A Word from the President ...

October 30 will be a special day for one of the most important people at Ouachita. That person is Rosemary Chu, who has served as the Hall Director for Frances Crawford West for the past 36 years. Generations of Ouachitonians have known her as Mom Chu. Please give me a couple of minutes to tell you the story.

Rosemary slipped out of China in 1950 with no documents of any kind to live in Hong Kong with her uncle and his family. When her uncle was invited to the United States for a teaching assignment, Rosemary prepared to join the family on the trip across the ocean. After traveling to Taiwan to obtain a special visa, she was ready to depart.

The party sailed from Hong Kong in October, 1951. Rosemary's uncle and aunt sailed first class, but she and her cousins traveled third class in the bottom of the boat. (She still remembers that she preferred third class because they served Chinese food, whereas only American food was available in first class.) During the voyage a typhoon caused rough conditions on the ship for about 24 hours. Rosemary was seasick and afraid that the boat would tip over. She vowed never to board an ocean liner again. Fifty years later, she remains true to that promise.

The boat docked in San Francisco on October 30, 1951. The family was met by officials from the U. S. Department of State, then they went to an area hotel. Rosemary was met by a lady from the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, who saw that she had accommodations at the YWCA and later took her to meet her train to travel to college in Ohio.

The rest of the story, as Paul Harvey would say, is told in the book co-authored by Rosemary with Lou Ann Locke, Rosemary: A Journey from East to West. Among the most touching passages in the book are Rosemary's expressions of her love for her husband, Dr. Finley Chu, and their daughter, Jane.

On Tuesday, October 30, during our weekly chapel program, we'll have a brief time of recognition of Mom Chu's fifty years in the United States. Perhaps you would like to send a greeting to her on that occasion. Her Ouachita box number is 3719.

Aren't you glad that God led Rosemary Chu to the United States ... and to Ouachita?

Andy Westmoreland

world study

Program by William D. Downs, Jr.

What began as a pie-in-the-sky idea 10 years ago – sending a group of OBU mass communications students on an unprecedented around-the-world study tour to gather information for in-depth stories from seasoned journalists in Time magazine bureaus and other sources – has become a reality for the second time in three years.

Thanks to the J.D. Patterson Around-the-World Study Program, named in honor of the Searcy dentist and 1947 Ouachita graduate who made it all possible, six students spent 31 days this summer on a journey that took them to Beijing, Cairo, Dubai, Istanbul, Izmir, Ephesus, Athens, Rome, Salzburg, Copenhagen and London.

Chosen by a panel of mass communications faculty members and Dr. Patterson, the students included: Melissa Bragg, Sheridan: Issues concerning crime and punishment; Tilly Carter, Arkadelphia: Developing technology in the news industry;

Brent Gambill, Paragould: The place of Christianity in world religions; Erica Kimbrough, Hot Springs: Poverty and how the problem is being addressed; Katie Kirkpatrick, Little Rock: How the world perceives the recent U.S. presidential transition from Bill Clinton to George W. Bush; and Carrie Talbert, Benton: Technology and its use in grades K-12. The overall theme of the tour concerned global views of America as we enter the 21st century.

By the time they returned to the United States on June 20, the students had interviewed Time bureau chiefs in Beijing, Cairo, Rome and London, the editor of Copenhagen's Berlingski Tidende, the largest and oldest (1749) newspaper in Denmark, students at Koc University in Istanbul and anyone else who would stand still long enough to answer some questions.

Final drafts of their in-depth stories, now being written, will later be shared with the Time staff members as they have requested, the Berlingski Tidende in Copenhagen, students with whom they met at Koc University and finally with local news media for later publication.

When students were not interviewing story sources, they were doing some serious sightseeing that ranged from climbing the Great Wall and touring the Forbidden City in China, to riding camels in Egypt, visiting Istanbul's Blue Mosque and Topkapi Palace, viewing the Parthenon in Athens and taking a one-day cruise through the lovely Greek Isles of Aegina, Hydra and Porus; walking in the footsteps of the apostles Paul and John in Ephesus, touring the Roman Forum and watching Pope John Paul preside over the canonization of five new saints in St. Peter's Square; enjoying the beauty of the Tivoli Gardens in Copenhagen and touring Westminster Abbey and the National Art Gallery in London.

They also enjoyed some Ouachita and Arkadelphia connections: William Chiu, our guide in Beijing, is a Chinese-American business executive whose son attends Arkadelphia High School; Su Ling, who taught Chinese at OBU last year, joined us in Beijing for a dinner of Peking Duck. In Istanbul, OBU graduate Reyhan Diker and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Diker, showed us around the city and treated us to a traditional Turkish dinner in their home. In Copenhagen, Ove Vang Jensen and his wife, Else, the parents of Dr. Preben Vang at OBU, guided us through their beautiful city and treated us to a dessert dinner at their home.

From every standpoint, it was a great trip. But what did it mean to the students? Here are some highlights of their responses:

Melissa Bragg: "The trip was meaningful to me in so many ways. Not only did we get to see so many interesting things, but we got to really investigate different aspects of the cities and countries.

"Through our Time meetings, we came away with more than just pictures and souvenirs. We left with knowledge about their views, beliefs and ways of life. It is easy to get wrapped up in domestic affairs and not pay attention to what's going on in the world around us. This was made most clear when we visited Koc University in Istanbul. We were talking to some college students there, and they seemed to know just as much about our government as we did. Because of this trip, I think I will always have a strong desire to know what is happening all around the world."

Tilly Carter: "The Around-the-World Study Program was an unforgettable experience. I believe the most exciting thing I learned from the trip, however, was the importance of international awareness.

"In each city we were given the opportunity to speak to Time correspondents and others sources. In Beijing, Matt Forney gave us insights into the incident involving the American spy plane. In Cairo, Scott McLeod gave us insights into conflicts in the Middle East. At Koc University in Istanbul, we met with students who actually knew more about American issues and politics than I did. Our final media stop was in the editorial conference room of Time magazine in London where we were invited to sit in on a planning meeting for the next European edition."

Brent Gambill: "The World Study Tour was an experience of global culture and beauty unlike any other trip. Since returning to America, I have not once closed my eyes to sleep at night without thinking of how much more I have yet to see. Some of the greatest experiences of the trip occurred when we met with students at Koc University in Istanbul and with Time magazine foreign correspondents about their views of America and politics. Time's help with the trip was priceless as we had time to pick the brains of some of the brightest journalists in the business.

"The World Study Tour altered my view of America, politics and life. I hope to use the knowledge gained to further my career and to essentially make a difference."

Erica Kimbrough: "Having the opportunity to travel around the world rarely comes along. For me, this summer's trip was an opportunity like no other. I learned not only about several extremely different and amazing cultures, but I also learned more about myself. The correspondents with Time magazine showed us what it was truly like in each country and helped us understand more completely the people and traditions.

"I've taken away with me from this trip a deep appreciation for every culture we encountered, and an eagerness to listen to those who can teach me more."

