Portrait of a College

There are few earthly things more beautiful than a college.

It is a place where those who hate ignorance may strive to know,

Where those who perceive truth may strive to make others see;

Where seekers and learners alike banded together in the search of knowledge,

Will honor thought in all its finer ways,

Will welcome thinkers in distress or in exile,

Will uphold ever the dignity of thought and learning

And will exact standards in these things.

—John Masfield

And the most beautiful college is the Christian college

Where truth, beauty, and goodness blend with faith, hope, and love;

Where the temporal and material are seen in light of the eternal and spiritual;

Where the worth of the individual is enhanced by giving of himself to the Almighty;

Where a sense of excellence and a sense of values are component parts of an academic atmosphere;

Where faculty and students work together in Christian fellowship.

—Herbert C. Gabhart
