THE COMMUNITY

One thousand kilobytes is equal to one megabyte. 1,000 megabytes is equal to one gigabyte. 1,000 gigabytes is equal to one terabyte. One terabyte is not enough for Dr. Kluck. Not even 10 terabytes are enough. No, the storage that Dr. Kluck needs for the pictures he takes on Ouachita's campus has reached an astronomical 20 terabytes. If you need that in picture terms, he takes an average of 100,000 photos a year. Some call that an obsession. For Dr. Kluck though, it's a hobby that has been growing since childhood and shows no sign of slowing down.

Many know Dr. Wesley Kluck as Ouachita's campus physician. Still many more know him as one of the vice-presidents of the university. There is a growing group of students that know him in a different way- Professor Kluck. That's because Dr. Kluck teaches Introduction to Photography and Advanced Photography. His journey toward taking on the two classes began decades ago, starting with a wedding present.

"Growing up I remember enjoying taking pictures," said Dr. Kluck. "I wouldn't say it was the main focus of my life, but I would get little cameras and thought it was neat. I really developed the interest, but didn't have the equipment until I got married in 1980 and received my first really nice camera as a wedding present."

Once Dr. Kluck received the camera, he began reading everything in sight on photography and cameras. In 1984 he made the journey back to Arkadelphia to start a clinic and life got busy. Even though he still enjoyed taking pictures, photography as an intense hobby wasn't possible with his busy schedule. It would take a few years and a leap in technology to bring Dr. Kluck back to his photography passion.

In 1999, Dr. Kluck bought a different type of camera than he had previously owned: a digital camera. "The next year I went with the Ouachita Wind Ensemble to Europe on a trip. I took hundreds of pictures and really started using that digital camera," said Kluck. At the time Dr. Kluck was not on staff at Ouachita but served as the athletic team doctor. He realized the time he spent just standing at Ouachita football games could be spent capturing the memories, so he began bringing his camera. 2005 is the final monumental year in Dr.

Kluck's photography journey so far. In that year he not only came to serve as vice-president of Ouachita, but bought his first nice quality digital camera. "Since I was at Ouachita and there were so many events to attend, I started taking photos at more than just football. It was mainly sporting events since I served as team doctor," said Kluck. This was the same year Facebook opened up to the world, and Dr. Kluck began posting the photos he was taking.

Though teaching was never in the plans, it is something Dr. Kluck and his students alike enjoy. What does he enjoy most about his classes? The creativity of his students. "My brain is not creative. I'm more factual and data driven, but I really enjoy creativity in others since I don't have it," said Kluck. His philosophy on teaching the photography classes is that he, "tries to teach the technical skills so the creativity looks good."

Dr. Kluck's devotion to taking pictures has not gone unnoticed by Ouachita. "Dr. Kluck is a gifted photographer and is continually learning new techniques in the field of photography," said Dr. Deborah Root, professor of communications. "We are fortunate that he has found time in his busy schedule as an administrator and physician to share his passion for photography with our students. He understands not only the technical aspects, but the importance and role of photography in storytelling in a digital age. That's important for our students to understand," said Root.

So where do the 100,000 photos a year Dr. Kluck takes go, besides onto his 20 terabyte external hard drive? Facebook. With every click of the shutter, Facebook gains another photo from Dr. Kluck. Faculty, students, parents and alumni are all able to enjoy Ouachita life through the lens of Dr. Kluck's camera as he uploads every photo, folder after folder, to one of the largest social media networks in the world.

Kluck keeps a Facebook page up and running that users are able to "like" and get updates. His "reach of people" on Facebook has hit 340,000, a number most Facebook fanatics only dream of.

It seems safe to say Ouachita will continue seeing Dr. Kluck capturing the moments and memories as his love for photography only grows. Another safe assumption? He won't let those terabytes hold him back.

JUDY DUVALL

 THE COMMUNITY

Judy Duvall was Female Clark Countian of the Year in the Arkadelphia Daily Siftings Herald's 2012 Readers' Choice Awards.

Readers of the newspaper are invited to vote each year on their top three choices in a variety of categories, including businesses, restaurants and community leaders. Arkadelphia Mayor Chuck Hollingshead was named Male Clark Countian of the Year.

Duvall, assistant director of Ouachita Baptist University's Elrod Center for Family and Community and coordinator of Elder-Serve, is a 1982 Ouachita graduate. She works with students and faculty on volunteer projects and campus-wide events such as Tiger Serve Day and Healthy Relationships Week, allowing her to serve many people in the community.

