Don't walk out

WHEN one of our well known Arkansas preachers was young, he ran into a problem with some heavybooted young giants attending revival services he was conducting in an Arkansas lumber

After a night or two of this, the preacher asked some of the deacons what could be done about the situation. "Nothing," replied the fearful deacons, "nothing! If we make these bullies mad, they'll break up the meeting."

The next night, as expected, the disturbers came stomping in late. The preacher stopped his preaching until they could be seated. Then he said: "Now we are all here. There are just three classes of people who will feel free to leave before the benediction — mothers with crying babies, doctors who are called out to attend the sick, and people who have the itch and need to go outside to scratch."

When the service drew toward the close, the bullies looked at one another inquiringly, but they dared not leave their seats till after the benediction. And, not wanting anyone to think they had the itch, they didn't walk out of the services again for the duration of the revival.

According to my informant, my barber, Otho Flack, the initials of the daring young preacher who outsmarted the boys are Perry Webb. Dr. Webb is now retired and living in Little Rock, but continuing to preach as much or more than he did before retiring. Brother Otho is a member of the flock shepherded by Pastor Don Hook, out at Baptist Tabernacle, Little Rock, and, as far as I have been able to detect, tells the truth. If Dr. Webb finds anything unfamiliar in the account, it will not be any evidence of wilful stretching of the truth, we trust, but due, perhaps, to the slight changes that creep in from telling and retelling.

We'll not tell you the name of the town. Some of those roughnecks may be the senior deacons there today.

If there is a moral it might be this: Never walk out before the benediction; someone might think you are going outside to scratch.

Baptists and race

IN a letter to the editor ("A Call to Action") in last week's paper, Pastor Vernon R. Mallow of Woodfield Baptist Church, Rt. 2, Morganfield, Ky., called on Southern Baptists to take action as a denomination to solve the race problem. We cannot but admire the courage of this minister, for we know from having lived for several years in Kentucky that he has not taken the popular side of the argument, even there.

He has described the race revolution as a religious phenomenon. Since the most of our American people—segregationists, integrationists or moderates—are professing Christians, there certainly are deep involvements here for Christianity. We agree with Pastor Mallow that this is no time for Christians, either as individuals or as churches or denominations, to be silent or inactive in their relationship to the race revolution now taking place among us. However, his argument that the action, to be effective, must come primarily from the denomination rather than from the local churches is rather surprising, in light of the fact that local churches are not controlled or governed by the denomination, but, necessarily, by themselves.

One of the questions the minister asks is as pertinent as it may be offensive: "If our churches are in any sense true New Testament churches and if we are part of the Body of Christ, how can we deliberately exclude from membership in our churches anyone who has confessed Jesus Christ as his Lord and Savior and wishes to join?" But this is a question the local churches must answer for themselves and the denomination could not answer it for them even if it tried. Likewise, any participation of church memberships to secure equal rights and opportunities for the Negro population"-on an individual person basis, we take it-is certainly not anything that can be required by denominational action. Not even an autonomous church can tell its individual members what they shall say or do. This is something each one, before God, must answer in his own heart.

The government is well within its rights and responsibilities in passing laws prohibiting discrimination against individuals or groups. But the solution of the race problem rests, in the final analysis, upon the love and spirit of Christ in the hearts of the people.

The Southern Baptist Convention, through its world mission program, through its Christian Life Commission, and in its great and varied literature, not to mention official resolutions adopted from time to time, has long held up before our people the example and teachings of Christ, in race relations as in all other areas of life. Frankly, we feel that the denomination could do little that it has not done or is not now doing. If we ever do much, as Baptists, to help the race situation it will have to come through positive love-and-action at the local church level and in the lives of individual Christians.

A common heresy

ONE of the commonest heresies of our day is that APRIL 29, 1965

Christians should "preach the Gospel" and have nothing to do with applying the Gospel to such controversial things as politics and social problems.

Those who have reason to flinch when the plumbline of New Testament doctrine is applied to the affairs of their own lives are frequently among those who are most outspoken against what they call "the social gospel." They try to get everybody to jump to the conclusion that any Christian who takes a stand for righteousness in state and social affairs has closed his eyes to the Gospel of Christ as the only "power of God unto salvation" and is believing and teaching that regeneration is just a matter of good resolves and neighborly conduct in the affairs of everyday life.

As we see it, the encouragement of the church to Christians to make their influence count in all the affairs of life, far from being a departure from the Gospel of Christ, is nothing less than an application of the very climax of the Great Commission: "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded. ""

Who should be concerned about ungodly race relations, corrupt politics, crime, broken homes and broken lives, if not Christians? And how concerned are Christians about these things if they never do anything about them? We are convinced that even the devil does not worry about that religion which is confined to the four walls of the church.

Let us have no slackening or quitting of preaching Christ as the hope of the world. But let us not think for one minute that the battle is over when one becomes a Christian. The battle has just begun, as Paul knew so well in his own personal experience: "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord" (I Cor. 15:58).

COMMENTING on a bit of Baptist news the other day to some friends in a church that does not send the Baptist state paper to its members, one of our readers got the surprising reaction: "But I didn't know that! Where did you learn that?" Replied our heroine: "It was in the Arkansas Baptist Newsmagazine! You better start reading our paper!" In this swift-moving and enlightened age, there are many things along with his Bible that every Baptist should read on a regular basis. Certainly one of these is the Baptist paper.