Katie Kirkpatrick: "I thought that this experience would help me to better understand the countries that I would visit, and it did. But I was surprised to find that I learned most about my home, the United States of America.

"In doing interviews for my story, I was able to see how America and Americans are viewed around the world. The answers varied from place to place, but in most cases I left the meetings feeling proud of my country and inspired to make it a better place. The J.D. Patterson Around-the-World Study Tour gave me more than I bargained for and more than I can ever repay. It was the experience of a lifetime and one that I will remember just that long."

Carrie Talbert: "How many people can say they have traveled completely around the world? I certainly never thought I would be one to say such a thing. But thanks to Dr. Downs and Dr. Patterson, I can now say I am, literally, a world traveler.

"Before taking this trip, I would have to say my view of the world was quite narrow. Like many Americans, I was mainly concerned with issues here in the United States.

Only after talking to students at Koc University in Istanbul, however, did I realize how much I didn't know about both the United States and the world. Those students knew American policies and politics as well as they knew their own.

"The 2001 J.D. Patterson World Study Tour has helped me view the world in a completely new manner and realize how blessed I truly am to be an American. I no longer take fresh air, air conditioning, the comfort of home or even toilet paper for granted."

Now that the students are back home and preparing to return either to Ouachita for the fall semester or to enter law school (Katie and Brent), they are obviously thankful for the experience and are particularly grateful to J.D. Patterson. Carrie's "thank-you" note to him is typical of those sent by the other five students:

"I cannot begin to thank you enough for believing in us six students from OBU to send us around the world," Carrie wrote. "It was an awesome experience that will go with me the rest of my life. Thank you for letting the blessings God has so graciously given you spill over into my life."

Editor's note: Both the first world tour in 1998 and the 2001 tour were led by Dr. Downs, chairman of the department of mass communications, and his wife, Vera.

Soren Sogaard, editor of the Berlingski Tidende in Copenhagen, the oldest (1749) and largest newspaper in Denmark, visits with the students.

Joining tens of thousands of other worshippers on Sunday morning in St. Peter's square, the students witness Pope John Paul presiding over the canonization of five new saints.

On their last night in Copenhagen, the students were treated to a dessert supper by Mr. and Mrs. Ove Jensen, parents of Dr. Preben Vang, associate professor of biblical studies and theology at Ouachita. Vera Downs is pictured second from right.

Gift allows for gallery improvements

A $150,000 grant from the Hammons Charitable Foundation will make possible the complete remodeling of the art gallery in Mabee Fine Arts Center, according to officials at Ouachita and the Arkansas Baptist Foundation.

The gallery, which will be named for Dr. Edward P. Hammons, is in Mabee's main reception area near the Francis McBeth Recital Hall and is the home of art displays by professionals and students. Extensive work is planned, including the installation of art display equipment, a new floor, and new heating and air ducts to provide greater efficiency and improved acoustics.

"We're honored that Ouachita has received such strong support from the Hammons Foundation," said Westmoreland. "This grant will enable us to enhance the setting for our art exhibitions. As the quality of our art program has grown, so has the attention given our student exhibitions. It's also an area often used for receptions when concerts, recitals and lectures are held in McBeth Recital Hall."

The Hammons Charitable Foundation originated from a $10 million gift to the Arkansas Baptist Foundation from the estates of Evalyn P. Hammons and her son, Dr. Edward P. Hammons, both of Forrest City. The Hammons Foundation also funds scholarships for students from east Arkansas and west Tennessee who attend either Ouachita, Baylor University, East Arkansas Community College in Forrest City, Oklahoma Baptist University, Union University or Williams Baptist College.

Ninety-one students were granted scholarships totalling $275,500 for the 2000-2001 academic year. Since 1998, 247 scholarships have been awarded in the amount of $556,000, while $340,000 has been awarded to the six colleges and universities for capital improvement.

Before Dr. Hammons died in 1998, he set up the scholarship fund based on a college experience of his own. An essay he had written about a sharecropper's daughter who was struggling to stay in school so impressed Hammons' professor, she and her husband supported the student for her first two years of school. She later became a very successful official in the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The Hammons' scholarships are two-year awards based on the idea that students who need help at the beginning of their college careers may become self-sufficient by the junior year. David Moore, secretary/treasurer of the Hammons Foundation Board, said the scholarships and the grants for campus facilities are based on the Hammons' strong belief in the value of education.

"The students are reminded that the Hammons family left them the scholarship support so that they would obtain a desired education and then later give back to their communities and churches," said Moore. "With the scholarship gift, there is an implied stewardship -- today the student receives a blessing, but one day the student will become the blessing."

FAQs from alumni about the Ouachita Scholarship Fund

Over the past several years, the Ouachita Scholarship Fund has become an important source of financial aid for Ouachita students. However, not all of Ouachita's alumni, former students, and friends understand all there is to know about the fund. The following is a list of the most frequently asked questions concerning the Scholarship Fund and the answers to those questions.

Q: What is the Ouachita Scholarship Fund?

A: It is the annual giving portion of the fund-raising efforts at Ouachita. Every dollar raised is used to provide annual scholarships for any Ouachita student.

Q: How is it different from the Annual Fund?

A: It's not. The Ouachita Scholarship Fund is a relatively new name for the old Annual Fund.

Q: Is my gift to Ouachita tax deductible?

A: Yes. Your gift can be deducted due to Ouachita's IRS classification as a non-profit 501 (c)(3) institution.

Q: Does my gift make a difference?

A: Yes! No matter the size, your gift lays the foundation for excellence in the classroom and beyond. If you are an alumna/us, you help raise our percentage of alumni support, which is an excellent indicator of your satisfaction with the education you received to individuals and foundations which consider Ouachita for major gifts and grants. It also helps in national rankings that increase the value of your degree.

Q: Why do you want my gift before May 31st?

A: Ouachita's fiscal year begins on June 1st and ends on May 31st. To be credited as having been given during the current year you must send your gift before May 31st.

Q: What are Matching Gifts?

A: Many employers have foundations that support the causes their employees support by matching charitable contributions their employees make. Contact your human resources department to see if your employer is a matching gift company and obtain their matching gift form.

Q: How much did you raise last year?

A: $326,293.10 — Our best year ever, thanks to you!

Q: What is the goal for this year?

A: $350,000 by May 31st.

For any other questions, please contact Lane Smith at 870-245-5169 or smithl@obu.edu.

Two for one is always a good deal

Everybody likes a good deal, right? Well, it could be that your employer is offering you a good deal and you don't even realize it. What's the deal? It works like this: you make a charitable gift to Ouachita and your employer matches it 1:1, 2:1, or even 3:1!

For years, colleges and universities have benefited greatly from companies who match the charitable donations their employees make. Only recently has Ouachita begun to reap the benefits from such programs.

Over the last five years, Ouachita has received 467 matching gifts totaling $365,252.42. As a result, more financial aid has been awarded, endowments have grown faster, and programs have improved.

