A Word from the President ...

Just in case you're wondering, the members of our faculty are doing a great job.

I received a letter last month from Dr. Neil Lutsky, professor of psychology at Carleton College and the president of the Society for the Teaching of Psychology, in which he expressed high praise for the work of Dr. Randy Smith, chair of our department of psychology and the editor of the journal, Teaching of Psychology. In part, Dr. Lutsky said:

I can summarize Professor Smith's contribution to teaching by noting that there is no more important role in the Society than Professor Smith's and there is no one who is doing more for the teaching of psychology than he. His vision, his conscientiousness, his editorial skill, his judgments of manuscript quality, his support of neophyte authors, and his ability to inspire the highest level of service from his editorial staff and reviewers make Teaching of Psychology the foremost journal of its type. Professor Smith is truly one of the treasures of our national community in the teaching of psychology.

In his commitment to excellence, Dr. Smith is linked to the generations of Ouachita faculty who have made important contributions to thousands of lives. As you have the opportunity to do so, I hope you'll pray for wisdom and strength for these men and women as they answer God's call at Ouachita.

As always, thank you for your friendship.

WIRED OVACHITA WORLD

Even during days dominated by trouble-shooting the challenges of today, Bill Phelps is never far away from a reminder of his role at Ouachita charting the future of campus technology.

Phelps was given a day-planner by his office staff as a gift in honor of his January 1 promotion from assistant director to director of computer services. The first page of the planner holds Phelps' goals for technology at Ouachita.

With more than a third of the oncampus student population (expected to be more than half by fall) on line through their own personal computers and a common University network, the challenges of the present are plentiful, but Phelps knows the future always comes quickly when it comes to computer technology. The goals are there as a daily reminder to focus on the future.

"Billy Phelps has been a great asset in computer services for some time," said Dr. Andrew Westmoreland, president of Ouachita. "He's wellsuited to his new position. Billy will bring us wise leadership as we attempt to provide the most effective technol-2 · Technology ogy available."

That technology already includes an email account for every student enrolled at Ouachita, and the opportunity to send and receive email through a campus network available in every dorm room, in computer labs and in open-use computers located in Evans Student Center. Email is the tip of the iceberg, with on-line access to Riley-Hickingbotham Library and world wide web access among other features on the network. New opportunities may include more convenient student access to their own financial and academic records.

Phelps may be planning Ouachita's future technology uses, but at one time his personal goals for the future had nothing to do with computers.

Nearing graduation from Ouachita and planning to attend law school, the newly-married history major needed a part-time job. With no computer experience, he landed a night job operating a computer at Citizen's First State Bank in Arkadelphia. He loved the work and soon began programming as a hobby. It became a business as Phelps began consulting for as many as seven different banks during the two years immediately following his 1981 graduation.

In 1983, Bill Allen hired Phelps to return to Ouachita as a computer programmer. The two worked together until January 1, 1999, when Allen retired as director of computer services and Phelps was promoted.

"When I first came, Ouachita had one computer and seven terminals," said Phelps. "The computer was used mainly for academic and financial records. I was responsible for the administrative applications, which allowed us to enroll students, bill them, keep their grade records and run a payroll. The only other computer on campus was used for grant research in the natural sciences."

With the total number of computers on campus expected to reach 1,000 by fall, Phelps has seen the role of computer technology go from that of a luxury to an absolute necessity for everyone on campus. It's in such a busy atmosphere that written goals can help maintain a focus on quality.

Phelps' goals are straightforward and ambitious. He describes a need to improve the quality of service to students, faculty and staff; provide strategic planning; provide training for faculty and staff to make optimum use of technology; more fully integrate technology in classrooms; and provide a safe and secure computer-user environment.

"I feel good about our quality of service now, but there is always room for improvement," said Phelps. "We want to expand our 'help desk,' communicate even more effectively with our students, faculty and staff, and supply more support options."

Strategic planning will get a boost from the newly-formed University Computer Committee, which brings together faculty and administrators for a broad look at technology needs. Increased training is underway with the fall 1998 addition of Marla Rigsby, a software specialist, to the computer services staff. Rigsby works with Ouachita's web pages and holds workshops on a variety of software packages.

In just a few years, the world wide web has found its way into not only faculty offices, but courses, as well.

"We didn't realize how much the internet is used in classes already until we had a brief outage," said Phelps. "The calls started coming in immediately from students who were near a deadline for web assignments in their courses."

Even with the action in this area, Phelps envisions more. "I'd like to see our campus become a technology center," Phelps said. "I'd like to see computer technology used in more of our course assignments and integrated even more in the curriculum as a whole."

Recognizing that technology must be respected and used wisely, Phelps wants to train students to think carefully about technology choices, especially related to the world wide web. "Providing a safe and secure setting for technology use really just means explaining to students and faculty how to do business in a web environment,"

Phelps said. "I want to be sure we all understand the issues involved in access to the internet."

The goals themselves describe the challenging job of planning for the future and solving day-today problems as well. For success in that dual realm, Phelps credits his professional staff and a strong group of student workers.

In addition to Rigsby, Phelps leans on Lynn Bursley as office manager, John Selph as the campus network manager, John Hill and Becky Sergeant as programmers, and Sheila Baker as coordinator of the Help Desk. Sheila works with students to see that responses are made to service calls. Carla Robinson responds to problems in the campus computer labs and follows up service calls.

"Student workers are an important part of the office," said Phelps. "We pick students who demonstrate a willingness to work and an aptitude for it. Then we reward them with a 19hour work week, and they really do the bulk of the trouble shooting."

Formulated through feedback he's received from students, faculty and staff, Phelps' goals focus on finding and utilizing the most effective forms of technology. That's an ongoing and ever changing process in communications technology. The day-planner is likely to be full. • Jeff Root

Kresge provides additional funds for Science Initiative

Ouachita is pleased to announce a $225,000 gift from the Kresge Foundation, as part of the Kresge Foundation's Science Initiative.

The Kresge Foundation previously awarded Ouachita a $225,000 challenge grant for the purchase of new equipment, and promised an additional $225,000 conditioned upon Ouachita raising $900,000 by December 1, 1998. The initial gift was used to provide new equipment for the rooms within the Division of Natural Science. The most recent $225,000 gift from Kresge, as well as the funds raised by Ouachita, has been designated as endowment. "We were thrilled to inform the Kresge Foundation that we surpassed our challenge of goal $900,000," said Joe

Franz, vice president for development. "Thankstothe Kresge Foundation, and thanks to the generosity of Ouachita graduates and former students from the Division of Natural Science, we now have valuable new equipment in our classrooms, and we have raised over $1,125,000 in endowment to maintain and upgrade the equipment."

The faculty from the Division of Natural Science, along with alumni who served as class chairpersons, played a key role in contacting alumni and former students. Dr. Joe Jeffers, the W.D. and Alice Burch Professor of Chemistry and Pre-Medical Studies, stated, "This Kresge Science Initiative will make a tremendous impact on the quality of education students will receive within the Division of Natural Science. I am most grateful to all who made this possible."

ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIPS

The Grady M. and Thelma C. Baker Endowed Scholarship Fund

Established by Quintas A. and Betty B. Crews, this scholarship honors the memory of her parents, Grady and Thelma Baker. Recipients must be majoring in classes offered through the Frank D. Hickingbotham School of Business, and first priority will be given to students from Howard County, Arkansas. Second priority for scholarship awards will be given to students from southwest Arkansas.

