOT PUT

With 71 points, the Ouachita track and field team finished fourth in the 1992 AIC Track and Field Championship Meet held at Harding University May 2. Defending AIC track champs University of Central Arkansas defended its title with 154 points.

Kris Shinn, a business administration major, won his second All America designation of the year in placing fourth in the shot put at the 41st annual NAIA Outdoor Track and Field Championship Meet held in Burnaby, British Columbia, Canada.

In the winter, Shinn received the same recognition at the NAIA Indoor Track and Field Championship Meet in Kansas City, Mo.

In addition to Shinn, those named to the 1992 All-AIC track and field team were John Kelley, a health and physical education major from Oklahoma City, Okla., and Reggie Sumpter, a business administration major from Heber Springs.

How I Became a Poet

by David Ortiz

Poetry. Since I first began to discern that the strange lines that crawled across paper had some meaning, I have known about poetry. From the first simple phrases I learned to comprehend (the movie advertisements so I could know which cartoon was currently on screen) to the stunning (I thought) achievement of reading Tolstoy's War And Peace in one week (I was convalescing in bed), I have been reading poems. During grade school, I was forced to memorize them. During high school, I was forced to analyze them. And yet, I never learned to like them. I never could think of a reason for the indifference that poems created in me, as my ability to psychoanalyze myself was somewhat limited. And so I continued my daily existence as a member of the I-don't-care-for-poems society.

But one sleepy day, while reading an essay for English class, I was suddenly hit as if with a baseball bat. There, right before me was the answer to my lifelong problem. From the pages of Richard Howey's "How to Write A Poem with Almost no Effort" sprang the answer I had been looking for all my life. I didn't care for poetry because I thought I couldn't write it. Deciding to do something about my inhibition, I faced a new problem: what should I do? But I needed to look no further than the next paragraph in my reading. There, with surprising generosity, Howey gave me a formula with which to write my own poem.

The idea of being able to place my name alongside great poets such as Shakespeare and Frost appealed greatly to me. I pursued my reading in order to grasp every detail of the art of writing poems. In doing so I discovered that, in another magnanimous display, Howey had even suggested a four-line model which I had only to transcribe and polish with a few original phrases. He also presented me with several ideas as to which words and literary devices to use. Unusual nouns that were out of context should be employed. Since by definition unusual and out of context can mean almost anything, that part would present no problem. Also, a reference to two senses in the same line should be included in the poem. This was easily accomplished since, as the author himself noted, there are five senses and joining two of them requires only a meager amount of ingenuity. A reference to the future is desirable in the last line. Since no one can foretell the future, this can be accomplished safely with almost anything. And so, after committing these ideas to memory, I decided to write my poem, which I humbly submit to the reader:

In the hard disk drive of my mind,
I smelled the light of your voice.
I wrote down my morning appointments.
Maybe my grades will go up next semester

Although it is a rotten poem, it is a poem nonetheless. I am proud of my creation, although I admit it is highly unlikely that any of my grandchildren will ever read this poem in a literature class. Now, whenever I find myself surrounded by free spirits whose only medium of expressing their innermost feelings is poetry, I can rightly join in their conversation and not feel an outsider in their midst. Perhaps if my grades don't go up and I'm forced to leave school, I can join a rock band and earn torrents of money writing song lyrics. For now that I am a poet, anything is possible.

Ortiz, a sophomore this fall from Pine Bluff, wrote this essay as an assignment in Freshman Composition. His essay is included in Assayers: A Journal Dedicated to the Art of the Essay, published by the Department of English at Ouachita. The preface to the journal reads, "Assayers are people who examine something. They may also be people who try something. The assayers in this book have tried to write about what they have examined. Assayers is a word that derives from the French verb essayer, 'to try.' This verb is the root word for essay, a word which originally meant 'an attempt, a try.' We hope you enjoy these essays by our intrepid assayers." The Vol. I, Fall 1992 edition is available by writing the Department of English, Ouachita Baptist University, P.O. Box 3790, Arkadelphia, AR 71998-0001. Cost is $3 per copy.