Before you send your next contribution to Ouachita be sure to check with your employer's human resources department for their guidelines on matching gifts. Who knows, you might be able to double or triple the amount given and boost yourself into a higher gift club.

Hewell brings wealth of experience as chair of church music department

Rob Hewell, leader of the leadership and worship team of the Arkansas Baptist State Convention (ABSC), has been named assistant professor and chair of the department of church music in the Bernice Young Jones School of Fine Arts.

"Rob Hewell will be a strong addition to our faculty. He has a deep understanding of church music and worship," said Dr. Andrew Westmoreland, president of Ouachita. "It's an important day both for Ouachita and for the state's churches, which will benefit from what Rob teaches our students."

Hewell's experience as a music minister and as an ABSC staff member who worked with churches throughout the state on issues related to music and leadership, made him the perfect candidate for the position, said Dr. Charles Wright, dean of the Jones School of Fine Arts and acting vice president for academic affairs.

"In the eight years he's been with the Arkansas Baptist State Convention, Rob has gained a strong reputation for his ability to work well with churches of all sizes and styles," said Wright. "He has a grasp of the issues related to church music, worship and leadership, and he communicates it well. He's a natural leader."

Hewell said the decision to leave the employment of the Arkansas Baptist State Convention was difficult because he loved the work and the people with whom he worked at the convention. Still, since his first contact with Ouachita's search committee, the idea of touching the future through college-level teaching has had a growing appeal.

"This is a great time to be working in the areas of music and worship," said Hewell. "The opportunity to pursue that work in a setting like Ouachita is very appealing. Ouachita is in a position to establish itself as a catalyst for preparing music and worship leaders for kingdom-focused ministry. That's partly due to the strong relationship between Ouachita and its constituent congregations, and it's also because of the quality of the teaching that goes on here."

Building lines of communication between groups was one of Hewell's strengths with the ABSC, and he'll continue that theme at Ouachita. He envisions a closer relationship between the department of church music in the Jones School of Fine Arts and the faculty and students of the Chesley and Elizabeth Pruet School of Christian Studies. In addition, his already close ties with many of the state's churches and ministers should benefit students in many ways.

"Because of my work in the local church and in the work of the state convention, I think I'll have a valuable perspective on things related to leadership and music and how it all fits together in the churches," said Hewell. "I am very interested in what is happening in the churches and in how worship leaders can have an impact. As for the students, they need a wide perspective. They need to understand that it's not all music they'll be dealing with — their leadership and communication skills will be vital in church work."

In addition to courses in the church music department, Hewell will direct The Chamber Singers and Praise Singers, supervise music for Ouachita's weekly chapel service and teach Fine Arts: Music, part of Ouachita's CORE curriculum for all students.

Hewell was attracted to Ouachita first by its strong reputation, then by personal relationships with members of the faculty and staff, and now, by the prospect of working with students.

"I've always enjoyed working with students, particularly college students," Hewell said. "This is a wonderful time for them to graduate and go into the ministry, but some turmoil is inevitable in a period of rapid change. A passion of mine is to help church leaders deal with change in a healthy way. Music is a powerful tool for presenting the Gospel. Because of that power, we have to treat the art of music with respect."

Hewell, who was minister of music at First Baptist Church New Orleans before joining the ABSC in 1993, has a bachelor's degree from Midwestern State University and a master's degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He and his wife, Cyndy, have two daughters: Kaylyn, a college freshman, and Karyn, a ninth grader.

Cases named missionaries-in-residence

Cliff and Cinthy Case of Rocha, Uruguay have been named as Missionaries-in-Residence for the 2001-2002 academic year.

The Cases serve as Southern Baptist Convention (SBC) church planters/zone missionaries in the South American country.

Cliff Case, a native of North Little Rock, is a 1984 bachelor of music graduate of Ouachita. He earned his master of divinity degree in 1987 from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, Texas. Mrs. Case is a 1984 graduate of Baylor University earning a bachelor of business administration degree in administrative information systems. She was granted a master of arts degree in missiology in 1997 from Southwestern.

During their stay in Arkadelphia, he will be teaching two classes in Ouachita's Pruet School of Christian Studies.

The Cases have two boys, Clayton, who will be in the ninth grade and Caleb who will be in the fifth grade. The Cases arrived on campus July 24. His office will be in the Campus Ministries suite on the third floor of Evans Student Center.

The goals of the Missionaries-in-Residence Program at Ouachita are to offer Ouachita students an opportunity to become acquainted with the lives of career SBC missionaries, to provide a "bonding" mechanism for the many children of career missionaries attending classes on the Arkadelphia campus; to relate to students who are desiring to invest some part of their lives in various forms of missions work; to provide an opportunity for the missionaries to teach courses along the lines of their career backgrounds; and to offer churches and other organizations in Arkansas an opportunity to hear of the experiences of the couple in ministering in a foreign nation.

The Missionaries-in-Residence Program at Ouachita is directed by Ian Cosh, assistant to the president for community development and a member of the campus religious life committee.

"We are delighted that Cliff and Cinthy will be joining us as missionaries-in-residence," said Cosh. "They bring with them a wonderful spirit, outstanding qualifications, and a true desire to serve. I am convinced that they will relate well to our students, faculty and staff, as well as to other publics of the university."

Groups, organizations, or churches interested in scheduling the Cases to speak, may contact the Campus Ministries Office at Ouachita at (870) 245-5536.

European tour offers cultural insight

A group of 25 students got a first hand taste of European history, art, and culture in early May on the school's eleventh annual European Study Tour.

The students were accompanied by Larry Thompson, assistant professor of visual arts, and Preban Vang, associate professor of biblical studies and theology.

The academically focused trip was preceded by 15 hours of class in which students studied the areas they visited, presented papers, delivered presentations, and took exams. The course and trip account for six hours of humanities and liberal arts credit.

Rome, Venice, Florence, and Paris were just a few of the places visited by the class. The majority of their time was spent in Italy, France, and Great Britain, including an additional train ride through the Alps and Switzerland from Venice to Paris.

"Cultural insight and gaining a new perspective on a window of history" were the reasons Vang said the trip was made. "Hopefully, the students, who come from a diverse range of academic interests, gained a sense of connection between culture and language, culture and art, and culture and history."

Dr. Robert Webster, the George Young Professor of Accounting, recently had an article titled "Self-Confidence in Financial Analysis: A Study of Younger and Older Male Professional Analysts," published in the June 2001 issue of Psychological Reports. The article was co-authored with Dr. Selwyn Ellis, assistant professor of information systems at Louisiana Tech University.

Dr. Bill Viser, associate professor of Christian ministries, has qualified for two different certifications in the field of alcohol and drug abuse.

Viser qualified for the credential Advanced Certified Alcohol Drug Counselor through the Arkansas Substance Abuse Certification Board. He also met requirements for licensure as an Alcohol and Drug Abuse counselor. For the certification, Viser had to have completed three years or 6,000 hours of supervised experience plus a minimum of 270 clock hours of approved education. He received the license through the Arkansas State Board of Examiners of Alcohol and Drug Counselors.