The Mary Elizabeth Webb Camp Endowed Scholarship Fund

This scholarship is established by Mr. John M. Camp, Jr., Mrs. Lawrence M. Johnson, and Mrs. Charles Lee Smith, Jr., to honor the memory of their mother, Mrs. Mary Webb Camp. Mrs. Camp was a student at Ouachita in the early 1900s. Recipients must meet the academic standards of the University for scholarship qualification and must be good citizens of the campus community.

The Fred and Kay Hardwick Endowment

Fred and Kay Hardwick have established an endowment to create two separate scholarship funds to assist full-time students enrolled at Ouachita. One of the funds will benefit business students (the Hardwick Endowed Business Scholarship Fund), and the other fund will benefit student-athletes playing on the baseball team (the Hardwick Endowed Baseball Scholarship Fund). Recipients of the Hardwick Endowed Business Scholarship Fund must be exceptional students in the Frank D. Hickingbotham School of Business, and recipients of the Hardwick Endowed Baseball Scholarship Fund must be student-athletes of exceptional ability in academics and athletics, who are members of the Ouachita baseball team.

The Ree and Gordon Palmer Endowed Scholarship Fund

This scholarship is established by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Palmer of Union, Kentucky. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer established the scholarship to provide resources for attracting exceptionally qualified students to Ouachita from northeast Arkansas. Melbaree Lands Palmer is a 1949 graduate of Ouachita. First priority for scholarship awards will be given to students from Greene County, Arkansas, second priority to students from northeast Arkansas, and third priority to other students meeting the required guidelines.

The Ethel Smith Thompson Endowed Scholarship Fund

This scholarship is established with a bequest from the estate of Ethel Smith Thompson. The recipient of the scholarship must be a worthy student of good character, a good citizen of the campus community, a full-time student, have a 3.0 grade point average in high school, and be in need of financial assistance. The University Scholarship Committee will select the recipient.

The Austin Wingfield Endowed Scholarship Fund

The family of Austin and Ola Merle Wingfield have established a fund to provide scholarship assistance to full-time students enrolled at Ouachita. Recipients must meet the academic standards of the University for scholarship qualification, be good citizens of the campus community, and be a graduate of Arkadelphia (Arkansas) High School. Priority will be given to students who are pursuing a major within the Frank D. Hickingbotham School of Business.

The Horace & Edith Grigson-O.W. Yates Endowed Scholarship Fund

This scholarship is established by Horace and Edith Grigson to honor the memory of O.W. Yates, a professor of religion at Ouachita from 1934-1946. The scholarship is given because of Dr. Yates' commitment to Christian education and to his students. The recipient must be preparing for a career in a church-related vocation primarily as a pastor, preacher, or missionary. The students must be majoring within the School of Christian Studies.

Gresham family gifts provide OSF scholarships

An additional annual scholarship has been added to the Russell and Ina Miller Endowed Scholarship Fund at Ouachita.

The gift from John S. "Rip" and Carol Miller Gresham completed an initial endowed scholarship in the name of the Millers and added a second scholarship. Both will be awarded yearly by the Ouachita Student Foundation (OSF), a student organization that Carol Miller Gresham helped create.

"The Greshams' gift will provide needed financial aid for our students, and it's a meaningful way to honor the Millers," said Andrew Westmoreland, president of Ouachita. "Carol's parents are longtime Ouachitonians, and it's a fitting tribute that their names always will be connected to the University."

Joe Franz, vice president for development, said establishing and increasing endowed scholarships is of paramount importance to Ouachita.

"These endowed scholarships provide immediate financial assistance for a great number of our students, and they will increase substantially in value as time goes on," Franz said. "I sincerely appreciate the Greshams for their wonderful gift."

The two scholarships, one designated with a preference for a music major and the other for a business major, will be awarded by the scholarship committee of OSF. The student organization was founded for the purpose of raising scholarship funds for upperclassmen and is the only student organization at Ouachita with the responsibility of awarding scholarships.

Carol Miller Gresham was a charter member of OSF and served as president of the group during its second year.

"I have a real love for OSF - for what it stands for," said Carol. "The concept of providing scholarship money for juniors and seniors who need help so they can finish their careers at Ouachita is something I believe in."

She also was pleased to find a way to honor her parents that also honored Ouachita.

"Ouachita is part of my family life and always has been," said Carol. "My parents met as freshmen in 1948, and Ouachita has been important to them ever since. As a child, I was on campus on a regular basis. They instilled a love of Ouachita in me. I knew I wanted to go to Ouachita and major in music long before I graduated from high school."

First Terry Minority Leadership Scholarship awarded

Ouachita has awarded its first A. William Terry Minority Leadership Scholarship to Knaudia Bridges, a senior political science and sociology major from Little Rock.

"There couldn't be a more appropriate way to remember a man who gave so much of himself for the education of others," said Dr. Andrew Westmoreland, president of Ouachita. "Knaudia is a perfect match as this scholarship's first recipient. She's an excellent student, and she'll become a leader in her field, just as Rev. Terry was."

"I am very pleased to be the first recipient of this scholarship," said Bridges. "This is an excellent school academically. I hope to one day be able to fund a minority scholarship at Ouachita myself. I am honored to have a scholarship in Rev. Terry's name."

Rev. A. William Terry was a Baptist minister, an educator and a community and state leader. He was active throughout his life in community and civil rights issues. Terry ventured outside the state to march with Martin Luther King, Jr., and never ceased to work for improved race relations in Arkadelphia and across the South. Locally, Terry served as presi-

He also was president of the Arkadelphia Ministerial Alliance. Terryserved as pastor at Mount Olive Baptist Church in Arkadelphia, Greater Pleasant Hill Baptist Church in Arkadelphia, New Hope Baptist Church in Altheimer, Ark., and Corinth Baptist Church in Sherrill, Ark.

After graduating from the University of Arkansasat Pine Bluff, Terry taught in the public schools of Malvern, El Dorado, Crossett and Hickory Plains. He completed a master's degree from Ouachita in 1972. For years thereafter, Terry lent his expertise to a number of special programs housed at Ouachita, including the Arkansas Technical Assistance and Consultative (ATAC) Center, which specialized in helping Arkansas' schools work through desegregation problems.

Following Terry's death, several of his friends and colleagues began to talk about a scholarship program in his name at Ouachita. A scholarship campaign was organized under the direction of Rev. Dwight McKissic, pastor of Cornerstone Baptist Church in Arlington, Texas, as chair and John Ware, former city manager of Dallas, Texas, as honorary chair. Other campaign officers included: Rev. Llewellyn Terry, pastor of Mt. Olive Baptist Church and son of A. William Terry, as friends/ family/churcheschair; Euodias Goza, vice president of Mercantile Bank of Central Arkansas, as alumni co-chair; and Dr. Lewis Shepherd, director of TRIO programs at Ouachita, as alumni co-chair.

Dr. Isaac Mwase, assistant professor of religion and philosophy, recently had five reviews published in the summer 1998 edition of the "Review and Expositor," a Baptist theological journal.

Books included in his reviews are: "The Evidential Argument From Evil" by Daniel Howard-Snyder; "We Shall All Be Changed: Social Problems and Theological Renewal" by James H. Faculty, staff organize book discussion groups

While college students sometimes complain about spending countless hours on massive amounts of required reading assignments for classes, many Ouachita professors are voluntarily reading extracurricular material.

