

Simply Words

Ash Farrer

Words will never know
they form worlds,
bring to life dreams
of impossible things,
recount what has happened
then debate if they were dreams.

Words will never know
they promote faith and beliefs, create dread and doubts,
instruct from atop a spire inspire rebels below.

Words will never know
they depict acts of love, present malice and hate,

Words will never know
their ultimate fate,
that they
command, exclaim,
inquire, state.

They are simply words.