WOULDN'T it be interesting to know who the attorneys are that represent the so-called "private clubs" in Arkansas? The bar associations across the country, some of which have been clamoring for a new code of ethics for the press, could help the cause of good government tremendously if they would add to their own codes a proviso that attorneys—even those who are members of legislatures or of prosecuting attorneys' staffs—make it a matter of public information who and what they represent on a retainer basis.

The alcohol problem

DOES a church have a right to protest a liquor license being issued to a restaurant that is located on the same block as the church?

Are Christians justified in refusing to buy from merchants who sell beer?

Do citizens have a right to campaign for dry precinct, counties and states? I believe the answer is yes.

I also believe that church members and pastors should protest meeting in a place that displays and sells alcoholic beverages. This is doubly true if our Baptist young people are involved.

We can and must teach in the classroom and from the pulpit the harm that alcohol brings and the powerful hold that it exerts upon a person's life.

But this is not enough.

Our teaching and preaching must be sustained by our action.

The liquor industry is determined to put alcohol in every home and their sights are set on the youth. . . Nothing will please them more than for a Christian group to be caught in a compromising position. — Dalton F. Short, student, Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, Mill Valley, Calif.

The war crimes

The little "ditty" on back page of last weeks Newsmagazine (issue of April 15) "Nazi War Crimes" cannot be reconciled in my heart.

The writer is 62 and I have attempted to follow every minute particle of what happened during the Nazi regime from a religious standpoint. War is Hell!, but when you're in it up to your neck and if you are patriotic you bow your neck and say, "Hell This Is War" and exert every effort to win. Do you think the American GI's pull their punch when they had Germans with their backs to the wall. How would you feel if the crime commission pull in one of your sons after twenty (20) for butchering a German soldier. It did take place in more instances than one on the German side. After all, we did win.

A race that cannot forgive and freely so should not exist. Christ forgave up to the last moment of existance. We are ask to forgive a race for that heinous crime to find that the race in question cannot abide by the cessation of a war they themselves provoked.

It's purely a case of murder as much so as if I as a Southerner wanted to avenge my loss against a patriotic Northerner of the U.S. Civil War. It's revenge no matter how it's served. John W. Roddie Box 410, Hot Springs National Park, Ark.

Welcome to Arkansas

THIS is just a word of introduction to one of our new pastors who is coming into our state, Brother Jerry Wilson of Waxahachie, Tex. He recently has accepted the pastorate of East Main Church, El Dorado and certainly we want to welcome him to our state. I have known Brother Wilson for several years and certainly he will be an asset to our state I feel in many ways. Welcome to Arkansas Brother Wilson. — D. B. ## April bliss

Little robin, I know why you sit in a tree

Chirping and singing so merrily

Your house is new, your windows clean

And nature hung your drapries green

You feel so smug in your lofty bower

Drinking the essence of each April shower,

No thought of what tomorrow may bring

With your faith, little robin, I too would sing

Did Jesus pray for organic union?

BY HERSCHEL H. HOBBS

(JOHN 12:22)

"THAT they may be one, even as we are one" (John 17:22). This is the verse most often quoted by those who promote the ecumenical movement. And while, at the present, in this movement each denomination maintains its own identity, the ultimate aim for both Roman Catholic and Protestant points toward one world, one church. However, it should be noted that these two groups have far different ideas as to how to achieve this goal.

But did Jesus really pray for this? To begin with, when Jesus prayed this prayer there was rivalry among the disciples, but there were no denominations as we know them. So, to interpret this prayer thusly is to read it into a situation which did not exist in the first century. If we think in terms of the disciples, did Jesus mean that they should be bound together in outward organic union without an inward spiritual unity? Quite the contrary was true.

How were/are Jesus and the Father one? Certainly they did/do not lose their identity, or else the Christian revelation is untrue. The fact is that they were one in essence, being, love, will, work and fellowship. But they were two in outward manifestation. They were "the Father, the Son" (John 14:15). This is a mystery but it is true nevertheless.

Applying this to the disciples, they did not lose their identity by being one in Christ. In John 17:21 Jesus prayed, "That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they may be one in us." Here again we see this mysterious oneness yet distinctiveness of Father and Son. It was not union but unity for which Jesus prayed. And it was a unity made possible for the disciples because they had first found a unity with God in Christ.

"That they may be made perfect [perfected] in one" (John 17:23) is the goal indeed. But movement in that direction should begin not by removing outward differences. It must begin with a unity of faith in God in Christ. And this unity must involve not only a Person but His redemptive work as well. To say that some elements of the Christian revelation are inconsequential is to say that they are unimportant. Who is to decide which is important and which is not? There is no element of this revelation which is unimportant both as to form and to significance.

The only place to begin is with the open New Testament. Let it say what it says, and be guided thereby. So long as there are differences in understanding and interpretation, there can be no union in the true sense of that word. But there can be unity in essence, faith, love, fellowship, and purpose. Distinct in personality, but one in spirit, we can speak the truth in love as we feel led to understand the truth. Thus "They may be one, even as we are one: I in them, and thou in me" (John 17:22-23). Jesus prayed for spiritual unity, not corporate union.