Faculty and staff have the opportunity to participate in two different book discussion groups throughout the course of each academic year. According to Dr. Randall Wight, professor of psychology, "It allows us to build a sense of community among ourselves and just have a good time."

One group, known as the Gutenberg Conspiracy, has been in existence for more than 20 years. Named after Johann Gutenberg, inventor of the printing press, the group meets monthly over a brown bag lunch to discuss the agreed upon book.

"Any type of book is acceptable," said Dr. Edwina Thedford, associate professor of music and leader of the Gutenberg Conspiracy. Thedford compiles a list of suggested books and the participants vote on the ones they would like to read. They read books from all genres and disciplines. From that point on, "anything goes."

A volunteer leader facilitates the month's discussion, but everyone is welcome to share their views and insights. "You get to know people a lot better when you start talking like that. Plus, it's a lot of fun," Thedford said.

A second campus discussion group stemmed from an effort to prepare for chapel speaker Dr. Cornelius Plantinga's recent visit to campus. Selected faculty members from various disciplines were asked to read Plantinga's latest book and meet to discuss it. "We just had such a good time that we decided to continue it," said Wight who is the leader of the group.

The group reads a chapter a week and comes together for discussion on Friday afternoons. "Reading changes cognitive structure. Nothing improves your thought process faster than reading and being forced to discuss it with your peers," said Wight.

The group, comprised of a mixture of faculty and administrative staff members, are forthright about their views. They do not merely talk about the plot of the book or the ideas behind the plot, they dive into deep, complex discussions. "We never realized we were hungry for this type of thing," Wight explained.

Ovachita among institutions listed as America's Best College Buys

Ouachita has recently been named in "America's Best College Buys 2000."

Annually, Institutional Research and Evaluation Inc. (IRE) from Gainesville, Georgia, identifies the 100 American colleges and universities that provide students the highest quality in education at the lowest cost.

Thirty-seven private and 63 public institutions from 37 states met the requirements for recognition in the eighth annual edition of the publication.

"A college or university does not have to be expensive to be good," said Lewis T. Lindsey, president of IRE. "Prospective students and their parents should not automatically think that to get a quality education they must pay a high cost. It is amazing that the schools, such as Ouachita, listed in the report can consistently, vear after vear, deliver a quality education at a cost that is within every student's reach."

In the 1998-99 school year, students attending a school named as a Best College Buy saved an average of $2,399 over the national average cost of one year of ·Rachel Deckelman college.

Ovachitonian named Gold Medalist

The 1998 Ouachitonian yearbook recently received a Gold Medalist Award from Columbia Scholastic Press Association (CSPA), the highest award given in the association's annual critique of college and university publications.

CSPA, an association of student newspapers, yearbooks and magazines from throughout the world, is located at Columbia University in New York City.

Each yearbook entered in the critique is eligible to earn an additional citation as All-Columbian for special merit in concept, coverage, writing, design, and photography. These honors are given only when the publication has achieved the 95th percentile or higher in each of the five categories. The Ouachitonian received three of these

Health Fair provides screenings

The Health Services Office hosted its annual Health Fair in February. The fair offered a variety of booths with health care information.

The information booths included sports injury prevention by Chance DeRouen, head athletic trainer; American Red Cross; American Lung Association; community counseling services; dental health; Arkansas Regional Organ Recovery Agency; OBU counseling services; Arkadelphia Massage Therapy; Arkansas for Drug Free Youth; and the Clark County Prosecuting Attorney office for information on rape prevention and campus safety issues.

The screenings available included:

honors for outstanding merit in design, coverage and photography.

"I am extremely proud of the Ouachitonian staff for achieving such a prestigious honor," said Dr. Deborah Root, assistant professor of mass communications and director of development publications, who also serves as the Ouachitonian adviser. "Our staff is very dedicated to producing a quality yearbook for our campus community. I see day after day how hard these students work, and I am pleased their work has been honored at a national level."

Iennifer Hillman Goode, a secondary education/mass communications major from Almyra, served as editor of the yearbook, which had as its theme

Dr. Dave Ozmun,

assistant professor of communications and public relations associate, presented a paper at the Broadcast Education Association

(BEA) national conference in Las Vegas, Nev.

The paper, titled "Reassessing the Army-McCarthy Hearings: Live Television's Impact on the Fate of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy," placed second in the open category of the 1999 BEA competition.

It discusses the live coverage of the Army-McCarthy Hearings and the television coverage of McCarthy's years in the Senate. Ozmun used literature review and secondary analysis of polling and census data to suggest in his paper that live broadcasts at the time did not necessarily achieve the results credited them by many broadcast history textbooks.

The BEA convention is held annually in conjunction with the National Association of Broadcasters convention. The paper was submitted to the History Division of the BEA.

Dr. Caroline Henderson, associate professor of music, recently received several regional honors in her academic discipline. Henderson was invited to perform at the National Association of College Wind and Percussion Instructors Fourth Symposium (NACWPI) in January 1999 at Ball State University in Muncie, Ind. She performed two works for the saxophone and marimba with Dr. Kenneth Broadway, director of percussion studies at the University of Florida.

Henderson was also selected to present a clinic on the "Assessment of Collegiate Music Majors" with Dr. David Wilborn, director of bands at Fort Hays State University in Fort Hays, Kan., while at the symposium.

Three CD reviews of Henderson's work appeared in the fall 1998 issue of the NACWPI Journal. The journal is the official publication of the organization.

Benson retires after 38 years of service; Sharp named University's athletic director Buddy Benson, athletic director and former longtime head football coach for Ouachita, set a date for his retirement, and David Sharp, defensive coordinator for the Tiger football team, will be the new AD.

Sharp, who played and coached under Benson, worked with his mentor during the spring semester and will take over as athletic director on June 1, 1999.

Benson will end a formal association with Ouachita that began in 1961 when he was hired as an assistant football coach. He became head coach four years later and kept the job for 31 years. Benson compiled a record of 162-140-8. He is a member of the NAIA Hall of Fame and the Arkansas Sports Hall of Fame. When Benson retired from coaching, he was ranked as the second winningestactive coach in the NAIA.

"Red" Parker resigns as head football coach

Jimmy "Red" Parker resigned as head football coach at Ouachita. Parker said he planned to give his immediate attention to private business concerns, but indicated he did plan to coach again.

Parker, one of the state's veteran coaches and member of the Arkansas Sports Hall of Fame, has been a head football coach at the high school, NAIA, and NCAA Division I and II levels. He coached the Ouachita Tigers for three years, completing a transition from NAIA to NCAA Division II.

"Coach Parker helped us through a difficult transition as we moved to the Lone Star Conference in NCAA Division II," said Dr. Andrew Westmoreland, president. "We are grateful for his formidable skill as a coach. He has made an important contribution to Ouachita's athletic program."

Ouachita suffered through an injury-riddled 1998 season, finishing 3-7. The disappointing year followed seasons of 3-7 and 4-6 in Parker's first two years as head coach of the Tigers.

"I'm so proud of our hardworking young coaches and the players who gave so much of themselves, especially this year," said Parker. "We were almost an outstanding team, but the determining factors were both the bulk of injuries and injuries to key players.