Viser was also recently invited by the South Central Co-Op of Arkadelphia to present a program to employees on the subject "Depression: What Everyone Should Know and Understand."

Oral history collection provides glimpse of by-gone eras

In an earlier era, C. E. Knox might have revealed more about his life and times through letters, or perhaps an extensive diary. But Knox, who died in June at the age of 102, was a product of the 20th century. That means much of his communication took place via the telephone, and written documentation of his memories and opinions is harder to come by.

Such is the quandary of historians of the 20th century – and every century to come. With printed material surrounding us, but little of it first-hand expressions of the innermost thoughts and dreams of everyday people, historians increasingly have turned to oral histories to find the real story of the late 19th and 20th centuries – the people's history.

A group of educators at Ouachita Baptist University has focused on preserving the living histories of the people of southwest Arkansas, plus nearby regions of Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma. In the process they've built what they believe to be the largest collection of oral history in the state.

With more than 3,000 audio and video recordings of interviews already in the archives at Riley-Hickingbotham Library, 25 public schools from Mena to Malvern have been enlisted to add as many as 1,000 more interviews in the coming year. They launched the program last year when eighth through 12th graders conducted almost 800 interviews. Bob Black, director of Ouachita's Southwest Arkansas Documentation Project, coordinates the work.

"Human memory is fragile. It disappears with time... What we're doing here is preserving the present for the future."

"The teachers have been very enthusiastic. I go into their classrooms and teach the kids how to conduct an interview and how to transcribe it," Black said. "Ouachita provides the recorders and tapes, but the kids find their own subjects and do the interviews on their own. We've got some great students from Nashville, Prescott, Fountain Lake, Stephens, Mena, Jessierville and several other schools doing this, and the results have been impressive. The students are making contact with two or three generations back, often within their own families."

The new work builds on a strong local tradition for oral history led by Lavell Cole, professor of history at Ouachita, and Arkadelphia public school teachers Ann Linn and Ronnie Granade. Black's interest was piqued by an assignment brought home by his son.

"About two years ago, my son was assigned an oral history project in Mrs. Linn's class, and he did it on Jesse Runyan, the war hero from D-Day," Black said. "He walked out of that interview a different kid. He gained an understanding that he was part of something bigger than himself. That's what I'd like the students to learn – the difference between their own individual memory and a collective memory."

The fact that not every student will locate a war hero or an important politician for an interview is no problem for Black and his colleagues. It is, after all, a snapshot of the culture of a certain time and place that they're preserving.

"It's so important because it's a vital area of history today," said Dr. Trey Berry, associate professor of history at Ouachita. "It's the cutting edge. Most of the history written previous to recent decades was about politicians and military figures. More and more we're getting the history of ordinary people. That's why this work is so important."

Berry contributes to the oral history collection himself, as do his students. The Pete Parks Center for Regional Studies, which he directs, partnered with Riley-Hickingbotham Library to create the Southwest Arkansas Documentation Project. The oral histories collected through the new project are housed in the library's archives. The growing oral history collection provides an important resource for history students at Ouachita, and their own work under Berry, Black and others adds strength to the collection.

"From a historian's point of view, the archives is to the social sciences what the laboratory is to the natural sciences," said Dr. Ray Granade, a historian and director of library services at Ouachita. He sees a niche for Riley-Hickingbotham Library as historians show more interest in the lives of all people of a society, regardless of status.

"When you think about who keeps records, you see the value of interviewing people who are more representative of most of the people of a society," Granade said. "You have to have a source to depict their lives, and that's what oral history does. It allows you to go beyond the elite to take a look at what used to be called social history. It's an attempt to look at the greater movements of society and the character of the people rather than look at the character of their leaders as representative of the culture."

C.E. Knox is a prime example of oral history at work. An African American educator and businessman, Knox's living memory extended to the beginning of the 20th century. He witnessed a world of changes, from communications technology to the introduction of desegregation late in his teaching career. While Knox was a talented writer, his ability to describe the way he lived and what he saw at various stages of life made for several rich interviews for Bob Black.

"Mr. Knox was so wonderful we decided to do several interviews. He was still alert and articulate at 101 years old last fall when we had our final interview," Black said. "His description of changes in education, including desegregation, were priceless. He witnessed vast changes and spoke eloquently about what he saw and experienced."

While Knox was unusual because his insight covered an entire century, countless others may be captivated by the words of other interview subjects, especially if that subject is a long-deceased relative. To aid researchers of family history or those studying particular topics, such as life during the Great Depression, archivist Wendy Richter and Margaret Reed, director of media services, have been working to provide internet access through a database with listings of all of the interviews. By the time the fall semester begins, they plan to have the database on-line, searchable by name or subject matter.

"Getting on the web site is a key for helping people who are searching for information," Richter said. "We want people to know the extent of the collection and the web will help us offer better access to the public regardless of their distance from Arkadelphia. Those who can't visit Riley-Hickingbotham in person will be able to order transcripts. We can build our niche in the archival world in this way. There is a definite need."

Involving college and secondary school students in the process of fulfilling that need makes the project even more meaningful.

"Some of the students have told us that this assignment has helped them discover that their grandparents were once young, too," Black said. "It's helped history come alive. Certainly, they're discovering the difference between practicing history and just reading it in textbooks."

Broader studies of specific eras or studies of particular issues are enhanced by oral history as well. In addition to the responses of everyday people, the collection includes interviews with many of the state's best known leaders.

Whether known statewide or only in a small Southwest Arkansas community, Granade emphasized the valuable contribution oral history makes to the understanding of life in other eras.

"Human memory is fragile. It disappears with time," said Granade. "To find a letter from the 19th century thrills people. What we're doing here is preserving the present for the future. Fifty years from now, there won't be letter collections as in the 1800s. Instead, there will be oral histories."

Then, as now, Riley-Hickingbotham Library at Ouachita will be a good place to start a search.

Diplomas presented to 234 graduates; commencement broadcast on internet

Ouachita held commencement ceremonies on Saturday, May 5, at 3 p.m. in Sturgis Physical Education Center. Ouachita President Andrew Westmoreland presented diplomas to 234 students.

The annual picnic for graduates, hosted by President Westmoreland and his wife, Dr. Jeanna Westmoreland, was held at the President's home on Thursday, May 3.

The activities on Saturday, May 5, began with a baccalaureate service for the seniors in the Jones Performing Arts Center. Rev. Ben Rowell, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Rogers and president of the Arkansas Baptist State Convention, was the speaker.

The OBU Distinguished Alumnus Award was presented at the luncheon to Dr. John S. Jackson, interim chancellor and professor of political science at Southern Illinois University - Carbondale.

Jackson, a native of Waldo, received a bachelor of arts degree with magna cum laude honors in political science and psychology from Ouachita in 1962.

In 1963, he received a master's degree in political science, with a minor in psychology, from Baylor University and a doctor of philosophy degree with distinction from Vanderbilt University in 1971.