The job switcher

By J. I. Cossey

I SUPPOSE I am guilty of being a job switcher, but I did not plan my life that way. I know God called me to preach and I have never doubted that for one moment. I have depended upon God to open doors of service for me and He has never left me idle for even one day.

I started my ministry by preaching in school houses, which was a blessed ministry. I continued my work by serving little churches during my years in school. After my school days were over, I was missionary in Hope Association in Arkansas; Frisco Association in Oklahoma; and then educational director of Tarrant Association in Texas. God was my leader in my association mission work and I loved it.

Under divine leadership, I was budget director of the Arkansas Baptist State Convention, which I feel has been my most constructive work. I led the State in financing the Unified Budget through the Sunday School.

Now, practically every church in our state receives most of the weekly gifts through the first service on Sunday. I have been state missionary, which was a most enjoyable and fruitful ministry. I have taught and been public relations director in Southern Baptist College. I was editor of the Arkansas Baptist for seven years and editor of the Southern Baptist College News for several years, and this was a wonderful ministry.

In the mid-years of my ministry, I served county-seat-size churches and was most happy in each church I served.

After reaching my 65th year, I taught in two rural schools, and those were years of friend-making and rich experiences in a new field of activity. And since reaching my 65th milestone, I have served as pastor of several rural churches.

In my long and varied ministry,

Ouachita Baptist College

OUACHITA College formally opened Sept. 6, 1886. A dream of more than a third of a century had come true.

A good beginning toward establishing a college had folded up under the impact of the Civil War. Some $75,000 had been lost in this venture. Other efforts had been made as associations and individuals established academies. But there was no college as Baptists wanted.

The Educational Commission requested of the State Convention, meeting in Hope in 1885, that a college board of trustees be appointed. Fifteen men were elected before the session closed. The board had the power of self - perpetuation and had full control and absolute management in operating the school for the convention. The trustees were to make full report to the convention.

The board held its first meeting at Morrilton. Here they discussed bids for location. It was decided to make the school co-educational. Two meetings were held later at Little Rock. Applications for location were received from Ozark, Arkadelphia, Morrilton, and Austin.

Arkadelphia was selected for the site. Citizens of that city subscribed $10,000 for location, the first installment to be paid when the work began. They secured 13 acres, worth $5,000, upon which stood the old building of the School for the Blind.

Dr. John W. Conger was selected as president of the school. He was serving as head of an academy at Prescott at the time of his election to the new institute. He opened school in one building with six teachers. One hundred pupils enrolled the first day.

At the first report to the Convention, 166 pupils, representing four states, were registered. Fifty-three of these were boarders. Three ministerial students were enrolled.

Dr. J. B. Searcy was chosen as first financial agent.

Seventy-nine years have passed since that joyous beginning. Ten presidents have followed Dr. Conger. They have faced many problems, mostly financial. But one must admit that God has blessed the school and it has blessed Arkansas Baptists.

It is still fulfilling dreams. In January of this year its board of trustees voted to make it a uniquersity.

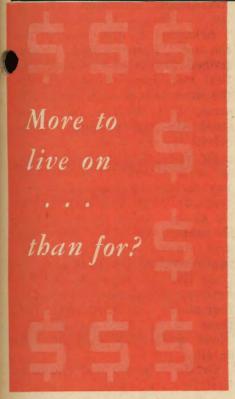

I have been happy and if I could go over it all again I would still leave my changes in the hands of God who called me.

My Heavenly Father has opened and closed my doors all along the way. My ministry has been made up of happy experiences every step of the way. I have preached, taught, written and have done missionary work, all of which has been ministerial work.

However, I believe, unless God rules it otherwise, that a preacher would do better to stay with one phase of the ministry. We need outstanding pulpit men; outstanding writers; outstanding admin istrators and executives; teachers and outstanding preachers in different kinds of field work. It is all the Lord's work.

When the Lord places us in a certain type of work, we should remain there until we have done what He sent us there to do. We must not ask the Lord to open up a field for us and then make our own decision about the time we are to remain on that field. We are not to be job switchers, but we are to be alert to see the development of God's schedule for our lives.

Courtship, Marriage and the Home

THE reason I am making bold to write things that transpire in the one-hour credit course for wives here on campus is contained in a conclusion we reached together, students and instructor, early in the current term: the qualities that make a good minister's wife are the same as those that make a good wife in any area.

The young wives are doing some commendable research in preparation of term papers in groups that average three to five each. One 17-page discussion deals with the subject, "Maximum Living on Limited Means." Here are parts that set our principles and practical suggestions designed to bring about an improved quality of living in any home.

"It is entirely possible to live to the very fullest even when the income is tightly budgeted. This paper offers suggestions for acquiring a Christian attitude toward life and its problems, budgeting, insurance and savings, teaching children proper attitudes and uses of money, and inexpenive recreation."

A gist of the findings is presented although not in exact quoting.

Living in the United States has shifted increasingly toward the cities. The work that earns a living for the family in urban life is separate from the home. It is in our greatest cities that families most often break.

The family, whose theme song is "We must dress better, live in a better house, and drive a better car than our neighbors," is encouraging a trend for business men and women and home builders of tomorrow to be ruthless and unsocial.