"I enjoyed working first with Dr. Elrod and then with Dr. Westmoreland, and I've also renewed an old friendship with Buddy Benson," said Parker. "I do desire to coach again. It's my love and my passion." • Jeff Root

Knight returns to lead Tigers

Todd Knight, head coach of Gulf South Conference (GSC) champion Delta State University and 1998 GSC Coach-of-the-Year, returned to his alma mater as head football coach at Ouachita.

Knight and Ouachita President Andrew Westmoreland made the announcement at a Jan. 22 press conference in Little Rock.

Westmoreland described the hiring of Knight as the beginning of a proud, new era for the Ouachita football program.

"Coach Knight exemplifies everything we were looking for in a head coach," said Westmoreland. "His teams win games and championships, his players graduate, and he believes in the mission of our University. Todd Knight loves his alma mater, and he's coming back to make it a winner again."

For Knight, it was a heartwrenching decision to leave Delta State, where he led the Statesmen to their first-ever Gulf South Conference Championship and first postseason action since 1959.

"It's difficult to leave a championship program, especially the 22 seniors, but I do feel like it's time and this is what I'm supposed to do," said Knight. "The commitment Ouachita is making to strengthen the athletic program will make it possible to win. I'm excited about coming home to be a part of a great university."

Knight said he was anxious to meet the returning players for the Tigers, and planned to begin recruiting immediately.

"We are behind at this point, but we'll work hard. We've got to put the staff together, and I need to talk to the deans and the faculty about what they look for in students at Ouachita. We'll recruit kids who will be successful."

After decades of NAIA football as a member of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference, Ouachita has competed for three years in the Lone Star Conference of NCAA Division II. Despite compiling a record of 10-20 in the past three seasons, Westmoreland said he is convinced Ouachita can become a winner.

"We've made the commitment to have a successful Division II program," Westmoreland said. "But, a successful program not only wins games, it graduates players. It represents the values of the school. Coach Knight is a perfect fit for Ouachita because he believes in a complete program, one that is successful on and off the field."

Under Knight, Delta State football players had the highest graduation rate among Mississippi's four-year institutions.

"The keys to graduating players are recruiting kids who want to be successful and having quality instruction. Ouachita has a strong faculty, so we'll have a good program. It's not all about championships: a good program is also about relationships and the opportunity to graduate and be successful," Knight said.

Knight's 1998 Delta State team finished 8-3, including an 8-1 record in the Gulf South. The conference record represented the best winning percentage in GSC games in Delta State history. The two non-conference losses included the opener against NCAA Division I-AA Southwest Texas State University and a heart-breaker against Fort Valley State (Ga.) in the first round of the Division II playoffs.

Knight has been head coach at Delta State in Cleveland, Miss., since 1993. His six-year conference record was 25-24-1, including wins in 11 of his last 12 GSC games. His overall record was 28-32-2. He began his coaching career at Delta State in 1988 after serving as a graduate assistant there. In 1990, he moved to the University of Texas at El Paso, where he coached offensive linemen and running backs before returning to DSU. He has coached six All-Americans and 30 All-Gulf South Conference players, including four of the last five Gulf South rushing champions.

Knight played at Ouachita under long-time head coach Buddy Benson, who gave up coaching to become Ouachita's athletic director in 1996. Benson will retire in May, turning over his duties to David Sharp, who has coached football at Ouachita since 1982.

Knight is a graduate of Star City High School. He graduated from Ouachita in 1986, where he majored in health, physical education and recreation. He completed a master's degree at Delta State in 1987. He and his wife, Julie, are the parents of Casey, 8, Spencer, 6, and Jacob, 3.

Knight builds Tiger football coaching staff Shortly after signing on with Ouachita after a successful stint as head coach at Delta State University, new head coach Todd Knight hired three assistant coaches. They are Deron Huerkamp, assistant head coach; Ken Wheaton, offensive coordinator; and Jay Derby, position coach.

Wheaton returned to his hometown of Arkadelphia after several years coaching in the Texas high school ranks. He was Arkadelphia High School's head coach until after the 1995 season when he returned to Texas. He was an assistant coach at Mt. Pleasant High School and Lake Highlands High School in the Dallas/Fort Worth Metroplex before becoming head coach at Nacogdoches High School.

Huerkamp comes to Quachita from Delta State where he was the offensive coordinator for six years under Knight. Huerkamp was also the strength and conditioning program leader, a position he will retain at Ouachita.

Huerkamp is a native of Decatur, Ala., and played college football at both Auburn and Livingston College, now West Alabama University. He coached defensive line at Livingston, and had graduate assistant positions at both the University of Mississippi and UTEP.

Derby is also following Knight from Delta State, where he coached tight ends, wide receivers, and special teams. Derby is a native of Greensboro, N.C., and played collegiately at Guilford College in Greensboro, N.C.

After graduation, he was an assistant at Guilford before joining Knight at Delta State for the last five years.

As Water Reflects a Face, So a Man's Heart Reflects the Man"

A further emphasis on stressing the Christian fervor on campus through a concentrated period of corporate and individual worship, singing, fellowship, and spiritual growth seminars was the goal of the annual Christian Focus Week.

CFW is sponsored annually by the Baptist Student Union (BSU) and is meant to be not only a week of renewal, but also a time for celebration of Christian heritage.

lan Cosh, assistant to the president for community development; Kevin Inman, director of campus ministries and the BSU; Julie Wilson coordinator of the BSU; and Brandi Womack, assistant director of campus ministries, worked with three student leaders to coordinate the week's Billy James Foote activities.

The theme of this year's program was "As Water Reflects a Face, So a Man's Heart Reflects the Man" from Proverbs 27:19. The student leaders felt that the verse was symbolic of their feelings on the importance this week had on students' lives. "Water has the ability to give a mirror image of many objects," said student leader Brent Gambill of Paragould, a sophomore political science major. "Our hearts, in the same way, have the ability to reflect the goals, ambitions, and desires of our lives."

Voddie Baucham

"Our purpose was to challenge the students through the week and challenge them with the theme through the speakers at the seminars," said Gambill.

The featured speaker of the week and the J. E. Berry Lecturer was Voddie Baucham, founder of his own evangelistic enterprise and staff evangelist at Sugar Creek Baptist Church in Sugar Land, Texas.

Billy James Foote, singer/songwriter and experienced worship leader, led the morning worship services of CFW.

Activities during the week included afternoon seminars, the International Food Festival, a midnight breakfast, a sacred music concert, and daily chapel services.

Kluck Student Enrichment Grants provide funding for student activities

The Kluck Student Enrichment Grant Fund at Ouachita was recently established to enhance existing programs related to student activities.

The program is affiliated with the Ben M. Elrod Center for — Family and Community (CFC).

Dr. Wesley Kluck of Arkadelphia, a local pediatrician and a 1977 graduate of Ouachita, founded the grant program to help students in funding campus program needs.

great appreciation for the creative spark that college students carry," said Ian Cosh, director of the CFC and assistant to the president for community relations. "Toward that end, he has generously provided a means by which Ouachita can fund projects and activities that the students believe will benefit their peers." The awarding of funds is based on the recommendation of a committee. The President of the University will make the final decision regarding the proposals.

All clubs and organizations have the opportunity to apply for grant funding.

Individual students also may apply for the purpose of promoting a specific agenda, but top priority will be given to proposals which maximize overall campus community involvement and enhance student growth academically, spiritually, socially, or physically. • Whitney Moore

Granade receives fellowship from Pew Younger Scholar Program

Andrew Granade of Arkadelphia, a senior majoring in history and piano performance, is among 10 college and university students from around the nation to be named a 1999 Pew Younger Scholar Program Fellow for Graduate Fellowships.