From September 1963 to December 1963, he was an assistant clerk in the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee at that time chaired by the late Arkansas Senator J. William Fulbright. From January 1964-July 1966, he was an officer in the U.S. Army Intelligence Corps.

He has served as a research associate for both the prestigious Brookings Institution in Washington D.C. and the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University.

Jackson joined the SIUC faculty in 1969 and since then has held various professional and administrative positions on the Carbondale campus, including the president of the faculty senate, associate dean, acting dean, and vice chancellor.

Empowered by a grant from Firststar Bank, Ouachita's May 5 commencement was broadcast live over the internet. The audio broadcast was the first of several new internet ventures made possible by the grant.

"The grant from Firststar allowed us to move farther into wireless technology, which has great potential for enhancing our web site," said Bill Phelps, director of computer services. "We have had live coverage of football and some basketball games, but we hope to add live broadcasts of several other events next year. We're excited about starting the process with commencement because it gives family and friends of our graduates who cannot travel to campus an opportunity to participate in the experience."

"Over the years, Ouachita has made a substantial investment in our technology infrastructure. One of the ways that we are getting a return on our investment is when we use this technology to extend our geographic boundaries," said Phelps. "The added support from Firststar will allow us to enhance our web opportunities in a timely manner."

The movement toward live broadcasts is just one way in which Ouachita has improved its web site. In January, Lannie Byrd, a 1997 Ouachita graduate, returned to campus as the University's first webmaster. Byrd, who has been a webmaster for the The Commercial Appeal in Memphis, has transformed the Ouachita site with a new design housing regularly updated news, features and photographs. Other new projects will include more accessible academic and account information for current students and more material for alumni and prospective students.

"Broadcasting commencement and other events over the internet gives everyone in the Ouachita family a chance to participate in special events in the University's life," said Byrd.

Students to assist elderly through ElderServe program

Beginning this fall, students will have the opportunity to make a difference in someone's life by offering assistance and forming relationship patterns with the elderly through a new program in the Arkadelphia community called ElderServe.

The program is a product of the Ben M. Elrod Center for Family and Community and is being coordinated by staff assistant Judy Duvall.

"Arkadelphia has a significant population of elderly individuals, and many are isolated and lonely," Duvall said. "Because of their isolation they have a need for connection with others in varieties of ways."

Through ElderServe, students will be able to do that on a once-a-week basis.

The opportunities to serve include visitation, reading, doing yard work and housework, running errands

VOLUNTEERING • ElderServe will provide students the opportunity to interact with senior citizens in the Arkadelphia area. Students will participate in such projects as visitation, delivering meals, shopping and assisting with programs at the Arkadelphia Senior Adult Center.

such as grocery shopping and picking up non-narcotic prescriptions, providing relief for families with a family member in Hospice and delivering Meals on Wheels. The volunteer hours can be used as TransServe hours, which allows students to volunteer and have the hours recorded on their transcripts.

ElderServe will also look for ways to provide opportunities for seniors in the community to volunteer and use their unique gifts and talents in service. A non-credit creative writing course will be offered in the fall semester at the Elrod Center to give senior citizens an outlet to express their life experiences by reflecting on them, sharing their stories and writing them down.

Students will also have an opportunity to get involved in the lives of the senior citizens through their professors who are playing a role in ElderServe. Among these is Dr. Richard Mills, professor of sociology, whose gerontology seminar will be meeting one-on-one with senior citizens to gather information to write life history papers, which will be given to the senior citizens and their families.

The marketing research class will poll seniors in Arkadelphia to identify their needs so that ElderServe will be better able to meet those needs in the future.

"Getting to know an elderly person is like having the chance to read a really good book; they are a great source of wisdom and life experience and have much to teach us," Duvall said.

Singers perform in Europe; retrace steps of 1999 tour

In May, 2001 the Ouachita Singers returned to Germany and Austria. Their 17 performances included all of the churches they visited in 1999 before the tragic crash of American Airlines Flight 1420 in Little Rock. They visited and sang in cities both large and small including Berlin, Salzburg, Weimar, Eisenach, and Magdeburg. They were hosted by Ouachita Singers' parents Rick and Nancy Dill, OBU alumnus Carlos Ichter, and IMB missionary Jerry Jones.

Performing for packed houses everywhere they went, they told, in song and in word, a story of faith, of perseverance, and of excellence. Singers' conductor, Charlie Fuller, professor of music and director of choral activities, said, "We performed everything from Renaissance motets to 'hand-clapping' gospel music for eager and appreciative audiences. Our students gave an incredible testimony through their behavior, their singing, and in spoken testimonies to the power of Christ to change lives."

The impact of the group on those whom they met was echoed by Dill. He commented, "We have lots of choirs that come through and sing concerts, but the Singers are really special. Of course, the musical quality that they bring with them is important in the land of Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms, but much more important is the spirit in which they sing." He added that a non-believing neighbor and former communist teacher commented to Dill after the concert, "There is just something different about that group." The statement provided a wonderful opportunity for the Dills to

*Thank you,
Ouachita Singers,
for allowing us to share in your burdens and your triumphs. As you sing, and sing so

Praise Ye

witness to their neighbor and share what that difference was. Dill added, "Their (the Singers') openness to share their faith through the suffering as a result of the plane accident was an incredible testimony to God's lasting love and caring."

It was the third time in five years that the Singers performed in Salzburg. "There is a bond, a relationship with the Salzburg Baptistengemeinde and The Ouachita Singers that goes beyond beautiful music," commented Jones. "Our church members have learned to bring friends and work colleagues to a Singers' concert with not only full assurance of quality music, but for the experience of encountering young singers whose lives reflect the joyful truth of which they sing."

Jones commented that it was somehow appropriate that the group had changed in the past two years with new faces and new voices. "We had put them on the plane two years ago ... headed home, with wonderful experiences to relate to awaiting family and friends. Then the fateful moments, days, weeks ... two years of overwhelming life-changes. Memories are strong, thrilling and painful," he said. "Thank you, Ouachita Singers, for allowing us to share in your burdens and your triumphs. As you sing, and sing so well, 'All That Hath Life and Breath, Praise Ye The Lord!'"

GLOBAL IMPACT

More than 50 students shared their faith and gained world perspectives with inhabitants in six foreign nations as a part of a university sponsored global missions thrust during the summer months.

In the past, Ouachita has taken students to places such as Zimbabwe, the Republic of South Africa, east Asia, Taiwan, the Republic of Kazakhstan, the Dominican Republic, Australia, Israel and Jordan. The out-of-country experiences are further complimented by spring break and Christmas break missions excursions to cities all across the continental United States.

The first summer 2001 Global Impact Team of 13 students and sponsors departed for Taiwan on May 16 and returned June 4. The trip marked the third consecutive year for a Ouachita team to work with Unbound Student Ministries, which targets the two million university students who reside on the small island. The OBU students went into classrooms, played sports, gave concerts, and interacted with Taiwanese youth. The team leader was Clayton Danner, a senior biblical studies major from Arkadelphia.