How shall we teach our children to use money and not let it use them? What can we do to help our family understand that what we are and what we have should always be used in the service of God?

Children learn about money by having money to use. They learn how to use a hammer by pounding nails, or they catch on to balancing a bicycle through the experience of riding one. The child is ready for an allowance as soon as he knows how to count, when he shows an interest in money, when he has some understanding of needs-his own and those of other people.

The proved method is to start children with an allowance of a few pennies and to increase the amount gradually each birthday, or with new requirements such as Cub Scout dues, or extra school expenses.

The wise parent does not link money to the discipline of children. Virtue cannot be bribed by a bonus allowance or a special grant. To refuse allowance to a child because he has been naughty makes as much sense as a man's cutting down on the household budget because he is temporarily displeased with his wife. Linking of allowance with discipline only confuses thinking about the purpose of money.

If modern parents are to interpret the wise use of money to their children they will have to show the right attitude themselves. The ability to understand money and to spend it wisely does not come to the child suddenly.

The family budget calls for a togetherness of spirit and of action. This can be reached through the accord of a family council.

The idea of the family council in budgetary decisions is not different from that in other deliberations. Such a council gives an opportunity for all members of the family group to talk over their finances, to discuss the needs of each person and the amounts that can be allotted for those needs. Here in council the rules are discussed, amounts are set, charge accounts are examined, and privileges concerning them are granted. When the parents show this much confidence, their young people will usually respond by being understanding and discreet.

Authorities suggest this division percentagewise as a safe one for a Christian family: Tithe, 10 pct.; savings, life insurance, home educational funds, 11 pct; income tax, 5 pct.; food, 22 pct.; clothing, 11 pct.; insurance, (car and health), 5 pct.; books, 3 pct.; entertainment, 4 pct.; miscellaneous, 4 pct.; medical expenses, 4 pct.; adjustment fund, 4 pct.; automobile expense, 13 pct.

Robert J. Hastings, in an article published in Home Life entitled "Common Sense and the Family Budget," offers these suggestions: (1) Make your budget fit the family; (2) Allow some margin; (3) Distinguish between the needs and the wants of the family; (4) Keep a money "diary"; (5) Be careful of "bargain hunting"; (6) Live as you go along; (7) (Recognize) happiness is not for sale. A clerk once told a customer, "Happiness cannot be totaled on an adding machine, deposited in a bank, or purchased in a gift shop."

What a family needs most in this changing world is an anchor. This anchor should be Jesus Christ first, and in due order a happy home.

Arkansas All Over-

Twenty-third anniversary for Dr. Hicks

SUNDAY (May 2) will mark the 23rd anniversary of Dr. W. Harold Hicks as pastor of Pulaski Heights Church, Little Rock.

For several years now Dr. Hicks has had the distinction of having been pastor of this church longer than any of the others who have served the church.

The church was constituted Aug. 30, 1913, with 45 persons present and signing the register as charter members. The first pastor, the late Dr. E.P. J. Garrott, served from 1913 to 1915. Other pastors have been: Dr. A. L. Aulick (1915 and 1916); Dr. Allen Hill Autry (1917); Rev. A. M. Rogers (1918 to 1929); Dr. A. L. Hale (1929 to 1931); and and Dr. L. M. Sipes (1931 to 1941).)

Dr. Hicks began his ministry with the church on May 3, 1942.

A native of Hereford, Tex., Dr. Hicks is a graduate of Baylor University and of Southwestern Seminary, Ft. Worth, Tex. In 1956 he received the honorary D.D. degree from Baylor at the same ceremony that the University conferred an honorary degree upon President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Before coming to Pulaski Heights Church, Dr. Hicks served as pastor of churches at Wink, Tex., and at Concordia and Winfield, both in Kansas. He has served as president of the Kansas State Baptist Convention; vice president of the Arkansas Baptist State Convention; and was for two terms president of the Greater Little Rock Ministerial Association

He is now a member of the Executive Board of the Arkansas Baptist State Convention and chairman of the Board's Operating Committee, and is Arkansas representative on the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Mrs. Hicks is the former Miss Maurine Beyer of Hereford, Tex. The Hickses have a daughter and three sons, all of whom are graduates of Baylor University, all with master's degrees, except the youngest son, John, who is now completing his sophomore year there. Their daughter Catherine is now Mrs. Lee, the wife of Dr. William Lee of the faculty of Texas University. Their oldest son, Joe, and family live in New Haven, Conn., where he is working on his doctorate at Yale University. Their second son, Bill, and his wife live in Kingsville, Tex., where he is head line coach in football and English instructor in Texas Arts and Industry Col-

Dr. Hicks has varied hobby interests. Perhaps his main addiction from the standpoint of pure recreation is watching football and baseball, from the grandstands or from an easy chair in front of his television set. He also likes golfing, fishing, and working in Mrs. Hicks' yard.

Some of the highlights of Pulaski Heights Church show the healthy growth of the church in the last twenty years. In 1942, the budget was $14,000 and the total gifts for all causes, $15,494.94, with a membership of 805. Comparative figures for 1964 were: budget, $187,500; total gifts for all causes, $188,068.41. The budget for 1965 is $203,781 and the membership as of April 1 this year was 1,479.