Granade was the only student from an Arkansas school chosen for the prestigious fellowship.

The $39,000, three-year graduate fellowships are portable to top-ranked Ph.D. programs in the humanities, the social sciences and the theological/biblical disciplines.

This year almost 100 students, nationally, competed for the awards. The students go through a rigorous application process after which 20 finalists are brought together to be interviewed by a committee of university scholars representing a variety of disciplines.

The Pew Younger Scholars Program seeks to nurture the next generation of Christian intellectuals by encouraging talented students from a select list of Christian colleges and universities to pursue scholarly vocations. There are currently 50 Fellows in topranked doctoral programs across the country.

At Ouachita, Granade is a member of the Pew College Society chapter, the Carl Goodson Honors Program, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, Rough Draft drama ministry; OBU Wind Ensemble; Ouachita Symphonic Band, and is a Big Brother to the Gamma Phi women's social club.

His parents are Dr. Ray and Ronnie Granade of Arkadelphia.

Phonathon raises record $95,000

Ouachita recently concluded a highly successful National Phonathon, raising a record $95,000.

"The phonathon provides a great opportunity for our students to interact directly with those people who play such a vital role in helping build Ouachita into one of the premier liberal arts schools in the south," said Bryan McKinney, general counsel and development officer, who also serves as director of the annual fund.

During February for the past four years, student volunteers have called on Ouachita friends, former students, and alumni to ask for support through gifts to the Annual Fund.

This year, more than 120 students volunteered their time to call alumniand former students across the country. Businesses in Arkadelphia provided prizes that were awarded to the student volunteers throughout the phonathon. Rachel Deckelman, asophomore from Olive Branch, MS, raised the most dollars at $9,600, and Staci Robertson, a sophomore from Bryant, recorded the most number of pledges at 145.

Over 30 faculty/staff members assisted in supervising the student callers and compiling statistics.

According to Joe Franz, vice president for development, "Gifts to the Annual Fund are crucial to the fiscal stability of the institution. In addition to the immediate financial impact, gifts to the Annual Fund increase our chances of receiving funds from national foundations and corporations." Foundations and corporations are keenly interested in the support a university receives from its alumni. Last year, 32 percent ofOuachita's alumni provided financial support.

◆ Fifty-five Ouachita music students claimed regional honors at the Arkansas State National Association of Teachers of Singing (NATS) Regional Conference March 5-6.

Eleven Ouachita students advanced to the final round of auditions. Five of the eleven students received first place honors. They were: Jenna Williams, a music major from El Dorado, freshman women category; Adam Langley, a music major from Bryant, freshman men category; Jenny Sherman, a music major from Carrollton, Texas, sophomore women category; Kristin Maddox, a music education major from Ponca City, Oklahoma, senior women category; and Bryan Bailey, a sophomore music major from Plano, Texas, upper division music theatre category.

 Words of encouragement and information for the class of 1999 were the focus of the annual Senior Dinner held Friday, March 5. The dinner is an opportunity for the Former Students Association to conaratulate the senior class, welcome them as soon-to-be alumni, and to wish them well as they prepare for graduation.

This year's speaker was Paul White, a 1989 graduate who serves as vice president and general counsel for the Arkansas Baptist Foundation, His speech was titled, "Life 10 Years After College."

Sarah Freeman, a biology major from Little Rock, addressed the seniors prior to White's speech. Mike Kolb, director of career planning and placement, offered advice on job placement, and Wesley Kluck, FSA Tiger Network chair, provided information about the Tiger Network.

Transerve to note community service

Ouachita has recently implemented a new program titled Transerve which notes service to the community on a student's official transcript.

The programallows Ouachita students who are involved in more than 20 hours of community service a semester to distinguish their involvement on the official transcript.

Ian Cosh, assistant to the president for community development and director of the Ben M. Elrod Center for Family and Community at Ouachita, is the director of the new program. "The Transerve program revolves around an individual voluntarily taking the initiative to secure an approved project and the University, in turn, recognizing that service by placing it on

"We feel that having community service noted on a student's transcript will send a strong positive message to employers on a service mentality of the student," he said. "Ouachita will allow students, within certain guidelines and qualifications, to choose and manage their service."

Special service activities to be considered for Transerve include: service at a non-profit agency; service at a for-profit organization whose mission involves meeting social service needs of the community; church sponsored service where the goal is meeting social needs; government sponsored service at federal, state and local levels; independent service projects in areas where human needs exist; the coordination of fundraising activities with direct interaction with a non-profit beneficiary; service performed as part of a service-learning course required internship; and work in non-partisan political organizations and campaigns.

◆ The Ben M. Elrod Center for Family and Community held its fifth Tiger Serve Day on Saturday, March 6, to provide an opportunity for students to get involved in the Arkadelphia community through public service. Two-hundred eightyfive students, faculty & staff comprised 39 teams that worked a total of 895 hours on Tiger Serve Day.

Members of the Former Students Association, who were on campus for their spring meeting, also participated.

Ouachita teamed with the Arkadelphia Chamber of Commerce to organize the event.

 Dr. Ronald J. Sider, professor of theology and religion at Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Philadelphia, Penn., presented a Birkett Williams Lecture on Thursday, March 4.

The title of his lecture was "Rich Christians in an Age of Hunger."

Sider serves as president of the Evangelicals for Social Action, publisher of "Green Cross," contributing editor of "Sojourners," corresponding editor of "Christianity Today," and co-author of "Transformation: An International Dialogue on Evangelical Social Ethics."

Mitchell organ finds home in Brazilian church

Its former home has been razed for a new science complex and the hymns are in Portuguese now, instead of English, but to David Petty, the tones coming from the 1946 Kilgen organ are just as true as ever.

The organ, which had been played in concerts and chapel services at Ouachita's

Mitchell Hall for generations of students, has been restored and is now being used daily at First Baptist Church in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

"I want people to know that the organ is making a real difference in the lives of Christians in Sao Paulo," said Petty. "They have daily mid-day services and morning and evening services on Sunday.

SECOND HOME • Pictured with the organ once housed in Mitchell Hall are the pastor of First Baptist Church in Sao Paulo, Brazil, and Dr. Julia Brown, organist.

The organ is played seven days a week, 365 days a year. They love it."

Petty first learned of the organ in 1988, eight years after it had ceased to be used. After receiving permission, Petty and his father, Bill (1952), removed the organ piece by piece over a two-month period. For the next five years, it wasstored in a variety of places, finally landing in Chicago.

Petty, a businessman who travels extensively in Central and South America, found a home for the organ in 1993. The following year, it arrived in Sao Paulo, where it was restored and installed by Warwick Kerr, a native Brazilian. Since 1996, the organ has been in daily use.

"It's an historic church, founded by an American missionary in the 1880s," said Petty. "It's an inner city church, and the organ really dresses it up. The members of the congregation are very enthusiastic singers. They sing all the standard Baptist hymns, just in Portuguese."

REUNITED Ouachita, Harding join Gulf South Conference

Ouachita Baptist University and Harding University will move from the Lone Star Conference to the Gulf South Conference, and in doing so, renew rivalries with several in-state NCAA Division II universities.