The second Global Impact Team composed of 18 students and sponsors worked in the Mbarara district in the southwestern portion of Uganda in east Africa. They departed on May 26 and returned June 14. The student contingent ministered through sports, hut-to-hut evangelism, took surveys for church planting purposes, and taught university students. A particular concentration in resources was focused on the Bayankore peoples, one of the largest ethnic groups in Uganda. The team was led by Kevin Inman, director of campus ministries.

The third Global Impact Team from Ouachita departed June 9 and returned August 6 and participated in a research project in Kenya and Tanzania. The team of six students studied the progress of evangelism among the Luo people, who number approximately four million and live in bush villages in the Lake Victoria area of western Kenya and Tanzania.

Inman also served as team leader for this group of OBU students.

A fourth Global Impact Team took Ouachita students to the Republic of Russia to participate in a cultural exchange program in which the OBU students spent time trekking through the Caucasus Mountains of southern Russia with a group of Russian students. Their focus was on phanages, computer classes, speaking in churches, English as a Second Language classes, as well as youth camps. The team leaders for this trip were Dr. Randy Richards, associate professor of biblical studies and theology at OBU, and Stacia Richards, secretary in the Ben M. Elrod Center for Family and Community.

"One of our goals as a university is to develop leaders who are globally aware," said Inman. "In pursuit of this goal, building relationships with the students. They departed on June 27 and returned July 12. The student leader for this trip was Greg McDonald, a senior Christian ministries major from El Paso, Arkansas.

A final Global Impact Team departed on July 1 and returned July 29 and traveled to three southeast Asian locales-Indonesia, Singapore and Thailand. The team of 12 worked to create new avenues of ministry as well as more established formats which included involvement in orwe have taken students to every continent in the world, exposing them to ways they can make a contribution to solving some of the challenges facing our global community.

"We are committed, as an institution of Christian higher education, to highlight the many and varying needs of the developed and developing world. The developing world will continue to be our major target for service trips, because that is where the greatest needs are to be found."

Babb named sports information director

Chris Babb has been named as the first full-time sports information director at Ouachita.

Babb will succeed Mac Sisson who has held the position and that of news bureau director and assistant director for public relations for 26 years. Sisson will continue in his role as news bureau director and assistant director of public relations.

"I am very pleased that Chris will be taking over the SID responsibilities at Ouachita," said Sisson. "He will be a tremendous resource and asset for the university in providing sports news to our publics both on and off campus. I have tremendously enjoyed these 26 years in sports information at my alma mater and feel very satisfied that Chris will bring the university and its athletes a quality and depth of recognition which they richly deserve."

Babb, a native of Cabot, earned a bachelor of arts degree in mass communications from OBU in 1999. During his undergraduate career at Ouachita, Babb served as Sisson's student assistant in the SID office.

Currently Babb is working on his master of arts degree in journalism from UA-Fayetteville. He was previously employed by Arkansas Business Publishing Group in Little Rock.

Babb is married to the former Amy Bridges of Arkadelphia, a 2000 graduate of OBU and now in pharmacy school at University of Arkansas for Medical Sciences in Little Rock.

"I am excited to be a part of the future of Ouachita athletics with the commitment that OBU President Dr. Andrew Westmoreland and Athletic Director David Sharp have made to the program," said Babb. "The best days are ahead for the student-athletes, fans and alumni of OBU and I couldn't think of a better time to join the University."

Artist's rendering of renovations of A.U. Williams Field

Phase I, completed this summer, included a new playing surface, a brick wall around the playing field, a 38-40-foot long scoreboard with a message board, and new 25-second clocks, which are placed on top of two new berms built in a horseshoe fashion behind each end zone to create a more intimate atmosphere.

Phase II, which will follow the 2001 season, includes the demolition of the entire current stadium including the home stands and press box, the running track and the visitor's bleachers. The entrance to the new stadium will be from the south side or what is now the back of the home stands. Concession stands and restrooms will be located in the concourse of the home stands and fans will enter the stands and either walk up or down to their seats. The team will have a dressing room under the new home stands and will enter the field at the 50-yard line from a tunnel. The new press box will be two levels with heating and air-conditioning, and include a reception room for the president to entertain guests.

Schaef coaches in Europe

Tiger basketball coach Charlie Schaef was in Europe in May serving as coach of a men's team from the United States taking part in the 20th annual MIT Basketball Tournament in Utrecht, Holland. The event was sponsored by the USA Athletes International Organization.

USA Athletes International, Inc. is a non-profit organization dedicated to giving amateur athletes and coaches the opportunity to participate in sporting events in the international arena while also allowing them to broaden their educational and cultural knowledge of the world through sports.

President
Former Students Association

The coming fall naturally brings to mind the beginning of the school year. As an educator, I eagerly anticipate the new school year, but also remember my own past experiences with school. Happily, almost all of those experiences were positive. I think that is a direct result of the impact of family, friends, and teachers. I hope that we can all play a part in making education a wonderful memory for others.

In July, I attended the Miss Teen Arkansas-America Pageant in Hot Springs. Ouachita's own Mac Sisson was in charge. OBU students provided the entertainment throughout the pageant and it was outstanding. I was surrounded by Ouachita friends, alumni, and present students. As I sat there one evening, I was taken back with the kindred spirit, love, and talent that permeates from our alma mater. I turned to the person next to me and said, "Don't you feel fortunate and blessed to have been able to attend Ouachita?"

As alumni, we should always be willing to encourage young men and women to attend Ouachita. Homecoming is November 9 and 10. If you haven't been on campus in the last year, you should make an all-out effort to attend and bring a young person with you. You will be more than amazed at the changes! The new dining facilities are out-of-this-world – especially to those of us who experienced the egg crates on the walls in the early 70s. The football stadium is currently being renovated and the progress there is phenomenal. An OBU alumnus, Todd Knight, is coaching the Tigers and they will be playing a full schedule in the Gulf South Conference. We will once again be competing against most of our old AIC rivals. And ... Tiger Tunes is a "can't miss" production. Order your tickets early because it is a sell out every night.

We are indeed fortunate to have been able to attend OBU. Let's show our support by being on campus at every opportunity, by "talking up" OBU, by encouraging young people to attend, and with our financial support. If every alumnus just gave a little, think of what more could be done. But ... above all, let's always give thanks for the blessings we receive as alumni and continually pray for the leadership and students at Ouachita. We truly share a Common Bond from an Uncommon Place!

A plaque in memory of Dr. and Mrs. George E. Cannon will be placed outside the Ouachita Health Services Office in Evans Student Center during a brief ceremony beginning at 10 a.m. on Homecoming morning. The plaque will commemorate the generous support that Dr. and Mrs. Cannon provided to Ouachita during the first half of the 20th century, and their donation of the Cannon Infirmary, which served as the University's health service center from 1948-1973.

