Such Great Heights

by Rachel Dunnahoe

I am a balloon stuck in a tree. Once happy and

aimless—
having finally broken
free
from the clutches of an always-begging child—and then suddenly
trapped
once more. Not just trapped, but unsavable. Doomed to be forever hovering
between the ground and the sky,
long after the helium deflates.