"Through my job at the Elrod Center at OBU, I get to meet many people in the community and I love that," said Duvall. "I have to say though, the OBU students who volunteer out in the community, many times out of the spotlight, are the ones who deserve the recognition. I have the distinct privilege of placing them with people and non-profits in the community. They are an amazing group of students who love to serve and meet needs. I'm super proud of each of them."

Other Ouachita staff members honored in this year's Readers' Choice Awards include Garry Crowder, head women's basketball coach, who was named the No.1 college coach in Arkadelphia, and Todd Knight, head football coach, who was named the No. 3 college coach.

Crowder, a graduate of Henderson State University, has served at Ouachita since 1995. In addition to coaching women's basketball, he is an instructor of kinesiology and leisure studies.

Knight, a 1986 Ouachita graduate, has served as head football coach since 1999.

THE COMMUNITY

In March through August of 2008, Keisha Pittman went through cancer treatments. "I had had my third chemo treatment on the day of Relay For Life. They told me to just come at 6 a.m. so I walked in and the national anthem was playing. I looked to my left and saw my friends with shirts that said "I heart KP." That was a big moment for me. I really understood what Relay For Life was about and what people in the community do for it." That year Keisha walked her first "survivor" lap in the middle of her treatments. The next year Keisha came back and led the OBU Relay For Life Team. She was also the leader of the team this past year.

Keisha, a development officer for OBU, first got involved with Relay For Life in 2006 and has been involved ever since. "OBU has a Relay For Life team and the folks leading at that time told me about it." She explained that it was an overnight event that is part of a year-long work to raise money for the American Cancer Society. Relay does the majority of the fundraising for the American Cancer Society. "AMC is a purely volunteer decision. What's bigger and cooler about it is that it happens in smaller communities."

Keisha explained that over 5,100 communities across the nation contribute to this run and everybody benefits from it equally. "Last year Arkansas raised $4 million, Clark County raised $60,000." She compared Ouachita to Relay when saying, "American Cancer Society is like OBU, in that Relay For Life is like the development office for American Cancer Society. You've got different departments that are doing things and different researchers that are doing all kinds of stuff for the cause."

Treating cancer is anything but cheap. "On average cancer treatment cost $1 million. If ACS wasn't there to help, there would be a board saying only certain people get to be treated," she said.

When Keisha said that Relay for Life was an all night event she was telling the truth. So many activities go into making this event what it is. "When we begin at 6 p.m. we have things going until 6 a.m. The event symbolizes the cancer patients' journey. The night starts off with a 'survivor lap' around the track and a 'caregiver' lap. This is a chance to focus in and remember what we are all there for. As the night goes on, it gets harder to stay and to stay up and going- this is just like it is for a cancer patient when they are in the middle of all their treatments," Keisha explained.

After the first laps are completed, at 9 p.m. there is the luminary ceremony. During this part of the event, all of the lights are turned off in the stadium and the participants line the track with luminary bags that are lit to represent those who are currently going through the battle with cancer, those who have gone before us in the battle, and those who are still living to tell a story. "There is usually a survivor and/or a caregiver testimony. It's the most moving part of the event." Keisha said. "Everybody then walks a full lap in silence remembering and praying for all the names as they see them.

At midnight, the event turns to a much lighter note when "Relay's Got Talent" starts. Keisha says, "It's just like on the show, it's kind of a variety show of sorts. Every team is encouraged to enter a contestant." The fun doesn't stop there. At 3:30 a.m. everybody is up and moving doing Zumba. Keisha said, "Nothing like moving for an hour at 3:30 in the morning!"

In between these events there are also smaller activities going on. Keisha named many of the different activities that keep people busy. "We have team games in the middle of the field, bands that play. We invite kids' choirs, cheer groups, gymnastics groups, dance groups, etc. to perform at the event. Obviously we want to keep energy up and activities going to keep everyone out there and energized all 12 hours."

On April, 2012, at 6 p.m. Keisha and a group of students were at Badger stadium participating in Relay For Life, walking the track to fight cancer. Keisha talked about what sounded like the perfect ending to a great night when she said, "As the event is coming to a close, the sun begins to rise and remind us that a new day is coming. That there is light for those going through this process."

For her work with Relay for Life and the fight to find a cure for cancer, Keisha was honored by the Arkadelphia Rotary Club as Volunteer of the Year.