The move by Ouachita and Harding will reunite all of the football-playing former members of the old Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference (AIC), an NAIA league which lasted nearly 70 years before it dissolved in 1994. Ouachita and Harding will join former AIC members Arkansas Tech University, Henderson State University, Southern Arkansas University, the University of Arkansas at Monticello and the University of Central Arkansas in the west division of the Gulf South Conference.

Delta State University also is a member of the west division, as well as two outof-state universities which do not compete in football. The conference includes teams in Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee.

"The opportunity to bring the Arkansas schools together under the umbrella of one of the NCAA's strongest conferences is an exciting change for us," said Dr. Andrew Westmoreland, president of Ouachita. "I think everyone concerned saw that getting all of the Arkansas schools back together in athletics was the best thing for the universities and for the fans of the teams. It's a good, highly competitive league and it's a natural fit geographically."

Westmoreland said the move came about because of travel distances and the opportunity to renew rivalries with Arkansas schools, not because of dissatisfaction with the Lone Star Conference. For the past three years, the Lone Star has fielded two divisions, with teams from Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico.

"We have been pleased to be a member of the Lone Star Conference. That was an important step for us in the move up from NAIA athletics," said Westmoreland. "Unfortunately, for Ouachita the great disadvantage for our affiliation with the Lone Star was geography, and there simply wasn't much we could do about that."

For Ouachita, the move also means that the annual cross-town rivalry with Henderson State will once again be a conference matchup. The contest was temporarily halted when the AIC broke up and has been a non-conference game for the past three years. Ouachita opens the 1999 season at home against Henderson. The Tigers are under the direction of new head coach Todd Knight, Gulf South Coach-of-the-Year in 1998 with Delta State University.

In addition to the Arkansas universities, the Gulf South Conference footballplaying schools presently consist of: Delta State University in Cleveland, Miss.; the University of North Alabama in Florence; the University of West Alabama in Livingston; the State University of West Georgia in Carrollton; and ValdostaState University in Valdosta, Ga. by Jeff Root

Sports Wrap-Up

Swimming & Diving

The Tiger Sharks swimming and diving team brought home tenth place as well as two individual national championships in the 1999 NCAA Men's Division II Swimming and Diving National Championships held on March 10-13 in Buffalo, NY.

Sophomore free and fly swimmer John Berry from Houston, TX, was the 50 senior freestyle national champion for the second consecutive year with a time of 20.26. Berry also placed second while setting a school record in the 100 senior freestyle in a time of 44.82.

Bringing home the gold in the 100 breast was junior breast and freestyle swimmer Jess Mullinax from Texarkana, TX. Mullinax won in a time of 57.07. He also ranked 12th in the 200 breast.

Also placing in the meet were: Moss Duvall, 11th, 100 fly, 10th, 200 fly; Joel Jackson, 19th, 1650 freestyle; Jeremy Elliott, Duvall, Mullinax and Berry, 4th, 400 medley relay; Berry, Mullinax, Jackson, and Duvall, 7th, 400 free relay; Berry, Jackson, Duvall, and Ray Miller, 8th, 800 freestyle relay; Chris White, Mullinax, Duvall, and Jackson, 15th, 200 medley relay.

The Tiger Sharks are coached by Jim Dann. • Brent S. Gambill

Lady Tiger Basketball

The young Lady Tiger basketball team (13-13, 6-8), coached by Garry Crowder and assisted by Joveta Arnold, ended the year tied for fifth place in the NCAA II Lone Star Conference North Division.

Two players, freshman guards Robyn Anders from Grapevine, TX, and Vivi Dees from Cove, were named to the 1999 Lone-Star Conference Women's Basketball North Division Team. Anders was named to the North Division Second Team and Dees was selected for the Honorable Mention Team.

Hilary Sheridan was named to the 1998-99 NCAA Division II Lone Star Conference Women's Basketball North Division Commissioner's Honor Roll. Sheridan, a sophomore from Midlothian, TX, achieved the honor with her 3.34 grade point average while majoring in business.

In free throw percentage, Anders was the leader in the Lone Star Conference and 13th in the NCAA Division II national statistics by making 136 of 159 for 86 percent.

Anders also ended the sports year ranked fifth in the LSC in assists and seventh in scoring. Anders led the Lady Tigers in points, free throw percentage, assists, and minutes played.

Dees ended second in the LSC for three point field goals made with 65 in 25 games. She finished seventh in three-point field goal percentage. Dees led the Lady Tigers in three pointers and was second in assists, free throws, and points.

On the court, Sheridan led the Lady Tigers this past season in shooting percentage by making 67 of 140 for 48 percent. • Brent S. Gambili

Tiger Basketball

Mike Reynolds' Tigers entered their second season in Lone Star Conference play with a core of four seniors, but also with six transfers new to the program which hurried the development of team chemistry at the beginning of the season.

The Tigers finished the season with a 9-16 record, a 6-8 LSC record, and tied for fifth in the LSC North Division. Ouachita came away with quality wins against the University of Central Oklahoma and in-state rivals Harding and Henderson State. OBU defeated a perennial LSC NCAA Division II power in the Bronchos of UCO on January 9 as junior point guard Kyle Dean of Medford, OK, hit a season-high of 34 points in the 83-74 victory.

On January 28, the Tigers hosted the second edition of the basketball version of the Battle of the Ravine and exited with a 55-48 victory over the Reddies, a team that won the Gulf South Conference title.

Two days later, the Tigers traveled to Searcy and defeated the Harding Bisons 90-88 in overtime as senior Mitchell Bolding of Benton, who was the team's leading scorer with 12.1 points per game, scored 17 points in the second half and overtime for the victory.

Ouachita ended the season with two victories over Southwestern Oklahoma State University and Cameron University. The end of the season also marked the end of the careers of Bolding and senior Robert Brumsey of New Boston, TX, who spent four years in the Tiger program. Bobby Tedder, a senior from Mena, finished his third year in the program and senior Edleawn Barton of St. John's, Antigua in the West Indies, finished his two-year career with the Tigers as the leading rebounder for the team after transferring from John Wood Community College in Illinois.

Bruce Tippit President Former Students Association

I have always told my children that I can go almost anywhere and find someone I know or someone who knows someone I know. In 1994 we made our first trip to Disney World. I told my girls that I would see someone I knew or meet someone who knows someone I know. We were on a raft crossing over to Tom Sawyer's Island when I noticed a man wearing a Razorback cap. I asked if he was from Arkansas and he said, "Yes," that he was from Pine Bluff. I asked if he knew a couple who were members of our church. His response was, "Why yes! They were my Sunday School teachers at First Baptist!" My girls couldn't believe it. I felt vindicated!

I have also said you can go almost anywhere and meet someone who went to Ouachita or knows someone who went to Ouachita. Recently we had the Zambian Acappela to perform in our church. Now, I happen to know only one person from Zambia. His name is Seth Lunga, who graduated from Ouachita with me in 1976. So I asked the leader of the group, "Do you know Seth Lunga?" His reply was, "Oh, yes! Mr. Lunga is helping us this year!" Am I good or what!

You see, it isn't the size of the student enrollment, it's the significance. It's true that Ouachita's size will never be its overwhelming feature. However, the individual students who discover their significance while completing their education will use that significance to make a significant difference.