Congratulations, Pastor Hicks and Pulaski Heights Church! — ELM

CUAG drive for law enforcement

CHURCHES United Against Gambling, in a state strategy planning meeting at the Baptist

Building in Little Rock on Wednesday of last week, voted unanimously to continue their crusade for enforcement of anti-gambling
laws of the state, with a view to closing Garland

County gambling establishments now operating under the guise of private clubs.

"Ours may be a long, hard, unhappy task," said Dr. Rheubin L. South, president of CUAG, "but with what strength we have we must keep the continuing light of truth upon the gambling situation in the state. Through the medium of pulpit, press and personal involvement we must be on the alert."

In a meeting covered by newspaper and television reporters and cameramen, Dr. South said:

"Abundant evidence has been printed in our newspapers over this state showing without question that law violation continues in Hot Springs. Courageous ministers of that city have tried to seek recourse in the courts of Hot Springs and they have been met with mockery and frustration."

Reviewing Governor Faubus' unequivocal pledge last fall to keep gambling casinos closed in Hot Springs and his subsequent failure to carry out his pledge. Dr. South pointed to "a new challenge to the same folks who rose up before, against gambling. These are church leaders and others who are interested in the betterment of our State. The same people who build hospitals, run colleges and minister to those in need are now on the forefront of this battle. This certainly is as it should be! The cause of good government is as basic to good churchmanship as breath is to life.

Cannot quit now

"We would fail ourselves if we left this battlefield now. . . Our youth are looking to us for leadership and statesmanship. At this time when your young people read about wilful, flagrant law violations on the front page of their newspapers they must have someone toward which they can look. We must speak for and stand for law and order."

Editor Alfred Knox of the Arkansas Methodist, who was one of a committee of denominational leaders who conferred with Governor Faubus a few weeks ago in the interest of law enforcement in Garland County, gave a report of what happened at the conference. He reported that the governor declared himself as being of the same mind as the CUAG on the Hot Springs gambling situation and pledged himself to continue to move against it until he had it closed.

No private clubs

Attorney James Gannaway, discussing "A Look at the Private Club Law," pointed out that the so-called "private clubs" of Garland County secured their charters as private clubs under false pretense, that they violate the conditions of their charters which provide that they must operate at non-profit institutions and must not violate the laws of the state. Since they are, in fact, not private clubs, the law enforcement officers, from the governor down, do not need search warrants to enter them and close them, he said.

Editor Erwin L. McDonald of Arkansas Baptist Newsmagazine paid tribute to the influence of the press in the CUAG anti-gambling campaign and outlined plans for keeping the true picture of the gambling situation alive and before the people of the state through newspapers and by television and radio.

"I have confidence in the people of Arkansas and believe that they will not fail to bring about the action needed to close gambling, if they are kept informed," adding that we may have to have another election before the matter is finally settled.

Chief of Police M. Jack Kelly of the Marianna Police Department, himself a leader in the CUAG organization, read a letter he had mailed to Lt. Col. Carl L. Miller, secretary - treasurer of the Arkansas Peace Officers Association, urging that that association change its 1965 meeting place from Hot Springs because of the open violation of law in that city.

'Radio-T.V. Sunday'

HUNDREDS of churches throughout the Southern Baptist Convention are planning observances of "Baptist Radio-TV Sunday" on May 16 to let members know how their Radio and Television Commission is using the air waves in the spread of the gospel.

A 15-minute tape recording by Dr. Paul M. Stevens, Commission director, and a film strip in color have been produced and are offered as a self-contained program for use either separately or together. The tape and/or film strip are suggested as part of a Wednesday or Sunday night church service, or by any of the organizations of the church.

Literacy Workshop set for May 14-15

THE teaching staff for the state Laubach Literacy Workshop to be held May 14-15 in Little Rock has been completed, Dr. Erwin L. McDonald, chairman of the Arkansas Laubach Literacy Committee, has announced.

Assisting Mrs. Roy Snider, of Camden, director of the workshop, will be three experienced Laubachmethod teachers: Rev. James C. Buchanan, Jr., pastor of First Church, Grady; Rev. O. Phillip May, pastor of First Church, Pocahontas; and Rev. Darrel L. Heath, pastor of Plum Bayou Church, Wright.

The fact that all of the teachers are Baptists is just coincidence, Dr. McDonald said, since the workshop will be interdenominational. It will also be bi-racial, he said. Dr. Clyde Hart, secretary of the Race Relations department of the Arkansas Baptist State Cosvention, has served as a member of the planning committee.

Persons attending all three sessions of the workshop should be qualified, through the use of Laubach Literacy materials, to teach those who do not know how to read, McDonald said. First of the sessions will be held Friday night, May 14, from 7 to 9:30 o'clock. Sessions the following day will be from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3:30 p.m.

All sessions will be held in the chapel of the Baptist Building, at 401 West Capitol Ave.

The Arkansas Laubach Literacy Committee is bearing the expenses of the workshop and no registration fees will be charged, but each person attending will be expected to pay for a few basic supplies, Dr. McDonald said.

Those who plan to attend are requested to notify Dr. McDonald, giving their names and mailing addresses. He suggests that those who are coming might enlist others from their communities to make the trip with them, possibly on a share-the-cost basis.