Dr. Cannon (1870-1952) was a member of the Class of 1895 and worked as a physician in Hope, AR, until his death. Mrs. Josephine Lile Cannon (1874-1967) was the sister of J. G. Lile and the aunt of R. ## Through autobiography, Nell Mondy ('43) shares life and career

The history of the world's scientific thought is filled with stories commemorating accomplishments of great investigators and thinkers, the great majority of them men. Does this mean women are not capable of ranking in the annals of infamy along with their male counterparts? Or have too few women been invited to participate in this area of interest?

Nell I. Mondy, a petite young girl of above-average intellect, started at Ouachita College on the eve of World War II. As she completed her courses, she was entrusted with responsibilities usually given to older students and began gaining more confidence in her abilities. Then Mondy made a decision. She wanted to learn more, and do more than most female scholars were invited to achieve.

Mondy went on to gain her doctorate at Cornell University, combining her passions in biochemistry, food sciences, and nutrition, and the new Dr. Mondy spent the great majority of her time immersed in her specialty field of research, the common potato, which held remarkable potential to feed the world. Her earliest research dealt with B6 vitamins, folic acid, vitamin B12, and important enzymes in choline metabolism.

You Never Fail Until You Stop Trying: The Story of a Pioneer Woman Chemist tells the story of this ground-breaking woman in her own words, as Mondy shares with readers her fifty years in the world of academia--including her incredible worldwide work to improve food and nutrition in places such as India, Nigeria, Indonesia, Ivory Coast, Peru, and the United States--and discusses the numerous world hunger and nutrition conferences in which she has participated.

"You never fail until you stop trying" is the personal motto Mondy has used for over seventy years, and it has taken her around the world and back, allowing her to make history. Her incredible and inspirational story should be read and shared by anyone with a dream and a desire to exceed one's greatest expectations.

Nell I. Mondy was born and raised in Pocahontas, Arkansas. Excelling in her high school courses, she was compelled to continue her education and studies until obtaining her doctorate in biochemistry from Cornell University, Ithaca, New York. She received the B.S. and B.A. degrees in chemistry from Ouachita Baptist University in 1943 (both summa cum laude), the M.A. degree in biochemistry from Texas University in 1945, and the Ph.D. degree in biochemistry from Cornell University in 1953. She served on Cornell faculty for over fifty years. Mondy is a professor emerita of nutrition, food science, and toxicology at Cornell.

Mondy's professional memberships, accomplishments, and goals comprise You Never Fail Until You Stop Trying: The Story of a Pioneer Woman Chemist, but highlights also include the following: Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Institute of Food Technologists, and the American Institute of Chemists; honorary life member of the Potato Association of America and Graduate Women in Science; constituent of the First Baptist Church, for which she was a trustee; and member of the Tompkins County Criminal Justice Advisory Board, the New York State Potato Advisory Board, Cornell's International Friendship Club, Cayuga Trails, and the DeWitt Historical Society of Tompkins County.

A world traveler and humanitarian, Mondy counts among her spare time activities travel, photography, and gardening. In addition to You Never Fail Until You Stop Trying, Mondy is the author of Experimental Food Chemistry, a book published in 1980, as well as countless articles and scientific papers. She was National President of Graduate Women in Sciences in 1983 and has also served as a consultant to the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Environmental Protection Agency. You Never Fail Until You Stop Trying was written by Mondy with the hope of encouraging today's young women to pursue science as a career option. • Dorrance Publishing Company release

Project to focus on stories behind the names on Ouachita's WWII memorial

What are the stories behind the names on the OBU memorial honoring the 36 Ouachitonians who were killed in action during World War II? That's the purpose of a university research grant that has been awarded to Dr. William D. Downs Jr., chair of Ouachita's department of mass communications. Now he is asking OBU alumni, former students and friends to provide information that can be used in putting together profiles on these men who gave their lives for their country.

Virtually every day for more than 30 years, Downs said, he had walked by the campus memorial, but that it was only recently, particularly with the appearance of Tom Brokaw's "The Greatest Generation" and such stirring WWII motion pictures as "Saving Private Ryan," that it dawned on him that stories lay behind each of these names on the OBU memorial as well. Because alumni records are either sketchy or nonexistent, he is asking that those who remember these men contact him with any information they may have.

"I'm certain that somewhere out there must be family members or friends who can share stories, pictures, letters and other memories concerning the students whose names appear on the memorial," Downs said. "If something is not done quickly, these stories will be lost forever."

Other names include Lt. Cmdr. Ralph Mann, Judsonia; Pfc. David Neil Matlock, Arkadelphia; Lt. Dan Joseph Mathews, Little Rock; Pfc. Clyde Vernon McCalman, Bradley; Capt. Francis Allen Norton, Arkadelphia and later Washington, D.C.; Lt. William Reed Parsons Jr., Louann; Pfc. Thomas Marion Pool, Poplar Bluff, Mo.; Maj. Curtice H. Rankin, Pottsville; Lt. Col. Thomas Reagan, Waldo; and Lt. John Franklin Reed Jr., Pine Bluff.

In most cases, Downs said, "We don't even know the branch of service in which these men served, so virtually any information will help. I want to make every effort possible to resurrect memories of these men so that those of us who have benefitted so much from their gallantry can gain a deeper appreciation of who they were, what they wanted in life, the things that made them laugh and cry, the persons they loved, and whatever else I can find that puts faces and stories with these names carved in granite."

Information concerning the names should be sent to Dr. William D. Downs Jr., Box 3791, Ouachita Baptist University, Arkadelphia, Ark. 71998. His telephone number is 870/245-5207 and his e-mail address is downsb@obu.edu.

The Financial ADVISER

Ouachita Baptist University · Arkadelphia, Arkansas 71998 · Vol. 2 · 2001

John Cloud, J.D.
ASSOCIATE
FOR ESTATE AND GIFT PLANNING

The House has passed H.R. 7, the Community Solutions Act, which includes several tax incentives for charitable giving. The bill also will enable religious organizations to be eligible for federal grants for assisting the impoverished, curing addictions and sheltering the homeless.

Possibly the most beneficial planned giving provision of H.R. 7 is Sec. 102. This section permits an IRA owner to make gifts of the IRA to qualified charities and transfers to deferred gift agreements. From what I can gather, the IRA owner/beneficiary must have attained age 70+ (the original bill required an age of only 59+) and the transfer must be made directly by the trustee to a qualified charity or to a split-interest entity. The latter option is defined as to a trustee of a charitable remainder trust or to a gift annuity if it benefits the IRA owner or IRA owner and spouse. The donor of an IRA does not qualify for an income tax deduction on the gift, but neither does she or he pay tax on the gain in the account. In a change from earlier versions of the IRA rollover to charity, donors will still be able to deduct their regular cash gifts in the year of the IRA distribution.

How might this bill affect Ouachita? Those who have accumulated more than they need for retirement in IRAs could transfer one or more accounts to establish an endowed fund without recognizing the gain for tax purposes. They could see their gifts in action each year as opposed to testamentary gifts which by definition don't do much for the donors after the fact. Transfers to a charitable trust would provide lifetime incomes, with the added bonus of being locked in for the charitable purpose (with no estate tax) down the line. The Senate is slated to vote on H.R. 7 in the fall, so we will monitor progress and keep you informed.