This was impressed on our FSA Board recently as we observed 300 students go out into the community of Arkadelphia for Tiger Serve Day. They spent a Saturday helping people in Arkadelphia pick up, clean up, sweep up and fix up some part of the city. This effort was organized by Ian Cosh, director of the Elrod Center for Family and Community. It was evidence of a desire to give service and demonstrate leadership by serving as Jesus did.

Ouachita alumni are everywhere in the world. Isn't it amazing the influence one school can make! Look around you and wherever you go, I bet you'll find someone who went to Ouachita or knows someone who went to Ouachita. More often than not, they are the ones making a difference -- a sizeable difference!

ALUMNI Drofile HOLLY

GRESHAM-GARAVEL

Before she was granted the national Christa McAuliffe Fellowship in 1998, Holly Garavel built the foundation for her teaching career when she graduated from Ouachita in 1980 with a degree in elementary education and music education.

This year, Garavel is on sabbatical from the Newington School District in Hartford, Conn., while she travels around the state educating elementary students on astronomy. The $45,000 fellow-ship allowed Garavel to purchase a 16-foot-diameter portable, inflatable planetarium, which allows enough room for about 30 students and herself.

"I never thought that science would be my cup of tea," said Garavel. She explained that she began to fall in love with astronomy in 1997 when she attended a teacher's workshop to learn more about mathematics and science. At the workshop she learned how to use the portable planetarium, called "Star Lab." Garavel said that after she was able to use the planetarium at her school for only one week, she decided to apply for the Christa McAuliffe Grant. While writing for the grant, she explained her objectives for teaching children about astronomy. Garavel noted that by going to different schools across the state with the planetarium, she would be able to reach 12,000 children.

"I go to a different school each week to teach kids of all ages and backgrounds about astronomy." She said that it is wonderful to see different children thrilled each week. "Children are so awestruck by things. There's just something about five- and six-year-olds and the look on their faces."

While at Ouachita, Garavel was chairman of the Ouachita Student Foundation (OSF) committee that produced the very first Tiger Tunes production in 1979. Her other involvements included the EEE Women's Social Club, concert choir, and a role in the musical The Music Man.

Living in West Hartford, Conn., Garavel shares a home with her husband Paul and their two children, eight-year-old Paula and sixyear-old Michael. Garavel said that she never thought that she would end up in Connecticut after living in Waco, Tex., her first year out of college. "When I first started teaching up here the kids made fun of my accent. They laughed when I said the letter 'W.""

As for the future, Garavel plans to continue teaching children. She said that she wishes that she could extend her sabbatical in order to share the Star Lab with more children. "Because of the opportunities that I've had traveling to different schools, I would like to do a program that would allow me to reach even larger numbers of children." •JillPresley

CLIFF ·HARRIS

A business graduate and former Tiger football standout was named to the "Dallas Morning News All-Time Cowboys Team." Cliff Harris, now a Dallas businessman, was selected by seven of the newspaper's sportswriters as the choice as the free safety for the team that was announced recently in the "Sports Day" section of the award-winning newspaper.

Members of the selection team were Sam Blair, Tim Cowlishaw, Rick Gosselin, Frank Luksa, Bob St. John, Blackie Sherrod and Carlton Stowers, each of whom has followed or covered the Cowboys for more than 30 years.

Criteria for the team included on-the-field contributions and level of overall greatness.

Wearing jersey number 43, Harris at 6-2, 190-lbs. played 10 years (1970-1979) for coach Tom Landry and his Cowboys. It was a span worth five Super Bowls for the franchise, six Pro Bowl shots and four All-Pro awards for the raging free safety.

During his career, Harris made 29 interceptions and returned them for more than 280 yards. In 1976, he led the Cowboys in tackles.

Harris was known for his tenacious hitting and was nicknamed "Captain Crash" by his Dallas teammates.

Harris came to Ouachita after living with his family in Fayetteville, Hot Springs, Des Arc and even Panama. He played both quarterback and defensive back for Des Arc his senior year and the team went 11-0.

As a player for the OBU Tigers, Harris excelled in the defensive secondary for four years for Coach Buddy Benson. He was tabbed several times for post-season honors and for inclusion on the All-Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference Team and All NAIA.

But, Harris was not chosen in the college football draft following his senior season at OBU but instead signed as a free agent for a then standard $500 bonus by the Cowboys. He immediately stepped in though as a starter.

Harris' feats on the gridiron have earned him induction into both the NAIA Football Hall of Fame in the athlete category and the Arkansas Sports Hall of Fame.

Harris joins an elite group of former Cowboys on the newspaper's All Star Team which includes Bob Hayes, Drew Pearson, Billy Joe DuPree, Rayfield Wright, Mark Tuinei, Larry Allen, John Niland, Mark Stepnoski, Don Perkins, Emmitt Smith, Ed Jones, Harvey Martin, Bob Lilly, Randy White, Chuck Howley, Dave Edwards, Lee Roy Jordan, Mel Renfro, Cornell Green, Darren Woodson and Rafael Septien. Heralded running back Tony Dorsett also received votes.

"The Second Commandment tells us to 'love your neighbor as yourself." That's not just a commandment; it impacts who you are. That, for me, is the bottom line."

Julie Petty Buffington ('82) was recently featured in the Longview (TX) News-Journal for her work with Longview Community Ministries, Inc., a ministry of 50 Longview area churches.

Julie's interest in working with a non-profit organization began while she was a student at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary studying for her master's degree in marriage and family counseling. She became a volunteer at Southside Area Ministries, an agency helping the refugee population of Fort Worth, and it was there that she discovered her life's calling and she met her husband, also a volunteer at the center.

Julie became executive director of Longview Community Ministries, Inc. in 1994, organizing such ministries as Meals on Wheels, Food Box and Information and Service Center. In 1998, the center delivered 22,709 meals, distributed 2,011 boxes of food, and provided rent and utility assistance.

In addition to her B.A. in sociology from Ouachita, Julie has earned her master's degree from SWBTS, and a master of public administration degree.

Julie and her husband, Jim, are the parents of three children: Josh, 8, Abby, 5, and Lydia, five months. They are members of First Baptist Church of Longview.

The information above was gathered from the Longview News-Journal, Sunday, February 7, 1999.

The Financial ADVISER

Ouachita Baptist University · Arkadelphia, Arkansas 71998 · Vol. 1 · 1999

John Cloud, J.D. Associate Vice President For Estate and Gift Planning

It is axiomatic that the more you know about a particular subject, the more confident you are to deal with it. This is especially true when the subject is complex and baffling. In my work with Ouachita friends and alumni, I find that most people have little confidence in their understanding of estate planning issues. As a result, they tend to procrastinate on even the basic requirements, sometimes until it's too late.

There are no "simple" plans. Whether the planner is wealthy or not, he or she is directing the disposition of resources accumulated over a lifetime to the people and entities closest to his or her heart. At stake may be the financial security of a spouse, the ongoing care of a disabled child, avoiding hundreds of thousands of dollars in unnecessary taxes and fees, or possibly making sure a cherished heirloom ends up in the hands of the person the planner promised it to. These are vitally important matters. Folkswant to know that their goals will be met down the line.

Whatever your needs and desires, if you are at a standstill on your estate plans because you don't have the information that will give you assurance to move ahead, I will be pleased to assist you. If you are choosing a charitable provision, you may find that you can incorporate a gift to Ouachita without significantly affecting other beneficiaries. In fact, by using a Wealth Remainder Trust plan, both heirs and the charitable entity end up with more. My phone number is 870-245-5169.