Arkansas, with a percentage of 15.7 per cent illiteracy, is greatly handicapped by the large number of people who can neither read nor write, Dr. McDonald said. "We offer through this workshop an opportunity for school teachers, housewives, and others to help us solve this problem," he concluded.

Abernathy's propects

MANY of you have had opportunity to hear and meet Jerry Don Abernathy, associate Sunday School secretary. He has been in many state, associational and local church meetings over Arkansas since joining the department last fall.

You will agree

MR. ABERNATHY that to participate in a meeting with him is a good experience. He is a good preacher and a good conference leader. He is fresh, creative, stimulating as he offers help in practical and realistic ways.

May I share with pastors and others one of the fine things Jerry Don has developed concerning the practical use of a prospect book?

Every church could well afford to prepare a permanent file on prospects. Prospects for Sunday School constitute the largest possible number of prospects for enlistment and evangelism.

Many churches glean the names of prospects from visitors' slips in Sunday School and worship services. Another source of names is from utility companies and newcomers' lists.

The best possible way to locate people is through a door-to-door census or survey. Either individual or family cards are recommended for use in taking a census.

Once individuals are located, the next step is to make a permanent prospect card and keep it in a prospect file.

Prospect visitation slips should be copied from each card.

These slips are used to make visitation assignments to Sunday School teachers, officers and members.

Now consider another step many pastors are starting to use. It is a small pocket-sized ring binder developed by Mr. Abernathy. Pages to list prospects by families. On each page of the booklet is room for listing four families. With 100 pages and an average of five names per family, there is

JIM MALOCI

NATHAN Porter of Atlanta, Georgia, and Udell Smith of Alexandria, Louisiana, are two of the conference leaders at the annual Spring Planning Retreat for the Baptist Student Union. Approximately 225 students, most of them newly elected campus officers, are expected this week-end at Tanako. The theme of the retreat is "Power To Become."

Presented at the retreat will be the 15 students recently appointed to serve as the 1965 Summer Missionaries. New state officers will also be elected. The theme interpretation will be presented by Arkansas Tech.

Helping on the retreat program will be three Southwestern Seminary students, Jim Maloch, Charles Petty, and Mike Lundy. Other conference leaders are Ken Reinhart of Conway; BSU Directors Myra Gulledge and George Haile of Louisiana; Jim Caldwell of Ft. Smith; Walter Smiley of Joplin, Mo.; Mrs. Jerry Hodge, Nancy Cooper, Mary Hutson and Lawson Hatfield of Little Rock; Miss Mary Cate Abington of De-Queen will be soloist for the retreat. — Tom J. Logue.

room for 2,000 prospects in the pocket-size notebook.

Pastors carry this booklet with them in all their visitation efforts. As new prospects are discovered and added to the book, these names are also added to the permanent file for assignment to Sunday School workers.

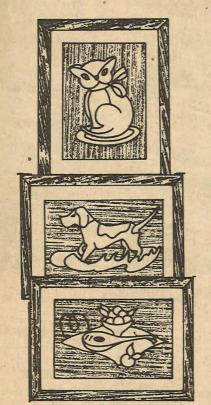

This amazing little page also carries check points on 15 areas of need for each individual listed. I don't see how you can afford to be without some system like this.

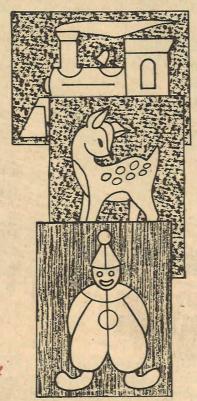

Interested?

Write Jerry Don in the Sunday School Department. Cost is a dollar each for the binder and for the special printed filler pages. Two dollars is the cost for the complete package. — Lawson Hatfield, State Sunday School Department.

ANIMAL CHILDREN

BY THELMA C. CARTER

MANY characteristics of our human experience also can be observed among the creatures of the natural world. You have seen some animals grow up from babies. Many creatures of the animal world love their families.

The parents of animals and birds spend hours and days training their youngsters how to live in the great big world. Mother birds spend much of their time teaching their young to fly, to seek their food, and to protect themselves from their enemies.

Wonderfully true is the fact that many birds will feed and raise stray fledgling birds along with their own. A pair of finches have been known to feed and care for a whole flock of baby finches whose parents were killed in a windstorm. A colony of grown penguins will devote their efforts to feeding and raising an orphaned baby penguin.

Many creatures of nature will sacrifice their own lives to save their babies. A mother kangaroo, when pursued by an enemy, will tumble her baby in the bushes as she races and leaps along. When she has outrun the enemy, she will return for her baby.

Baby opossums ride on their mother's back wherever she goes, whether she is searching for food or drinking at a stream. They continue this until she decides they are old enough to care for themselves. Tender affection and care for their young is shown by monkeys and baboons.

Large animals, such as lions, pumas, bobcats, bears, elephants, camels, and giraffes are extremely protective of their babies. Many of these creatures tend to their young as carefully as human beings care for their children.

Married Students Admitted At ABH

A change in regulations at the Arkansas Baptist Hospital School of Nursing now allows the admission of married women and also lets some students live outside dormitories, Mrs. Mildred Armour, dean of the School, has announced.

In the past, nursing student could not remain in school if they married before the last months of their training and all were required to stay in the Nurses' Residence.

