Do Not Cross the Double White Line

The double white line is having a bad day
It just found out its grandmother died
It’s emotional and no one’s quite sure how it will respond if crossed
It may start bawling incoherently
Or it may try to drink itself to sleep
We’re trying to get the double white line into therapy
Because it’s really sad how it’s doing this to itself
But the infrastructure for dealing with the mental health problems of anthropomorphized non-sentient beings is all but non-existent in the United States
So we put this warning sign instead.