Gifts of life insurance: the benefits

Americans own more than $8 trillion worth of ordinary life insurance. In many instances, new life insurance policies or old policies that you no longer need are a wise choice as a charitable gift. Here's why:

1. You can support the charitable organizations you value while, at the same time, protecting the inheritance you've set aside for loved ones.

Stewart and Beth have two children and five grandchildren who are the primary beneficiaries of their estate. There is a way, however, to benefit their favorite charitable organizations without touching the assets they've earmarked for their heirs. If insurable, the couple can purchase a second-to-die life insurance policy with a charitable organization as owner and beneficiary. They can make an annual cash-deductible contribution for premium expenses. Upon the death of the surviving spouse, the organization will receive the policy's net death benefit.

2. Major gifts of life insurance avoid court challenges by acquisitive relatives.

Helen was worried. "Already some relatives are telling me that if I leave a large gift to charity, they will find a way to break my will." Because of their contractual nature, however, life insurance policies cannot be changed by disgruntled heirs.

3. Make a major gift with life insurance and be confident the cause you support will receive the size of gift you intended.

William left a large parcel of land, appraised at $600,000, to his favorite charitable organization. Unfortunately, the property sold for only $400,000 three years later.

Unlike other investments, life insurance death benefits are set when the first premium is paid. The benefit remains fixed and guaranteed so long as you keep up the premium payments.

4. A life insurance gift is not subject to probate, publicity or delay.

Probate is the public, legal process of validating your will after your death. The time it takes to settle an estate can vary from a few weeks to years. But because life insurance benefits pass outside your will, they are not subject to these considerations.

As with any investment decision, please consult with your professional advisors before proceeding.

Your estate plan: tough questions

General George Patton once said, "A good plan executed right now is far better than a perfect plan next week." How good is your estate plan? Here's how to find out:

Begin by asking yourself questions about your estate plan like the ones listed below. If you don't like the answers—or you're not sure what they are—you'd better get a professional checkup. Why? Because everyone needs an up-to-date estate plan that can take over, even at a moment's notice. There may be no advance warning.

What's so important about your estate plan? You make sure your loved ones and favorite causes will benefit as you intend. You keep taxes as low as possible. You provide wise management of your money. You avoid costly mistakes. And you choose those best qualified to fulfill your wishes.

Now, see if your estate plan can pass this demanding test.

Your Beneficiaries

Start with your family. Who are your current beneficiaries? If you're married, the answer is obvious...your first concern is your spouse. But a married couple or a surviving spouse should decide who should benefit after the survivor's lifetime. Usually children and even grandchildren are the first priority. That raises another question: When there are several, should they be treated equally or do any have special needs? And if you've married more than once, how should you arrange your estate so that both families will be treated fairly? Then again, perhaps you're a single person and never married; you may want to provide for a parent or other dependent.

After you have planned for family beneficiaries, are there worthy causes you want to remember, such as your favorite charitable organizations? There's no better way to influence the future than by a philanthropic bequest of some of your worldly goods. Your benevolent concern and foresight can secure for you a unique kind of immortality. Have you considered the various ways to leave a charitable legacy—possibly a dollar bequest, a special asset or a share of the residue of your estate or retirement plan?

Trust Strategies

A trust is a unique way to secure management of assets for yourself or others. You can put trust provisions either in your will or in a living trust agreement that takes effect immediately. That raises several provocative questions: Should you create and fund a trust now for your own needs, knowing that eventually the trust will bypass probate and benefit your family? Can a trust plan better management of your investments and safeguard them against misuse? What are some of the ways a trust can help your family?

Trusts are often used to minimize or even avoid death taxes so money can pass to one's beneficiaries. Congress may reduce estate tax rates or increase estate exemptions, but any changes will probably be phased in over many years. In the meantime, does your estate plan include tax-saving trust arrangements? What are the advantages of a marital trust, QTIP trust, bypass trust, dynasty trust and gifts-to-minors trust? How can a charitable remainder trust save taxes while first benefiting you or your family and later your chosen philanthropy?

Planning Pitfalls

Even a superb estate plan can blunder into unforeseen hazards. For example, your will won't control the distribution of your jointly owned property...or your life insurance and retirement proceeds payable to designated beneficiaries. Have you carefully considered who will—and should—pay any estate tax on these assets passing outside your will? And how can you and your heirs take full advantage of expanded opportunities under the new IRA payout rules?

Has the size or nature of your estate changed? Have you recently moved to another state with different probate requirements? Have you chosen an experienced executor and trustee?

By now you may be overwhelmed by too many questions and too few answers. If your estate plan falls short of addressing these questions, please seek the advice of a qualified estate planning professional.

By the numbers: The generation-skipping transfer tax

As most people are aware, Congress taxes the transfer of assets at death. This is called an "estate tax," (also, more recently, a "death tax"), and its basic provisions call for a tax on the transfer of assets at death for people above a certain threshold of wealth. The idea is to place a tax on the privilege of transferring assets from one generation to another.

The generation-skipping transfer tax (GSTT) is a variation of the estate tax, reflecting a concern that wealthy people could, through careful estate planning, otherwise pass property to successive generations while paying a tax only after two or more generations. That is why Congress also created the GSTT: to eliminate the use of what had become a loophole and ensure that estate taxes are paid each generation.

The person to whom the assets are transferred is called a "skip person" if he or she is two or more generations below the donor, whether or not the person is a relative of the donor.

The GSTT applies when a person:

- transfers assets outright to a skip-generation individual;
- makes a taxable distribution from a trust to a skip person; or
- establishes a trust whose immediate beneficiaries after the trust terminates are people in a skip generation.

The GSTT does not apply to gifts that qualify for the $10,000 annual exclusion for outright gifts. Furthermore, everyone is allowed an exemption from the GSTT of $1.06 million.

Charitable bequests: Choose from four easy methods

Making a bequest to a charitable organization not only is a sign of benevolence, but also is the mark of your desire to help shape the future. Along with significant tax benefits, you'll gain a kind of immortality that can't be achieved any other way.

1. Direct bequest. An unrestricted gift allows us to apply the funds to our most pressing needs. You simply bequeath to us a specific sum of money or other asset.
2. Percentage or residue. You may choose to leave us a percentage of your estate or the balance remaining after bequests are made to your other heirs. A percentage will compensate for any substantial change in the value of your estate.
3. Life income plans. A charitable remainder trust provides that the trustee hold and invest a principal amount and pay an income amount or a percentage to a named beneficiary or beneficiaries for life or a term of years. After that, the remainder is distributed to a charitable organization like us.
4. Memorial fund. You can establish a permanent memorial fund in your name or that of another person, with the income to be used as you direct. The principal will be invested and will continue to provide support to the charitable organization in perpetuity.

As with any financial decisions, you should consult with your own financial advisors. If you are contemplating a gift to us, please let us know so we can ensure your gift can be used according to your directions.