Now, however, married girls who are otherwise qualified may enter and girls whose homes are within commuting distance of the school may live at home. The changes apply to girls al-ready in school as well as those who will enter in September, Mrs. Armour said. At that time the School will become affiliated with Ouachita Baptist University and will have both a di-ploma and a degree program for three more years before moving into a degree program exclusively.

Girls who have quit to be married can now re-enter, Mrs. Armour said. This is the first time married students have been allowed to enter the school since the World War II shortage of nurses.

Students who dropped out of the school to be married and who have now returned are: Mrs. Carolyn Plyler Thomas, Mrs. Carolyn Turner McCarthy, Mrs. Betty Goodman Shelton and Mrs. Wanda Huffman Merritt.

Facts of interest

... PRELIMINARY figures for the calendar year 1964 revealed a nation-wide rise of 13 percent in the Crime Index over 1963. In actual numbers this was an increase of more than 250,000 serious crimes for the reporting agencies included in this release. For the country as a whole, all crime classifications were up in volume. Figures for crimes of violence reflected a 9 percent rise in murder, 18 percent in aggravated assault, 19 percent in forcible rape, and 12 percent in robbery. The property crimes continued the upswing, led by auto theft up 16 percent; larceny $50.00 and over, 13 percent; and burglary, 12 percent. Total crime increases were reported by all areas, with cities over 100,000 population as a group up 11 percent, suburban communities 18 percent, and rural areas 9 percent.

.... The United States Children's Bureau, releasing figures for 1963, said a record 601,000 juvenile delinquency cases were handled by juvenile courts in that year—marking the fourteenth year in the last fifteen that the trend has continued upward. Its figures do not include 36,000 traffic cases during the same year, a year which saw a 17 percent increase in that category. Boys, the bureau reported, have a delinquency record four times as great as girls. Only in 1961 did juvenile cases show a decline, over a period of the last fifteen years.—The Survey Bulletin

God demands obedience

LEWIS A. MEYERS*

TEXT: I SAMUEL 10:8; 13:5-14

MAY 2, 1965

THE setting: Since printing will allow but little repetition, the pupil should remember that 1050

B. C. was the opening date of Saul's reign; that the location was in the general vacinity of Jerusalem; and that the principal actors for the May series are Samuel, Saul, Nathan, and David. Please notice that the sifted, simplified subject is "Obedience"; that there are no exceptions to the fact that the professors of the faith must preserve the place of God in communal and national life.

I. The situation: Our text (I Sam 10:8; 13:5-7), even by modern standards, presents a breathtaking picture of swordless and chariotless Israel, standing almost empty - handed before the bestarmed nation of that day — the Philistines, with 30,000 chariots and 6,000 horsemen.

The physical alone isn't adequate at any time to win victories. We must be frequently taught that moral courage, the righteousness of a cause, and trust in Jehovah will more than counterbalance even atom and hydrogen-encased power. The Jews had forgotten their Egyptian deliverance and all the miracle-supplying powers of the subsequent years. The desertion of the soldiery, therefore, became wholesale.

Samuel, God's preacher, was sent to King Saul to show the way. There was to be a seven-day waiting or test period for Israel, a time when a responsible leader-ship must assert itself to prevent the dissolution of the Jewish army. One of our international commentaries, Peloubet, suggests that in reading Israel's behavior at that time we cannot escape seeing something of a similar nature that will occur at the end of this age, Rev. 6:15, 16.

We are to see: 1. That our people, 1965, have memories much too short; 2. That our lethal, scientific developments should awaken our moral sense; 3. That obeddience to heaven's way must be the determinant in our course.

II. The Sin: Five verses (13: 8-12) describe the impatience of Saul. Less than 150 words depict a sin so great that it cost a king his kingdom and almost determined the destiny of a people. Saul stepped out of character and out of bounds of the Divine law when he failed to abide God's time and when he presumed upon his own fitness, personally, to present the burnt offering to Jehovah. Saul's gallantry was without question — his desire for the offering both correct and laudable. But he had before him a decision upon which he could not compromise any more than we, of our time. can shade a Scriptural plan to meet a seeming exigency.

Lacking the faith, Saul failed. He failed to wait the full seven days for Samuel's presence. He could have prayed and could have led his people in prayer. Scripture (V. 6) tells us that they recognized "that they were in a strait." Isa. 28:16 says "He that believeth shall not make haste." It is said that the very last day of the 430 years of Israel in Egypt had transpired before the promise to Abraham was fulfilled.

We are to see: 1. That the essence of faith is obedience uncompromised; 2. That "separation of church and state" functions were involved; 3. That Saul seemed to have, essentially, the carnal-mind view of God.

III. The separation: With un usual directness, our text (13:13-14) states the offense and announces the sentence. For Saul it is to be separation. He is to be replaced by a man "after the Lord's heart." At this point there crowds upon us that famous line, "Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these, 'it might have been." Saul must live the rest of his time under Samuel's reminder that the King's life, could have been forever blessed in Christian perpetuity, but such would not be true. That blessing was transferred to David.