Escape the "Catch 22" of U.S. Savings Bonds

Did you purchase government savings bonds years ago? Have you been letting the interest on them accumulate ever since? Look what will happen if you decide to finally make use of them.

• If you cash the bonds, you'll be required to pay regular income tax on the interest, which in this case is the difference between your purchase price and the current value.

• If you try to transfer the bonds to someone else's name, you'll generate the same taxable interest income for yourself as if you had cashed the bonds.

• If you never cash them and after your death the bonds go to the successor owner you've named, that person will be required to pay tax on the income from the accumulated interest.

Is there any way to make use of the bonds without triggering the tax? Yes! You can put a provision in your will that says your savings bonds will become the property of a charitable organization after your death. This may be your best way of making sure that 100% of the value of your bonds is used for a purpose you choose.

An Example

If you want to make a charitable gift in your will*, then give us Series E, EE, or HH savings bonds and leave your heirs other assets like stock. This will produce greater tax savings than if you give stock and your heirs the savings bonds.

	Bonds to	Stock to	Bonds or Stock
	Children	Children	to Charity
Market value	$15,000	$15,000	$15,000
Cost basis	$5,000	$5,000	$5,000
Taxable to recipient	$10,000	0	0
Tax at 28% rate	$2,800	0	0
Amount left for beneficiary	$12,200	$15,000	$15,000

Find Out More

For a confidential discussion of your particular situation, please call us. We'll be glad to find a plan that benefits you, your family, and our mission.

*Generally, transfer of ownership to a charitable organization during your lifetime will still trigger taxable income for you on the accumulated earnings.

An Overview of Estate Planning

Estate planning can be described as the process of transferring assets, during life as well as at death, to ensure that they are distributed in the manner the estate owner wishes. Although saving taxes is a priority, most important is the estate owner's desire to transfer assets to the people he or she wants, in the proper amount and with the proper timing.

Here are just a few things to heep in mind:

• Too many people die withent a valid will, the bedrock of an estate plan, leaving others to gress at what the decedent would have wished.

• While tax reduction is a legitimate and proper consideration (and the main focus of this article), the benefits of estate planning are not limited to those with taxable estates.

• The process of planning an estate is often complex and should always involve the assistance of an attorney who specializes in this area.

• The planning process should not begin too late. Death often comes unexpectedly, and each of us needs to give thought to how we want to distribute what we own.

• Charitable giving techniques in an estate plan can help achieve personal goals and reduce taxes, as well as advance a favorite cause in the long run.

The Tax Considerations

Any person who dies in 1999 with an estate of less than $650,000 will be subject to no federal estate tax, assuming no taxable lifetime gifts were made. This amount is scheduled to increase to $1 million by the year 2006. Therefore, the federal government does not tax many estates.

Yet, more and more people are discovering that the value of their estates has been rising over the years, especially if they own publicly traded securities or real estate, assets that have generally appreciated despite the ups and downs of the marketplace. Thus, tax planning has become a component of estate planning for many more people in recent years.

Two keys to good planning for reduction of taxes in an estate are the marital deduction and the charitable deduction. Though married people tend to have more tax-saving options than single people, if saving taxes is important to you, take advantage of the fact that any transfer to a charitable organization is tax-free.

Ask Us for Details

We can provide you with information about ways that charitable giving plans can be incorporated into your estate plans to accomplish your overall objectives. You may find some of them more beneficial than you ever dreamed!

Call us for a confidential, no-obligation discussion of your particular situation. Our goal is to make sure that any gift you make to us is also the best one for you and your family.

Sharing Your Plans

Estate planning is a personal process, and you may be reluctant to disclose your decisions to your heirs or any charitable organizations that you plan to benefit. However, there are several good reasons to do just that.

Telling Your Family

Talking about the plans that you've made for your own possible medical care, the distribution of your estate, and even for your funeral, burial, or memorial service can be uncomfortable. But it can also prevent unnecessary grief for your loved ones later.

When you communicate your desires to your family and friends, you relieve them of the burden of making decisions at what will be a trying time in their lives. That's why it's often important to share with them the contents of relevant estate-planning documents.

Telling Us

If you make a bequest to Ouachita in your will, we would welcome the opportunity to acknowledge your commitment and honor you. Too many times, we are able to say "thank you" only to the survivors of our generous supporters.

If you wish to remain anonymous to the public, we understand and will abide by those wishes. But oftentimes, telling other supporters about the types of gifts we receive can generate new gifts, so you can lead by example if we know about your plans!

Also, just like any organization that strives to be efficient and yet make ambitious plans for the future, we always need to keep in sight expectations of what we can accomplish. Knowledge of your estate plans, when combined with information from other benefactors, helps give shape to your plans for future efforts.

Whether you reveal your intended gifts or not, please know that we'll respect your wishes, and that we're always thankful for your generosity.

Estate Planning for Married Couples

Goal: The most common overall consideration for married couples is to ensure that the surviving spouse has enough to continue living comfortably for the remainder of his life. Means: Marital deduction. The federal tax laws permit spouses to give an unlimited amount to each other during life, as well as at death. Thus, a spouse who dies with a multimillion dollar estate is able to leave the entire amount to the other spouse at death with no federal tax consideration. Credit shelter trust. Even though the first spouse to die is able to transfer his or her entire estate to the other spouse without tax consideration, couples should be aware of ways to reduce taxes as much as possible at the surviving spouse's death, as well. Each spouse has an amount exempt from estate tax ($650,000 for 1999), but when the first spouse to die leaves everything to the surviving spouse, the first spouse's exemption is wasted. Only the surviving spouse's exemption will be used at the second death. However, to ensure that both spouse's exemption amounts are used ($1,300,000 for deaths that occur in 1999), married couples can establish credit shelter trusts. Charitable deduction. Couples who wish to be charitable, yet who want to provide an income to the surviving spouse, often establish a life-income gift that will ultimately help charitable organizations. For example, a person can establish a charitable remainder trust that pays income to both spouses until the first death, and then to the surviving spouse. After that person's death, the assets in the trust are transferred to one or more charitable organizations. Properly written, such a trust will ensure that no estate taxes are due (since the income amount for the surviving spouse is not subject to tax because of the marital deduction, and the remaining amount in the trust is granted a charitable deduction).

Estate Planning for Single People

- Goal: A frequent objective for single people (widowed, never married, or no longer married) is to ensure that assets are transferred to the desired people and causes with minimal taxation, despite the fact that the marital deduction is unavailable.
- Means: Annual gift tax exclusion. People are allowed to make tax-free gifts each year to anyone, up to the amount of $10,000 per donee. Also, gifts for tuition and medical expenses can qualify for an unlimited exclusion, if certain rules are observed. By taking advantage of the opportunity to make tax-free gifts during life, single people can reduce the size of a taxable estate.

Charitable deduction. Donating assets to a charitable organization eliminates estate tax on them. This is most commonly accomplished through a will, which allows the person complete use of all the assets until his or her death. However, those who wish to make gifts to non-charitable heirs and who also wish to help charitable organizations often use part of their estate to establish a charitable trust. The trust can generate an immediate life-income for the single person before the remainder passes to one or more charitable organizations, and the other part of the estate can be distributed to heirs. This maximizes tax savings because a charitable trust generates a current income tax deduction, and the amount given to charitable organizations at death avoids any estate taxes that would otherwise be due.