As we now make comparisons we see that Saul had very little of the faith of Gideon. He became increasingly wayward under trial, was subsequently too weak to retrieve his first error or to say "no" when tempted with the victor's spoils. Frequently, men come to an ill-advised and unfortunate end through a succession of errors. This is not altogether absent in the current story, but we must not fail to see that Saul's first error was sufficient to doom his future.

We are to see: 1. That a first compromise can be a disastrous risk, 2. That it was the last face-to-face encounter of prophet and king; 3. That folly begins where obedience ends.

IV. The summation: Among the chain of thoughts which this lesson stimulates is this anticipated question, "How did the distraught armies of Israel fare before the 30,000 chariots, the 6,000 horsemen?" The Phillistines were to remain strong adversaries down to the heart of David's reign, but their massive army did not prevail. God's will may be delayed by man, but not in the ultimate. Our thanks must go to Jonathan and not to his father, Saul.

Another question, timely for any age, is, "What if there had been no Samuel to rebuke a Saul, no preacher to voice the religious and moral values of life?" This lesson appears to bear upon our time in a particular way.

Finally, skipping many questions between, there is this one which we cannot evade, "Granting the continuance of our faith and bedience, has the day of spiritual miracles passed?" The compelling answer is a decided "no." While many appear anxious to discredit everything outside the hard core of rational thinking, the facts are that God does take delight in making our existence, miracles of his grace in a thousand ways.

We are to see: That he is not merely a power to be considered, but a power upon which to depend; not merely a voice to lightly hear but a voice to seriously and consistently obey.

Dennis the Menace

YOUNG wife preparing breakfast was startled to hear a bellow of pain ring out from the bedroom. A moment later her husband burst into the kitchen groaning. Their very interested threeyear-old son was close behind.

"Don't ever do that again!" her husband stormed, rubbing an angry bump on his forehead.

"Do what?" asked the mystified wife.

"Send that boy in to wake me when he's got a hammer in his hand!"

Segregated churches

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (EP) — A belated report from last December's Seventh Inter - Varsity Missionary Convention here indicates that a missionary delegate challenged missionary agencies to refuse financial support from segregated churches.

The policy suggestion arose in a panel discussion where the Rev. Warren Webster, serving in West Pakistan under the Conservative Baptist Foreign Missionary Society, said: "It would be a tremendous assistance to missionaries if we could tell those to whom we preach that there is no racial discrimination practiced in the churches which support us. It would carry a great deal of force.

"Racial prejudice and Christian missions are mutually exclusive; one of them will have to go," said Mr. Webster.

Harvest of missions

ENUGU, Nigeria (EP) — Addressing a consultation on Inter-Church Aid, the Rev. A. Adegbola of Nigeria pointed out to the delegates that the revolution taking place in Africa is the harvest of Christian missions. Such agencies as churches, schools, medical institutions and community development establishments have been greatly used of God, Mr. Adegbola affirmed, to bring Africa to its present position of honour and trust.

Although Christian missions, he said, had not in the past always been clear or conscious enough about the relevance of their activities to a prospective social revolution, yet the "baby" has now arrived, and they have all been surprised to see what has been carried in the "womb" of missionary activities all the time.

Extension of statute

NEW YORK (EP) — Jewish leaders here and abroad expressed disappointment that West Germany's 20-year statute of limitations on Nazi war crimes has been extended only four years and eight months, or until Dec. 31, 1969.

The statute was due to expire May 8 or 20 years after Germany's surrender in World War II. After that date Nazi criminals not charged before May 8 would have been immune from prosecution.

Extension of the statute had been urged not only by Jewish groups, but also by Protestant and Catholic organizations, clergy and laity.

Plan church merger

LEXINGTON, Ky. (EP)) — In "a more determined move" to take definite steps toward forming a united church, representatives of six Christian denominations met here April 5 to plan the merger.

The churches involved are the United Presbyterian Church in the United States, United Church of Christ, The Methodist Church, The Protestant Episcopal Church, The Evangelical United Brethren Church and The Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ).

The denominations involved have about 23 million members. Their general aim is a united church "truly Catholic, truly reformed and truly evangelical."

Condemns USA action

MOSCOW (EP) — Patriarch Alexis of the Russian Orthodox Church in a statement quoted in Isvestia condemned American interventions in Viet Nam as "arbitrary and inhuman... a flagrant breach not only of the elementary standards of international law, but also of Christian ethics."

He said they constitute a violation of the Geneva Agreements of 1945 concerning Viet Nam and "contain within them the seeds of an armed conflict... they violate the ancient commandment still true today 'thou shalt not kill'."

Obscenity law illegal

HARRISBURG, Pa. (EP) — Pennsylvania's anti-obscenity law has been held unconstitutional by a local judge in Philadelphia whe ruled that county district attorneys cannot act as censors for the public.

Judge Earl Chudoff ordered return of films seized from Philadelphia "adult" movie houses, and indictments against the operators were quashed.

He said that "we ought not to allow any administrative agency, no matter how subtly or how admirably it performs its intentions, to become the censor of the Philadelphia citizenry."

Asst. Dist. Atty. Anthony J. Smith, who handles obscenity prosecutions for the city, said the ruling would be appealed.

A COURT test on the constitutionality of the church-state provisions of the Federal Aid to Education bill recently signed into law by President Johnson will be initiated by Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State. The announcement was made at a gathering in Washington of the organization's regional leaders from across the nation.
